8856 The Government especially emphasizes Exhibit 185, the memorandum sent by Blagden of Beaver to Avery of USG in December, 1925, suggesting a settlement and license enabling USG to maintain a lawful price control and to take a dominating position in the industry (item (a) set forth above in this topic). Segregating this memorandum from other evidence to which reference is made below, the Government couples it with the facts that after several meetings between Avery and Blagden in June and July, 1926, the Beaver-USG license agreement was signed (on July 29); that Blagden testified that he talked with other members of the industry on the subject of a license and advised them to "join up" (item (b)), and specifically with George M. Brown whom he advised to take a license and get the benefit with the others of price stabilization, i.e., of the license price which would be the same price to all (item (d)); that Blagden referred in correspondence with Avery to the " 'entente cordial' that has started between our companies," Exhibit 189 (item (c)); that Avery, according to a statement by Griswold, had yielded to the persuasion of Blagden and himself and would consider Certain-teed's application for a license (item (o)); and that ultimately the various other companies took licenses. And the Government urges that from this an inference should be drawn that there was an agreement between Beaver and USG that an industry wide license system would be promoted. But when such evidence is looked at in context with other related evidence, including uncontradicted and unimpeached testimony, the inference which the Government draws is seen not to be justified. In the first place the evidence shows that the right to the use of USG's patents covering the closed-edge gypsum board, a superior product cheaper to make and demanded by the trade, was needed by the other manufacturers. This is made to appear in greater detail in topic V of this opinion. The decision in the USG infringement suits against Bestwall and Beaver had, however, made it impossible for competitors of USG to manufacture the closed-edge board without infringing USG's patent rights. The trial court decision in USG's favor in the second suit was rendered on July 21, 1925. Recognizing the difficulty of Beaver's position and the approach of the time when a final judgment for large damages might be entered (the ultimate settlement with Beaver involved a $250,000 damage payment), Blagden made overtures to Avery to settle the litigation and at a meeting between them in December,

1925, Avery specified the terms upon which USG would settle as described in the statement of facts at the outset of this opinion. At the time of this discussion and offer of settlement on the basis later adopted for the USG-Beaver settlement Blagden did not have with him the memorandum, Exhibit 185—it had been in course of preparation by Blagden's lawyer; and there is no evidence that the subject matter in it was ever discussed by Blagden or Avery
8857 or that the memorandum was ever seen or its contents discussed by any other persons in the industry. Blagden testified that he did not discuss with Avery the matter of all companies' settling disputes and taking licenses. The evidence shows that Beaver settled its lawsuit and took a license without regard to the other companies. Blagden so testified, and he testified also that he had nothing to do with the taking of licenses by Universal in September, 1926, Atlantic in March, 1927, and Texas in April, 1927—and these were the only licenses which were executed while Blagden remained in the gypsum business; indeed, until after Certain-teed had taken over the Beaver company on January 20, 1928, and repudiated the USG-Beaver settlement and license. He testified that he left this business in 1928. In this early period USG had patent infringement suits against other gypsum board manufacturers—as appears in the statement of facts at the outside of this opinion—suits similar to that which had been prosecuted against Bestwall and Beaver. Except for USG, Beaver was the largest gypsum board manufacturer in the industry at the time and therefore the other companies were naturally interested in what Beaver was going to do about a settlement and license and what terms it would be able to get from USG. As Blagden put it, his company was regarded as the "guinea pig" of the industry. When other companies inquired about the USG-Beaver settlement and license, Blagden as a matter of course answered the inquiries and, since he disliked litigation and regarded the Beaver license as an advantageous contract because it permitted the manufacturer to supply the demand of the trade with a superior product at less cost, he usually recommended that the other companies settle and take a license. All this appears from his testimony. And it is in this context that he said that he suggested that the other companies "join up," and in the same context that he advised George M. Brown to take a license and get with the others the benefit of price stabilization.

In respect of Exhibit 189 (item (c)) and the "entente cordial," Blagden testified that he meant that the "bickering and squabbling and fighting" which had been going on between Beaver and USG was over upon the signing of the license agreement, and that the two companies were again friendly; that the phrase "entente cordial" was merely his expression in respect of the better feeling that probably would result from the settlement and license; and that by "if we play the game right" he meant only living up to the license agreement and obeying the published prices of USG and that in this respect he was referring only to Beaver's agreement with USG.

The Government stresses Griswold's letter to Avery of October 15, 1926, Exhibit 123 (item (e)), referring to a committee from American which expected "to meet with all other Manufacturers of board who have not yet signed 8858 the License Agreement: * * * with the object in view of getting united action," and Avery's reply stating that he would be interested in hearing from Griswold after the meeting, Exhibit 124 (item (f)), and the letter of January 3, 1927, in which Griswold wrote Avery that he had started out "to deliver 100 per cent of the manufacturers of board that would be willing to sign up on a license agreement with your company," Exhibit 132 (item (g)), and the letter of March 24, 1927, from Griswold to Williams of National referring to Texas' "decision to join in our proposition so they will become one of the group which we are merging" and that with Atlantic which had signed and Certain-teed which was considering coming in and National that "will make it 100% with all manufacturers who will be operating under the license agreement," Exhibit 136b (item (h)), and Griswold's statement in a letter of April 9, 1927, to Gloyd advising that National would file application and that with American and Certain-teed whose application would be considered by Avery, that "will make the matter one hundred percent," Exhibit 157 (item (o)). But again when these items of evidence are looked at in the context of other related items it is seen that they do not prove that the defendants associated themselves together in a plan to blanket the industry under licenses. In the first place the correspondence between Griswold and Avery in the fall of 1926 and the early part of 1927 indicates that, while Griswold discussed the matter of a license agreement with various gypsum board manufacturers, some of the companies, including Griswold's own company, American, told him that they were not satisfied with the license offered and that USG refused to make any concessions from the terms of the settlement and license which had been given to Beaver and Universal. This especially appears from Exhibits 123 through 135 and Exhibit 191. Avery made clear that he would not change the terms which he had announced at the time of the Beaver settlement and license. As he said in Exhibit 134, a letter of February 2, 1927, to Griswold, "I can hold out no encouragement to you for any change in our position." Thus there was no unanimity. Next it is made clear by Griswold's testimony that he was not an agent of emissary of Avery's. His statements to this effect were categorical and convincing. They have been referred to in topic V of this opinion. Griswold testified that he had nothing to do with the taking of the Universal and Texas licenses and nothing to do with the taking of Atlantic's license except to answer Atlantic's questions with respect to the process of manufacture of wallboard, advising that if Atlantic was going into the board business it was best to make the closed-edge board, if Atlantic could reach an agreement with Avery, and sending Atlantic a copy of the USG license. Still further, it is to be noted that the Government's emphasis of the items just mentioned leaves out of account Griswold's interest in a merger. Throughout the period of time covered by these items Griswold was working on a merger of American and most if not all of 8859 the other manufacturers except USG, the merged company to take a license, and the evidence convincingly indicates that at all times the thing which was uppermost in Griswold's mind was the success of this merger. He makes continual reference to the subject throughout his correspondence, including Exhibit 157 and Exhibit 136b above referred to. The evidence fails to show that either Avery or USG had anything to do with the origination of this venture. It was Griswold's enterprise. But Griswold knew that his plan for a merger could not be consummated with outstanding infringement suits and the existence of a very real possibility of judgments for infringement damages against some or all of the proposed constituent companies. Griswold's testimony shows that he had a firm conviction that a gypsum board manufacturer must make a closed-edge board in order satisfactorily to continue in business. This made it imperative that he remain in a position to obtain a license for his merged company. His testimony also indicates that he believed that the litigation and bad feeling throughout the industry would bring about increasing bitterness and turmoil and eventually result in price wars and chaotic conditions generally. It is fairly inferable also from his testimony and the circumstances that he was not without hope that he might get special concessions in connection with USG's damage claims against his own company by giving Avery the impression that he was promoting USG's interests. The amount Avery first had in mind, according to the evidence, for infringement damages to be paid by Beaver, was a million dollars. Especially in respect of Exhibit 136b, Griswold testified that when he wrote it he had talked to Williams as to the possibility of National's becoming part of his contemplated merger. Therefore what he meant by "our position" and "make it 100%" in this letter, and by the phrase "deliver 100 per cent" in Exhibit 132, and by "united action" in Exhibit 123, was the getting of all of the companies other than USG into his proposed merger. Obviously Griswold recognized that this would settle the unpleasant and expensive litigation, or, as he put it in Exhibit 136b, do away "with the legal complications which have existed in the past and which are so unpleasant as well as expensive."

As evidencing a plan to blanket the industry under licenses the Government refers to the testimony of Holland that he suggested to Griswold in 1928 that American ought to take a USG license like Universal's (item (j)), to the letter of January 7, 1929, in which Holland suggested to Haggerty of National that an effort should be made to hold another meeting of those interested in the board situation and that American could not hope to gain by delaying the settlement, Exhibit 204 (item (k)), to Haggerty's reply indicating that in his view the chief value in a meeting would be to discuss whether or not the other four board makers who were outside the license agreement would 8860 think it advantageous to go in without American, Exhibit 205 (item (r)), to Holland's letter of January 12, 1929, telling Haggerty if he and the others interested in the settlement of the wallboard controversy "bring enough pressure to bear on the American crowd" something can be done, Exhibit 206 (item (l)), and to Holland's testimony that he "kept trying to talk these people [other manufacturers] into taking a license" (item (m)). But these items of evidence when looked at in connection with other related evidence in the case are seen not to indicate such a plan, but to involve Holland's interest in accomplishing a merger of his own. Holland became president of Universal early in 1928. The evidence shows that he regarded closed-edge board as a product much superior to the open-edge variety. He was struggling to keep Universal out of receivership and he recognized that the future of the company was endangered by the chaotic conditions in the industry, which he attributed primarily to the litigation and dissension. His testimony shows that he sought to save Universal from bankruptcy through an attempted merger of various of the smaller manufacturers, and that the merger proposal had been promoted by New York underwriters. Holland's testimony shows that his interest in this merger was solely on account of his own company. It appears also that he sought to clear up the litigation in the industry, and that, thinking that the closed-edge board was a better product, he would have liked to have all the companies making that variety of board rather than the open-edge which was giving wallboard generally "a black eye"—in Holland's language; that is to say, he was interested in promoting better conditions so far as marketability of gypsum board was concerned in order to help his company as well as the other manufacturers out of their unfortunate financial situation due to the litigation and the price war. In view of Holland's interest in a merger and in improvement of the condition of his own company, his comments in Exhibit 204 in respect of the desirability of holding another meeting and American's delaying the settlement, and in Exhibit 206 concerning bringing pressure to bear upon American, are understandable and it is clear that they have no reference to an alleged USG plan to blanket the industry under patent licenses. Holland testified that he was at no time a representative of USG and that he never had an understanding or agreement with USG or with anyone in that company that he would promote any plan looking toward the licensing of all of the industry under price fixing agreements. Indeed, it appears that he found Avery on several occasions when he talked with him in 1928 and 1929 somewhat disinclined to discuss the matter of settlement and license—"a very hard man to reach, he rather ignored me most of the time in my efforts to bring about a discussion." Holland stated further, categorically, that whatever he did during this period 1928-1929 in connection with license agreements he did on behalf of the Universal company or himself and no one else, except possibly in respect of his proposed merger in which of course other companies would be involved.

8861 As evidencing a common plan or enterprise to blanket the industry under licenses and stabilize prices, the Government refers to the letter of May 12, 1926, written by Griswold of American to McCrady of the same company stating that Blagden had had interviews with Avery in respect of settlement of disputes and litigation between the wallboard manufacturers by a licensing arrangement and that "According to the plans we have we figure that there is a possibility of us holding the price steady on wall board for the next fourteen or fifteen years," Exhibit 104 (item (i)). But Griswold testified that when he wrote that letter he assumed that USG would fix prices under the Birdsey patent which had issued in 1920 and had therefore, out of twenty years to run (Griswold's understanding of the life of a patent), fourteen years remaining, and Griswold said that he figured that if "the different parties" took out a license agreement with USG and the law gave USG the right to establish the price at which a licensee could sell the product, the price of wallboard would remain fairly stationary unless disturbed by competition of other products. But he testified further that he did not mean by the statement in the letter to McCrady that he had any understanding with Avery or anyone else that price control would be extended under some patent after the expiration of the Utzman patent; that he never had any discussion with Avery or anyone else about Avery's finding some patent other than the Utzman patent to give a longer price control, his understanding being that the price control would end at the expiration of the patent. Griswold testified also that the reference in this letter to holding the price steady was his own statement, not Blagden's. Blagden testified that he did not discuss with Avery the matter of all companies' settling disputes by taking licenses, and that he did not have a plan for holding the price steady for fourteen or fifteen years.

The testimony of Griswold to the effect that George M. Brown of Certain-teed had said that if all the other manufacturers, or certain of them, took out a license he might consider it but that he felt that Certain-teed's competitors, especially Ebsary, should also be licensed (item (n)), is apparently relied upon by the Government as evidencing an insistence on the part of Certain-teed that all in the industry must be licensed. But Certain-teed's license when executed was not conditioned, under the evidence, upon any other manufacturer's taking a license. Moreover, Griswold testified that at no time did National, Certain-teed, Ebsary and Niagara agree with one another that they would take out a license. Whittemore of Certain-teed testified, as has been pointed out in topic V of this opinion, that the decision which he and George M. Brown and the management of Certain-teed made to settle with USG and take a license had nothing to do with any other company in the business, and that Certain-teed took the license 8862 because it desired to manufacture the Utzman closed-edge board and also to get rid of the possibility of future litigation. George M. Brown testified in respect of taking the May 1929 license that Certain-teed "had determined * * * to go ahead with it without regard to what other companies did about it." Indeed, Brown testified that "we didn't care what others did, and we would have preferred, if we could have had the say about it, that some of them shouldn't have the right to make it, because we didn't think they would respect the obligations that we had to respect." Brown thought that some of Certain-teed's competitors "if they took licenses, would not respect the price which United States Gypsum fixed" and that that "would be annoying."

The recital in the minutes of the May 14, 1929, directors' meeting of National of the chairman's statement that he had been "informed that all other manufacturers of gypsum products * * * except * * * American had agreed to sign the license contract in substantially the form submitted to this Board," and the resolution authorizing execution of a license agreement with USG in the form submitted, Exhibit 198 (item (p)), are equivocal. It is without dispute that the various companies were at about this time considering the May 1929 licenses. It is no more inferable from these minutes that the various (prospective) licensees had agreed with each other to sign the license contract with USG than it is that they had agreed severally with USG to do so. Moreover the chairman's statement recited in the minutes is mere narrative.

The Government urges that the telegram of May 17, 1929, in which Baker of National advised Avery that National was "working with Ebsary with hope of everybody being set by Saturday to justify your calling meeting all board makers Monday if you like," and that Reeb of Niagara was ready, Exhibit 716 (item (q)), and the admission in Ebsary's answer that prior to the Chicago meeting of May 22, 1929, Ebsary had conferred with others concerning the contemplated license and that Ebsary and USG and others had met and discussed the granting by USG of a license (item (s)), and the testimony of Lenci that he went to the May, 1929, meeting in Chicago pursuant to a previous arrangement (item (t)); and the fact that Channing attended the Chicago meeting notwithstanding the fact that Atlantic was already a licensee (item (u))—all tend to evidence that the Chicago meeting was prearranged. It seems not to be disputed by the defendants that this meeting was prearranged. But this is not necessarily evidence of an association of National, Certain-teed, Ebsary and Niagara in a common plan or enterprise to blanket the entire gypsum industry with licenses and stabilize prices. Under the evidence every company in the industry was interested in settlement or avoidance of litigation and in securing a right to make the closed-edge board, and each company 8863 which contemplated taking a license was interested, in view of the "most favored nation" clause in the contracts already executed, i.e., the 1926-1927 contracts, to see that the others got no better terms. This may well account for the attendance of Channing at the May, 1929, meeting. Moreover, each of the companies contemplating taking licenses would naturally be interested in attending the meeting in order to know whether the others were going to settle with USG. But Lenci testified that there was no general understanding at the Chicago meeting, and that so far as he knew the other (prospective) licensees each determined to take a license before going to Chicago. He testified also that Ebsary's conclusion to take a license was reached independently, without regard to what other companies would or would not do. Whittemore testified that notwithstanding the fact that representatives of other companies were in attendance at the May, 1929, meeting, Certain-teed made its agreement with USG independently, that the Certain-teed negotiations were conducted with USG individually, and that there was no agreement or understanding or concerted action of any kind among the manufacturers.

VIII

Authorities Relied upon by the Government

The Government especially relies in the substantive aspects of the case upon United States v. Masonite Corp., 316 U. S. 265 (1942), rehearing denied, 316 U. S. 713 (1942);

Interstate Circuit v. United States, 306 U. S. 208 (1939); Standard Sanitary Mfg. Co. v. United States, 226 U. S. 20 (1912); and American Equipment Co. v. Tuthill, 69 F. (2d) 406 (C. C. A. 7th, 1934). These cases have been briefly mentioned in various contexts in previous topics of this opinion, but will now be discussed at greater length.

In the American Equipment case the American Equipment Company, owner of a patent upon a mechanical brick handler used to move small quantities of brick from car to kiln and kiln to car but which did not affect the shape, size, quality or color of the brick, an unpatented product, granted a license for its use to brick manufacturers who made 90% of the brick used in the Chicago area. The patent owner assigned each licensee a production quota and instituted a royalty of a given price per thousand of brick made and delivered from the licensee's yard; but if the quota was either exceeded or not reached a substantial penalty royalty upon the amount of the deviation was added. Prior to the establishment of this license and quota system the price of brick in the Chicago area had varied from $3.75 to $10 per thousand; thereafter it was stabilized, remaining for one ten year period at $12, notwithstanding wide and continual fluctuation in the price of brick materials. During a period of twenty-one years the various licensees complied 8864 with the quota or paid the penalty for deviation. But during the succeeding two year period one licensee (Tuthill Building Material Company), although it sold brick much in excess of its quota, paid only the quota royalty, and the patent owner brought an accounting suit for the penalty royalty due upon the brick which exceeded the quota. Recovery was denied upon the ground that the parties to the licenses had, by means of the rigid limitation upon output, fixed prices upon an unpatented product and that such price fixing, not the use of the brick handling machine, was the dominant purpose of the license agreements. The Circuit Court of Appeals approved the doctrine of the General Electric case but held it not applicable.

The distinction between the American Equipment case on the one hand and the General Electric case and the instant case on the other is obvious. The General Electric case warrants price control by the owner of a product patent in order that he may secure the pecuniary reward of his patent monopoly. There is a normal relation between that reward and restriction upon the licensee's selling price, for unless that price can be controlled by the patent owner the latter's profit in making and selling the patented product may be destroyed. In the American Equipment case the patent was upon a machine, not a product, and the price was fixed, through the limitation of output, upon the brick, an unpatented product; and this was the dominant purpose of the licensing arrangements. In view of the limitation upon output there was no normal relation between the control of the price of brick and the securing of the reward of the machine patent monopoly; the patent licenses were, therefore, in a broad sense, subterfuge. In the instant case the patents upon which the licenses were principally founded are product patents; USG, the patent owner, was itself a manufacturer and seller of the patented product, and the price control was upon the sale price of that product when also made and sold by the licensees. The purpose of USG in granting the licenses was to settle infringement litigation, collect infringement damages, secure royalties, and protect its own profit in the manufacture and sale of the patented product; the purpose of the licensees in accepting licenses was to settle or avoid litigation and obtain the right to make the superior product demanded by the trade. These purposes were legitimate. If the licensees, or some of them, also anticipated and desired the benefit of a stabilized price, that was not wrongful because a stabilized price would be the normal economic consequence of the exercise of USG's right as patent owner to protect its own profit by price control.

In respect of the Masonite, Interstate Circuit and Standard Sanitary cases: None of these cases purports to overrule the Bement or General Electric cases (the Standard Sanitary case was decided after the Bement case but before the General Electric decision). Hence, unless the instant case on the one hand and the Bement and General Electric cases on the other are distinguishable—and it is 8865 demonstrated in topic II of this opinion that they are not—these three cases, Masonite, Interstate Circuit and Standard Sanitary, cannot require a result in the instant case different from that which we reach. And each of the three cases is distinguishable on its facts from the instant case and the Bement and General Electric cases.

The Standard Sanitary case: in that case one Wayman, a defendant, but not himself a manufacturer, on condition of the elimination of unpatented hard enameled "seconds," secured from Standard Sanitary and other manufacturers options upon process patents for enameling iron sanitary utensils. A committee of six, including Wayman and five manufacturers' representatives, worked out, to be incorporated in license contracts, a plan for manufacturers' prices and jobbers' and dealers' resale prices. Under the plan the manufacturers were not to sell jobbers who did not also take a license and submit to a price schedule. Royalties were a given sum per day for furnace use, but 80% was returnable as "cash bail" if a licensee abided by all of the provisions of its license. Having obtained approval of this plan by a sufficient number in the industry, Wayman exercised his options, became the owner of the patents, and issued the licenses as planned. Eighty-five percent of the manufacturers and ninety percent of the jobbers were parties to the arrangements. In answer to a charge that these arrangements were in violation of the Sherman Act, it was sought to justify them under the Bement case and upon the ground that an undue number of the (unpatented) seconds were being produced, with consequent harm to the reputation of the superior patented product and to the consumer—since the seconds were "palmed off" as not defective. The seconds were said to be "discrediting the ware and demoralizing the market and business." The Court held that the licensing arrangements were illegal. Quoting from the Bement case, it recognized that the Sherman Act "'clearly does not refer to that kind of a restraint of interstate commerce which may arise from reasonable and legal conditions imposed upon the assignee or licensee of a patent by the owner thereof, restricting the terms upon which the article may be used and the price to be demanded therefor. Such a construction of the act we have no doubt was never contemplated by its framers.'" (226 U. S. at 40) But the Court held that the Wayman license agreements "transcended what was necessary to protect the use of the patent or the monopoly which the law conferred upon it. They passed to the purpose and accomplished a restraint of trade condemned by the Sherman law. * * *" (226 U. S. at 48)

The case is distinguishable from the Bement, General Electric and instant cases. The price control in the Standard Sanitary case did not bear a normal relation to protection, or even to exploitation, of the patent monopoly 8866 in Wayman, for the prices were not fixed by him but by a committee of manufacturers' representatives of which he (not a manufacturer) was but one of six, and the royalties were to be 80% rebated if the license terms were complied with. Therefore, as in the American Equipment case, the licenses were, broadly, subterfuge. In the Bement,

General Electric and instant cases the price control was normally adapted to the protection of the patent rights of the several licensors since they were themselves manufacturers and sellers of the patented product. Moreover, in the Standard Sanitary case the license arrangements extended to the unpatented seconds and to the resale prices of jobbers and dealers on the patented product. As we have demonstrated in topic VI, there was no control of unpatented materials or of resale prices in the instant case; and there was none in the Bement or General Electric cases.

The Interstate Circuit case: The trial court in that case found that distributors of copyrighted moving picture films had entered into a contract with each other and with, and at the instance of, exhibitors who operated first run theatres —and who dominated the motion picture business in the territory where their theatres were located—providing that the distributors' licenses granted second run theatres in the same territory should restrict the licensees from exhibiting at a lower admission price than 25¢ and from running double features. The Supreme Court held this finding supported by evidence and the contract a violation of the Sherman Act. The decision was reached in part upon the holding in Straus v. American Publishers' Ass'n, 231 U. S. 222 (1913), and Paramount Famous Lasky Corp. v. United States, 282 U. S. 30 (1930), that competing distributors may not lawfully agree to limit their individual freedom of action by a contract binding them, in the marketing of their superior copyrighted product, to do business with their customers in uniform manner—in the Straus case by selling books only to those who would maintain resale prices, in the Paramount case by using a standard form of film license contract with exhibitors providing for compulsory arbitration of disputes. The Court distinguished the Bement and General Electric cases, saying: "Appellants argue that the distributors were free to license the films for exhibition subject to the restrictions, just as a patentee in a license to manufacture and sell the patented article may fix the price at which the licensee may sell it. Bement v. National Harrow Co., 186 U. S. 70; United States v. General Electric Co., 272 U. S. 476. That the parallel is not complete is obvious. Because a patentee has power to control the price at which his licensee may sell the patented article, it does not follow that the owner of a copyright can dictate that other pictures may not be shown with the licensed film or the admission price which shall be paid for an entertainment which includes features other than the particular 8867 picture licensed. Cf. Motion Picture Patents Co. v. Universal Film Mfg. Co., 243 U. S. 502; Carbice Corporation v. American Patents Development Corp., 283 U. S. 27; Leitch Manufacturing Co. v. Barber Co., 302 U. S. 458." (306 U. S. at 228) But the Court held it was not necessary "to pass upon these or related questions" because granting that "each distributor, in the protection of his own copyright monopoly, was free to impose the present restrictions upon his licensees * * * they were not free to use their copyrights as implements from restraining commerce in order to protect" a first run exhibitor's picture theatre monopoly "by suppressing competition with it" by the second run theatres. (306 U. S. at 228.)

The case is distinguishable from the Bement, General Electric and instant cases: In the Interstate Circuit case the price and double feature restrictions of the license contracts with the second run exhibitors were not purposed to secure to the distributor-copyright-owners the pecuniary reward of their copyright monopolies, because they were not themselves exhibitors of pictures; the restrictions were intended, as said by the Court, to suppress the competition of the second run theatres against the first run exhibitors. Whereas in the Bement, General Electric and instant cases the price restrictions in the several license agreements were for the protection of the patent monopoly of the respective licensors, and were not purposed to suppress competition between the licensees and third parties. Even assuming a general agreement between USG and its (prospective) licensees that the several license contracts should be executed, the net result of all of the individual license agreements when executed would not exceed the right of USG to fix the prices at which the patented product should be sold by any or all in the industry who made it under USG patents; as said in topic VI of this opinion, the totality of illegal restraint would be none. Moreover, as also stated in topic VII, we find in the instant case no general agreement.

The Masonite case: The Masonite Corporation owned patents on a product known as "hardboard" and itself manufactured and sold the same. It constituted competing manufacturers of building materials its del credere "agents" for the vending of hardboard, through their respective sales organizations, at prices and under terms and conditions fixed by Masonite and to be followed by it. Masonite also agreed to issue to the "agents" at their request "a license to manufacture and sell hard boards" under its patents upon specified terms and conditions and for a cash consideration, but this option was not exercised by the "agents." The Court, treating the "agencies" for the purpose of the decision as bona fide del credere agencies, nevertheless held that the form in which the parties chose to cast the transaction was not to govern and that the "agency" ar-8868 rangements in reality presented a Bloomer v. McQuewan,[58] Addms v. Burke,[59] Hobbie v. Jennison[60] pattern wherein when a patented product "'passes to the hands of the purchaser, it is no longer within the limits of the monopoly. It passes outside of it, and is no longer under the protection of the act of Congress.'" (316 U. S. at 278, quoting from 14 How. at 549) The Court said:

> * * * Doubtless there is a proper area for utilization by a patentee of a del credere agent in the sale or disposition of the patented article. A patentee who employs such an agent to distribute his product certainly is not enlarging the scope of his patent privilege if it may fairly be said that that distribution is part of the patentee's own business and operates only to secure to him the reward for his invention which Congress has provided. But where he utilizes the sales organization of another business—a business with which he has no intimate relationship—quite different problems are posed since such a regimentation of a marketing system is peculiarly susceptible to the restraints of trade which the Sherman Act condemns. And when it is clear, as it is in this case, that the marketing systems utilized by means of the del credere agency agreements are those of competitors of the patentee, and that the purpose is to fix prices at which the competitors may market the product, the device is, without more, an enlargement of the limited patent privilege and a violation of the Sherman Act. In such a case the patentee exhausts his limited privilege when he disposes of the product to the del credere agent. He then has, so far as the Sherman Act is concerned, no greater rights to price maintenance than the owner of an unpatented commodity would have. Dr. Miles Medical Co. v. John D. Parks & Sons Co., 220 U. S. 373. * * * [316 U. S. at 279-80.]

The Court distinguished the decision in the first part of the General Electric case by saying that the Court thought in that case that the purpose and effect of the marketing plan were to secure to the patentee only a reward for his invention, but that that was not true in the Masonite case. In respect of the decision in the second part of the General Electric case, the Court said: "We do not have here any question as to the validity of a license to manufacture and sell, since none of the 'agents' exercised its option to acquire such a license from Masonite. Hence we need not reach the problems presented by Bement v. National Harrow Co., 186 U. S. 70, and that part of the General Electric case which dealt with the license to Westinghouse Company. Rather, we are concerned here only with a license to vend. * * *" (316 U. S. at 277.)

60 149 U. S. 355 (1893).

The distinctions thus taken by the Court as to the Bement and General Electric cases are valid in respect of the instant case (as they must be if, as we hold, the instant case parallels those two cases). In the instant case, as in the Bement and General Electric cases, the patent owner USG, although a manufacturer and seller of gypsum board, is not one that sells through the sales organizations of its competitors; although it manufactures board, it does its own selling. It is to be noted further that horizontal operation of price control is necessarily implied in the ruling in the General Electric case that the owner of a product patent may grant a license to manufacture and sell with restrictions upon the licensee's price, for one who takes and operates under such a license will ipso facto be a competitor.

IX

Conclusion

In the previous topics we have discussed with particularity the evidence and the contentions of the parties in respect of the issues of fact and law in the instant case, and have set forth in some detail the reasons for the decision which we reach. This has required an extended opinion. The case may now be summarized.

The complaint of the Government charges violations of Sections 1, 2 and 3 of the Sherman Act and seeks, under Section 4, an injunction. It alleges that the defendants are parties to contracts in restraint of trade and commerce, and that they have combined and conspired to restrain, and have attempted to monopolize and have monopolized, trade and commerce in gypsum products, by means of the execution of sham patent licenses granted by the defendant USG and accepted by the other defendants and designed only to give color of legality to the combination and conspiracy charged. It alleges that the defendants have combined and conspired to fix prices upon gypsum board and upon miscellaneous gypsum products made and sold by them, to standardize such board and its method of production, to eliminate jobbers from the distribution of gypsum products, and to induce manufacturing distributors to resell at prices fixed by the defendants gypsum board purchased from them, and it is alleged that these unlawful purposes were effectuated. All of this is asserted to have taken place in interstate commerce in the "Eastern area" of the United States, comprising, roughly, all of the states east of the Rocky Mountains, and the state of Wyoming and a part of the state of Montana. The defendants admit the execution of patent licenses to make, use and sell gypsum board under terms and conditions, including minimum prices, to be established by USG, and admit that they sold such board under such terms and conditions; but they assert that this is legitimate under the patent laws. In respect of the charge of monopoly the defendants do not deny that they make and sell substantially all of the gypsum board in the "Eastern area," but they assert that to the extent that they have a "monopoly" upon the production and sale of such board it is legitimatized by the patent laws and the license agreements. They deny that the licenses were sham or that they were entered into to disguise an illegal combination. They deny all of the other charges. The defendants rely upon the Bement and General Electric cases. The Government relies principally upon the Standard Sanitary, Masonite, Interstate Circuit and American Equipment cases. At the close of presentation of evidence by the Government the defendants moved to dismiss under Rule 41 (b) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. This is the frame of the case in its substantive aspects.

In the adjective aspects of the case: The Government urges that on motions to dismiss under Rule 41 (b) 8870 and despite the absence of a jury the court must determine only whether the case presented is sufficient to submit to a jury, and if so put the defendants to their proof. The defendants contend that the court is to weigh the evidence and if it finds it insufficient render judgment of dismissal on the merits. The Government contends that the burden is upon the defendants by way of confession and avoidance to justify under the patent licenses the restraints of trade charged. The defendants urge that the burden of proving lack of bona fides in the license agreements is upon the Government. On these two issues we sustain the contentions of the defendants. (Topics I and III.) The defendants have moved to strike certain declarations of alleged co-conspirators received in evidence subject to connection by proof, independent of the declarations, of the existence of the conspiracy charged. The Government contends that such proof has been made, the defendants that it has not. We hold that there is no evidence independent of the declarations of the conspiracy charged and that the motions to strike are therefore well taken. (Topic IV.)

On the substantive side of the case and in respect of the law: The Bement and General Electric cases sanction price fixing by a patent owner on sales of a patented product by one or more licensees if—as in those cases—the terms and conditions of the licenses are reasonably adapted to securing the rewards of the patent monopoly, and if—as in those cases—the licenses are bona fide. We think that the Bement and General Electric cases and the instant case are substantially parallel on their facts so far as the nature of the patents upon which the licenses were founded, the terms and conditions of the license agreements, and the extent of control of manufacture and sale of the respective products are concerned; and we hold therefore that the licensing arrangements, including price fixing, in the instant case are lawful unless the licenses were sham. (Topic II.) This leaves for determination two principal questions of fact, one, were the licenses sham or were they bona fide; the others, were the operations of the defendants carried beyond the license terms, i.e., beyond the proper limits of the USG patent monopoly, or were they not. We hold, weighing the evidence, and whether the declarations of the alleged co-conspirators be considered, because not connected, as binding only upon the declarants, or whether they be considered as binding upon all, that the evidence fails to show the licenses sham—on the contrary shows that they are bona fide—and fails to show that the operations of the defendants went beyond the proper limits of the USG patent monopoly. We hold that the evidence shows no improper standardization of gypsum board, no price fixing on plaster and miscellaneous gypsum products, no elimination of jobbers, no fixing of the prices at which manufacturing distributors sold gypsum board purchased from the defendants.

The evidence shows price fixing by USG on board
8871 manufactured and sold by the defendants, but we hold that since the licenses are bona fide this is sanctioned by the Bement and General Electric decisions. (Topics V, VI and VII.) We think the Standard Sanitary, Masonite, Interstate Circuit and American Equipment cases distinguishable from the instant case and the Bement and General Electric cases. (Topic VIII.)

In respect of a special contention of the Government that the evidence shows a plan participated in by the defendants "to blanket" the industry under patent licenses and stabilize prices and that this is illegal: We hold that even if proof of such a plan be assumed, arguendo, the contention as to its illegality cannot be sustained in the absence of sham licenses and an intent to accomplish objectives beyond the proper limits of the patent monopoly. But we hold also that the evidence fails to prove that the defendants associated themselves in a common plan to execute patent licenses and stabilize prices. (Topic VII.)

It is apparent upon a review of the record in this case that the licensing arrangements which are the subject of the action, rather than being part of a scheme to circumvent the Sherman Act, were entered into as the result of a confluence of certain legal and economic factors. During the period from 1912 to 1937, that is, from the development and patenting of the Utzman closed-edge board to the execution of the Kelley perforated lath license, the last of the so-called subordinate contracts, USG was, or became, the owner of patents or patent applications covering gypsum products whose superior qualities gave that company a substantial competitive advantage over other manufacturers. These patents were, notably, including those for the Utzman closed-edge board and for the process and the machine for making it, the Birdsey partially closed-edge board patent, the Roos foam or bubble board patents, the starch board patents of Hite and Haggerty, and the Roos metallized board and perforated lath patents. The products covered by these patents eliminated trimming and wastage, lightened the board for handling and freight, made unnecessary the use of the unsatisfactory sawdust aggregate in board, solved the "peeler" problem, provided a thermal insulating element, and satisfied fire regulations. In short they accomplished modern mechanized high speed gypsum board production. The trade demanded these superior products. Without the right to make, use and sell them the manufacturers other than USG would be distinctly disadvantaged. In this situation copying commenced. USG showed a determination to protect its patents in the courts, and in the litigation against Bestwall and Beaver in the early nineteen twenties in respect of the Utzman product and process patents it succeeded in doing so. After the decisions favorable to USG in that litigation closed-edge board could not be manufactured and sold by others 8872 without infringement of USG's rights. Also, in 1926, USG secured judicial affirmance of an award of priority for its Birdsey patent, over Clark. USG sued American for infringement of both the Utzman closed-edge and the Birdsey partially closed-edge patents; sued Universal for infringement of the Utzman patents and made a claim against it for infringement of the Birdsey patent; filed two suits against National; and served upon Niagara a notice of infringement. This litigation extended to 1928, when the second suit against National was filed. The manufacturers other than USG must, it was now obvious, in view of the trade demand, either copy and litigate, themselves devise successfully competitive products, cut prices on inferior products, such as open-edge board, at business loss, or pay damages (those that had infringed) and take licenses. USG was willing, upon terms of payment of damages (where infringement had occurred), acknowledgment of the validity of its patents, payment of royalties and the right in USG to fix the prices on gypsum board made and sold under the licenses, to grant licenses. The Supreme Court had in the General Electric case in 1926, confirming the ruling of the Bement case in 1902, recognized licensing and price control under the patent laws, notwithstanding the Sherman Act. In the foregoing situation, various of the expedients or alternatives open to the manufacturers other than USG were availed of. Beaver, Universal, Atlantic and Texas in the early period 1926-1927 took licenses and made the closed-edge board, Beaver and Universal paying damages. National and American both suffered the litigation. Some of the companies, eventually all, cut prices—in the price war of 1927-1929—with distressing results. Universal fell into receivership. American attempted to develop a competitive product in the semi-protected edge board of Clark, but this failed in the interference proceeding in which priority was awarded to Birdsey. After the two years of price war, Certain-teed, National, Ebsary and Niagara were ready for licenses. They needed the closed-edge board;

they desired to settle or avoid litigation; they anticipated a price advance under USG bulletins. Certain-teed, believing that it could continue to press the open-edge board upon the trade, had long been unwilling to take a license with price control. But the trade demanded the closed-edge board. Certain-teed, moreover, had a million dollar overhanging bond in a suit brought by USG to compel Certain-teed to assume the liabilities of Beaver under its settlement and license, Certain-teed having purchased the assets of Beaver. National settled the two infringement suits pending against it, paying damages. Ebsary found it extremely hard to sell the open-edge board and therefore took a license. Niagara disposed of USG's claim against it by taking a license and paying damages. These were the so-called May 1929 licenses.

USG then offered licenses under the Roos foam board patent applications to its outstanding licensees. Discussions concerning the advantages and disadvantages 8873 of this board and negotiations in respect of the offered licenses followed. Universal, though it took a license under the Utzman patents in 1926, had acquired the Hite and Haggerty starch patents, and there had been copying. It secured a judgment against National in 1927 establishing the validity of the Haggerty patent. In the summer of 1929 Universal claimed that USG, in the use of starch in its board to obtain adhesion between core and liners, was infringing. Universal now, in order to obtain funds with which to get out of receivership, sold the Hite and Haggerty patents to USG. After USG thus became the owner of these starch patents, one of which had been validated, and included them in its offer, licenses were, between October, 1929, and February, 1937, accepted by Niagara, Certain-teed, National, Ebsary, Atlantic, Universal, American, Kelley and Texas. American had attempted to get more favorable license terms than the other companies and had, as said above, attempted to develop, for competition with the closed-edge board, the semi-protected edge board of Clark. But USG's pending suit against American for infringement of the Birdsey partially closed-edge patent, once postponed, but reinstated, had by now, the summer of 1929, been decided in favor of USG; and the USG Utzman patent infringement suit against American was still pending. American renewed its efforts at concessions, but finally in November, 1929, and on the terms originally offered by USG at the time of the Beaver license, settled the outstanding suits and took a license from

USG, paying damages. The Texas license was the last of what have been called the November 1929 contracts, under the Roos foam patent applications, the Hite and Haggerty starch patents, and others.

Finally the perforated lath and metallized board licenses were offered by USG. The licensees needed these products to be competitive and in 1934-1935 National, Kelley, Certain-teed, Atlantic, American, Universal and Ebsary took the metallized board licenses; and in 1936-1937 Certain-teed, American, Ebsary and Kelley signed the perforated lath contracts. Thus over a period of eleven years, 1926-1937, the licensing arrangements in the instant case were completed.

In this running account of the development of the licensing arrangements is seen the operation of legal and economic factors which naturally, if not, indeed, inevitably, brought the arrangements about—the superiority of the products to which USG had patents, the validation of patents in the courts in favor of USG and Universal, the difficulties of litigation actual and threatened, the demand of the trade for the superior products, price cutting, the failure, except in the case of Universal, which sold its patents to USG, to develop competing products, the force of the Bement and General Electric rulings, and finally the decision of USG, under those cases, to share its patent monopoly. We think it clear, in the light of these factors 8874 which were operating upon the industry over the years in question, that the licenses were not a part of a scheme to restrain trade in violation of law by subterfuge as charged, but the result of a choice by the manufacturers other than USG to follow under bona fide licenses the pathway recognized by the Supreme Court, i.e., to accept licenses subject to price control. All that was done, including the intra- and inter-company discussions of the advantages and disadvantages of licensing, and including the negotiations for licenses, was necessarily incident to the granting and acceptance of a plurality of patent licenses.

In view of the parallel between the General Electric and Bement cases and the instant case, and in view of the failure of proof that the licenses were sham or that the operations of the defendants went beyond the proper limits of the USG patent monopoly, the case of the Government is reduced to the contention that a plurality of licenses is wrongful—that under the Bement and General Electric cases but a single license may be granted with price fixing provisions. In respect of this we reiterate that it would be an irrational fixation to construe the Bement and General Electric decisions as limiting licensing with price fixing restrictions to a single licensee, since the public is equally excluded and equally subjected to the patent owner's price whether there is no licensee, one licensee, or more. If USG had granted no licenses, all of the patented board would then have been made and sold by USG at its own price, and without competition in sales service. In the instant case if all but one license were stricken down, upon the theory that a plurality is wrongful, USG and the single licensee would then make and sell all of the patented product at the prices determined by USG. The extent of the monopoly is not altered by its division. In the General Electric case there was a plurality of licenses. While only the Westinghouse license contained a price restriction, the group of licenses granted by General Electric to Westinghouse and its other licensees contemplated a prorating of business between the licensor and all of the licensees, and included also type restrictions. Prorating and type restrictions are, as fully as price fixing, violations of the Sherman Act in the absence of legitimatizing patents. There was a plurality of licenses in the Standard Sanitary case and also in the Interstate Circuit case, but the holding in those cases that the licensing arrangements violated the Sherman Act was not upon that ground. The same is true of the American Equipment case.

Although, for the reasons set out in topic IV, we consider as well taken the defendants' motions to strike the declarations which were received in evidence subject to connection, it is not necessary formally to rule upon those motions. Since we have considered the declarations both as binding upon the declarants alone and as binding upon all 8875 of the alleged co-conspirators, the exhibits and testimony received subject to connection may remain in the record.

The motions to dismiss the Government's complaint will be granted. Counsel for the defendants will prepare, serve upon the Government and present to the court proposed findings of fact, conclusions of law and judgment of dismissal upon the merits.

I am authorized to state that Judges Garrett and Jackson concur in this opinion.

8876 IN DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES FOR THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA
Civil Action No. 8017

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, plaintiff

v.

UNITED STATES GYPSUM COMPANY, et al., defendants

[File endorsement omitted.]

Findings of fact and conclusions of law

Filed Aug. 5, 1946

This cause having come on for trial, and the Court having heard and considered the testimony and exhibits introduced, and having read and considered the briefs filed by the respective parties, and having heard and considered oral argument of counsel for the respective parties, and after due deliberation, and having filed its written Opinion on June 15, 1946, the Court makes the following Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law:

Findings of fact

1. This is an action in equity instituted by the United States, hereinafter referred to as the Government, to restrain the defendants from alleged violations of Sections 1, 2 and 3 of the Sherman Act. Injunctive relief is sought under Section 4.

2. The corporate defendants are: United States Gypsum Company (hereinafter referred to as USG), National Gypsnm Company (National), Certain-teed Products Corporation (Certain-teed), The Celotex Corporation (Celotex), Ebsary Gypsum Company, Inc. (Ebsary), and Newark Plaster Company (Newark). The individual defendants are Samuel M. Gloyd, doing business under the name of Texas Cement Plaster Company (Texas), Sewell L. Avery, Oliver M. Knode, Melvin H. Baker, Bror G.
8877 Dahlberg, Henry J. Hartley, Frederick G. Ebsary, and Frederick Tomkins. Avery was president of USG from 1905 to 1936, and since then has been chairman of the Board of Directors. Knode is president* of USG. Baker is president of National. Dahlberg is president of Celotex and chairman* of the Board of Directors of Certain-teed. Hartley is president* of Certain-teed. Ebsary is president of Ebsary.. Tomkins is president of Newark.

3. The defendants are engaged in the mining of gypsum rock and in the manufacture and in the sale in interstate commerce, in the "Eastern area" of the United States, of gypsum board, gypsum plaster, and miscellaneous gypsum products defined in a bill of particulars as gypsum block, gypsum tile, and Keene's cement. The "Eastern area" includes all of the states of the United States from the East Coast westward to and including New Mexico, Colorado, Wyoming, and the eastern half of Montana.

4. Gypsum board consists of two outer sheets of heavy tough paper, front and back, called "liners," between which there is a lightened gypsum core which is firmly bonded to the paper. Gypsum wallboard is a product used as a finished interior wall. Gypsum lath or plasterboard is a product used as a base to which a coat of plaster may be applied. The term board as hereinafter used includes wallboard and lath or plasterboard. In the manufacture of gypsum products the raw gypsum rock is first subjected to calcination—the process of driving off the water of crystallization by heating. Calcined gypsum, or stucco, when mixed with water, resumes the original content thereof so that the manufactured product is chemically substantially the same as the raw rock and has the 8878 same properties. In the reforming process the manufacture of the products above described is made possible. The products are extensively used in the building industry.

5. In the early periods of its manufacture gypsum board was crudely made by pouring buckets of calcined gypsum mixed with water in thin layers between multiple pieces of rough felt paper, smoothing the product with rollers, hardening it on racks and trimming the pieces to size. This was a hand operation. In 1912 the defendant USG commenced the development of more efficient methods of manufacture of gypsum products. An important advance was in the making, by virtue of patent No. 1,034,746, issued in 1912 to USG on application of an inventor-employee named Clarence W. Utzman, of "closed-edge board." Prior to 1912 gypsum board had been made with exposed edges. This required trimming, and there was also breakage in shipping and use, with consequent wastage. The making of closed-edge board solved this problem. Various other improvements were developed, including a board making machine, the use of foam as a substitute for sawdust as an "aggregate" in the gypsum core to lighten the board, and the use of starch to improve the bond between paper and core. Metallized board, gypsum board covered with metallic foil, was devised for purposes of insulation; and a gypsum lath perforated in such manner as to increase the fire resisting qualities of wall structure was devised. These improvements were covered by patents—product, process, and machine—many of which were issued to USG; others were acquired by that company. A demand arose in the trade for these improved products, and companies other than USG commenced to copy them. There ensued many years of litigation in which USG strove to enforce, and eventually succeeded in enforcing, its patent rights.

8879 6. Prior to 1917 the Bestwall Manufacturing Company (Bestwall) commenced the manufacture of closed-edge board, USG sued for infringement and won. Bestwall Mfg. Co. v. United States Gypsum Co., 270 Fed. 542 (C. C. A. 7th, 1921), cert. denied, 263 U. S. 713 (1923). Bestwall had, however, in the course of the litigation, been acquired by The Beaver Products Company, Inc. (Beaver), and USG by a supplemental bill sued both of these companies for infringement and again prevailed. United States Gypsum Co. v. Bestwall Mfg. Co., 15 F. (2d) 704 (N. D. Ill. 1925). These decisions made the manufacture of closed-edge board by a competitor of USG impossible without infringement of USG's patent rights. Prior to the last mentioned decision, Augustus S. Blagden, president of Beaver, made overtures of settlement to Sewell L. Avery, president of USG; he continued these efforts after the decree under the supplemental bill. Avery, at a meeting with Blagden in December, 1925, specified as terms of settlement the payment of damages by Beaver for infringement of USG's patents, acknowledgment by Beaver of the validity of USG's patents, payment of royalties, and the right in USG to fix prices of gypsum board made and sold by Beaver under the Utzman closed-edge patent. A settlement agreement was executed on July 29, 1926, Beaver paying $250,000 cash damages and USG granting Beaver a license to make, use and sell the patented products, to use the patented processes and to make and use the patented machines.

7. In September, 1925, after the decision against Beaver, USG sued The American Gypsum Company (American) and the Universal Gypsum and Lime Company (Universal) for infringement, and served a 8880 notice of infringement upon the Niagara Gypsum Company (Niagara). On September 17, 1926, a settlement and license agreement was entered into with Universal similar to that with Beaver, except that the lump sum payment was approximately $35,000. A license agreement was entered into between USG and the Atlantic Gypsum Products Company (Atlantic) on March 5, 1927. In this instance no damages were paid, Atlantic not having previously made gypsum board. Texas signed a license agreement on April 11, 1927. This contract was not by way of settlement of an existing claim of infringement, although it stated that Texas had equipped its plant to make closed-edge board and that USG was threatening to sue if such board were produced.

8. These four license contracts are for convenience referred to in the record as the "1926-1927 contracts." The licenses granted were under two Utzman patents No. 1,034,746 (the product patent) and No. 1,029,328 (a process patent), and under a third Utzman patent No. 1,330,413 (a machine patent) expiring February 10, 1937, under a Birdsey patent No. 1,358,508 (a product patent for partially closed-edge board), and under some sixty or more other patents and applications for patents. The material provisions of the contracts were these: USG granted an indivisible and non-exclusive license until the expiration of the Utzman machine patent on February 10, 1937. It reserved the right to fix during the life of the Utzman product patent, expiring August 6, 1929, the minimum prices at which the licensees might sell board embodying the disclosure of that patent, but at not more than the prevailing market price. For the privilege of manufacturing, using and selling gypsum board under the patents, the licensees agreed to pay an amount equivalent to a designated percentage of the selling price of the licensees

8881 on all gypsum board manufactured by them, whether patented or not, until February 10, 1937, the date of the expiration of the machine patent; they acknowledged and agreed not to contest the validity of the patents under which the licenses were granted; they agreed that all of the patented products sold by them and known in the trade as "seconds" should be invoiced and marked as "seconds." USG agreed that the licensees might sell patented gypsum board to manufacturers of plaster and gypsum products who did not themselves make board (referred to in the record as "manufacturing distributors"), the royalties payable to remain based upon the regular selling price of the licensees to the regular dealer trade. The licensees agreed to keep separate records showing the quantity of all board sold by them, and periodically to render reports to USG showing the quantities and prices of their sales. USG reserved the right to inspect and to make copies of the licensees' memoranda from such records.

9. In May, 1929, following further litigation, four more license contracts were entered into between USG on the one part and Certain-teed, National, Ebsary, and Niagara, on the other part. In 1923 Certain-teed, originally a manufacturer of roofing products, entered the gypsum industry with the acquisition of the Acme Cement Plaster Company (Acme). In 1926 it commenced the manufacture of open-edge gypsum board at the former Acme plant in Texas. On January 20, 1928, it purchased the assets of Beaver. Beaver was then making a closed-edge board. Certain-teed refused to assume the Beaver-USG settlement agreement and license. USG thereupon, on or about February 21, 1928, instituted suit in the District Court of the United States in Illinois against Certain-teed and Beaver, seeking an injunction against the distribution of the pro-8882 ceeds of sale to the Beaver stockholders and asserting that Certain-teed should be required to assume all liabilities of Beaver under its settlement agreement and license. Certain-teed was required to put up a million dollar bond, or otherwise to suffer a temporary injunction, as security for damages which might be found due to USG. On May 22, 1929, Certain-teed settled this suit with USG, agreeing to pay damages of approximately $64,000 and to fulfill the obligations of Beaver under its original settlement agreement and license; USG executed in Certain-teed's favor a patent license agreement and the suit was dismissed and the bond released. A supplemental license agreement between USG and Certain-teed covering a bundling process patent was executed on July 3, 1929. On May 16, 1929, National settled two patent infringement suits which USG had brought against it, one on November 5, 1926, the other on May 7, 1928, paying on account of damages approximately $178,000 and entering into a patent license agreement with USG. National had commenced the manufacture of a modified closed-edge gypsum board in 1926. Ebsary, which had commenced making open-edge gypsum board in 1928, was granted a patent license by USG on May 22, 1929. This license was not a part of settlement of an infringement claim, since Ebsary had not manufactured closed-edge board and there was no infringement suit or basis therefor against it. Niagara commenced making an open-edge gypsum board, but later made board with a semi-protected edge covered by a Clark application for a patent owned by American. This board had been developed by American in an attempt to compete with USG's closed-edge board. USG claimed that this board infringed its Birdsey patent No. 1,358,508 covering the manufacture of board with a partially closed edge. Pri-8883 ority over the Clark application had been awarded Birdsey by the Commissioner of Patents; this was affirmed by the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia in 1926. Clark v. Birdsey, 56 App. D. C. 136, 10 F. (2d) 1001. A contract of settlement was entered into between Niagara and USG in May, 1929. This contract is not in evidence but is referred to in a later license agreement between Niagara and USG dated October 8, 1929, in which it appears that the earlier contract provided for money damages to USG in the sum of approximately $28,000 and a patent license to Niagara.

10. The four license contracts between USG on the one part and Certain-teed, National, Ebsary and Niagara on the other part, are called the "May 1929 contracts" in the record. The provisions of these four contracts were in substance the same as those of the 1926-1927 license agreements except that in the May 1929 contracts the only restriction on USG's right to fix minimum prices for patented board was that the right expired on August 6, 1929, the date of expiration of the Utzman product patent, and sales of the patented product to manufacturing distributors and jobbers were permitted only on USG's written consent. These contracts involved the same patents as the 1926-1927 agreements, with a Birdsey "bundle" patent No. 1,696,877 added covering a method of bundling gypsum board for shipment by binding several boards together into a stack through the application of a gummed tape lengthwise along the edges of the boards. Use of this bundling method was required by the contracts.

11. In 1929 USG owned three applications for patents of Carlisle K. Roos covering cellular core gypsum board produced by the employment of foam or a foaming agent in the core of the board to produce a multitude of 8884 cells or voids thereby lightening the board, eliminating the use of sawdust, which had been an unsatisfactory material, as an "aggregate," and resulting in quicker drying. These applications were in interference with an application for a patent by Erick Christian Bayer, a foreign patentee, the American rights to whose patent had been acquired by USG. The Roos applications prevailed in the interference proceeding and Roos patents Nos. 2,017,022, 2,079,338, and 2,080,009 were ultimately issued to USG (October 8, 1935, May 4, 1937, and May 11, 1937, respectively). On May 23, 1929, after the last of the May 1929 license agreements had been executed, Avery of USG described the scope and nature of the Roos bubble board invention and outlined its advantages, including weight reduction, lower freight cost, elimination of the sawdust problem, easier handling and quicker drying, and offered the various licensees above referred to a license on this invention.

12. Shortly after this, Universal through its president and co-receiver, Eugene Holland, claimed that USG, by using starch in its board to obtain adhesion between the core and paper liners, was infringing two patents owned by Universal known as the Hite and Haggerty patents Nos. 1,230,297 and 1,500,452, respectively. The Hite patent covered a heat insulating material and method of making the same. The Haggerty patent covered a gypsum plaster wallboard employing starch or a cooked carbohydrate in the core of the board to insure a good bond between the core and the paper covering sheets. This had solved the "peeler" trouble in the gypsum board industry and made possible modern high speed production of gypsum board. Without it, high temperatures used to expedite drying of the board would result in defective board in the form of

"peelers," i.e., board having insufficient bond between 8885 the liners and the core. In 1927 Universal had brought suit in the United States District Court in Buffalo, New York, against National for infringing of the Haggerty patent, demanding an injunction and an accounting, and the court had ruled that the Haggerty patent was valid and infringed (Universal Gypsum & Lime Co. v. Haggerty, 21 F. (2d) 544 (W. D. N. Y. 1927)), and National had posted a substantial bond rather than suffer enforcement of a temporary injunction. Avery told Holland that it was not USG's policy to infringe patent rights and that he would investigate the claim. In June and July of 1929 negotiations were going on between USG and its various licensees in respect of a possible license covering the bubble board invention, and the various companies were investigating to ascertain whether the invention had merit. During this same period Holland continued to discuss with Avery separately the matter of the alleged infringement of the Haggerty and Hite starch patents. As a result of these discussions USG agreed to purchase and did purchase these patents. Universal was in receivership and the sale was a favorable one from its standpoint because it provided Universal with substantial funds permitting it to reorganize and emerge from receivership with its accounts paid. The original and ancillary receivership proceedings were in seven different Federal district courts and the sale was approved by all of these courts on or about November 5, 1929. The sale was consummated in a license contract of November 5, 1929, which settled a claim of USG against Universal for infringement of USG's partially closed-edge patent and the claim of Universal against USG for infringement of the Hite and Haggerty patents. The Hite and Haggerty patents were assigned to USG with reservation of royalty to Universal. Universal was itself granted a license under these patents and 8886 under the Birdsey patent No. 1,358,508 and under patents which might be issued under the Roos and Bayer applications and under numerous other patents. This license contract superseded the 1926 license agreement between USG and Universal. In August, 1929, USG had announced its arrangement to purchase the Haggerty and Hite patents and offered its licensees new licenses which would replace the prior license contracts and include in one document the outstanding patents of the earlier licenses, the Haggerty and Hite patents, and the applications for patents on the Roos bubble board invention. This offer was made subject to the approval of the district courts above referred to.

13. Niagara on October 8, 1929, Certain-teed on the 15th, National on the 17th, Ebsary on the 18th, and Atlantic on the 21st, entered into new patent license contracts with USG which superseded the previous agreements between these companies and USG, and these new contracts covered the Hite and Haggerty patents and also the anticipated patents under the Roos and Bayer applications as well as the unexpired patents of the earlier contracts.

14. As found above, USG had in September, 1925, instituted a suit against American for infringement of USG's closed-edge patent. It had also in the same month commenced a suit against American for infringement of the Birdsey patent on partially closed-edge board. American attempted to obtain a more favorable settlement than had been granted to other infringers. USG's infringement suit with respect to the Birdsey patent had been postponed pending settlement negotiations, reinstated, and ultimately tried and decided in favor of USG. Settlement discussions by American were resumed, with renewed efforts to obtain concessions with USG. On November 25, 1929, 8887 American finally settled its outstanding litigation with USG on the terms originally offered, i.e., on terms similar to those of the earlier settlements with other companies, and accepted a license from USG similar to the license contracts of the other licensees. American paid in settlement of past infringement approximately $152,000. On April 23, 1930, Kelley Plasterboard Company, Inc. (Kelley) took a similar license. On January 3, 1939, USG consented to the assignment of this license to Newark. Texas did not enter into a license contract in 1929, but continued as a licensee under its license of April 11, 1927, although it was not subject to price control after August 6, 1929, the date of the expiration of the Utzman closed-edge patent, and no effort was made by any defendant or any agent of any defendant to establish or control the price at which Texas sold gypsum board during the period from August 6, 1929, until February 10, 1937, at which time its license of April 11, 1927, expired and Texas accepted a further license contract similar in form to the November 1929 contract with the other licensees. This completed the execution of the nine contracts generally referred to in the record as the "November 1929 contracts" (although the Texas contract was not executed until 1937 and the Kelley contract not until April 23, 1930) with Niagara, Certain-teed, National, Ebsary, Atlantic, Universal, American, Kelley, and Texas. Each of these contracts extended licenses under the Haggerty and Hite patents, under patents which might be issued under the Roos and Bayer applications, and under a large number of patents still vital which had been the subject of the previous contracts, including the Utzman machine patent No. 1,330,413, Birdsey patent No. 1,358,508 on the partially closed-edge board, the bundle patent No. 1,696,877, and under patents which might be issued under several 8888 additional applications for patents. These November 1929 contracts were in general in the same terms as the earlier contracts. Each contained a "most favored nation" clause providing that if subsequent to the effective date of a particular agreement USG should grant to any other person, except to Universal, a license more favorable in terms, then USG would grant to the particular licensee a license on the same terms. The Texas contract alone in its "most favored nation" clause did not contain the exception to Universal. The price fixing clause contained a provision that the minimum prices fixed by USG should not be more than those at which USG determined to sell gypsum board or other products embodying the inventions claimed in the patents to its own like trade in the same market. Use of the Birdsey bundling process by the licensees was made optional.

15. Niagara was acquired by USG in 1929. National acquired Universal in 1935 and Atlantic in 1936. Newark acquired the stock of Kelley in 1937 and merged with Kelley in 1939. Celotex entered the gypsum industry for the first time when it acquired the assets of American in 1939. Upon acquiring these companies respectively National, Newark and Celotex took over the above-mentioned licenses which had been entered into by Universal, Atlantic, Kelley and American with USG.

16. In addition to the 1926-1927, May 1929, and November 1929, contracts which related to gypsum board as such (sometimes hereinafter referred to as the main board license agreements), certain additional contracts, sometimes referred to in the record as "subordinate contracts," relating to metallized board and perforated lath, were executed as follows: At various times in 1934-1935 USG as owner of Roos patent No. 1,914,345 covering the 8889 use of metallic foil as a thermal insulating element in board granted licenses to various other companies. The license contracts in evidence are those of National of October 5, 1934, Kelley of October 12, 1934 (USG on January 3, 1939, consented to the assignment of this contract to Newark), Certain-teed of November 2, 1934, Atlantic of November 30, 1934, American of December 4, 1934 (assigned to Celotex on April 12, 1939), Universal of April 4, 1935, and Ebsary of August 14, 1935. In these contracts USG granted licenses to make, use and sell board having a metallized surface embodying the inventions disclosed and claimed in the patents or patent applications covered by the contracts, and reserved the right to fix the minimum prices on board embodying the inventions in question, but at not more than USG's own price in the same market. The licensees agreed to pay a royalty for all board having a metallized surface manufactured and sold by the licensees and covered by the claims of the patents issued or to be issued under applications for patents. The licensees agreed not to sell metallized board to other board manufacturers except upon USG's written consent, and not to sell to anyone on consignment. They agreed to acknowledge and not to contest the validity of the patents issued or to be issued and to record the quantities of metallized board manufactured "and/or sold," USG reserving the right to inspect and copy such records. Each licensee was accorded the position of a "most favored nation" with respect to licenses under these patents.

17. Similarly, USG was the owner of Roos patent No. 1,938,354 covering a fire resistant plasterboard. This board had holes of given size punched through it at designated intervals. Upon application of a coat of plaster the same pushed its way through the holes and hardened into a mechanical key with consequent improvement of the 8890 fire resistant qualities of the wall in which such plasterboard was used. USG granted patent licenses to Certain-teed on June 8, 1936, American on July 10, 1936, Ebsary on February 2, 1937, and Kelley on June 23, 1937, for the manufacture, use and sale of this board. In substance the terms of these licenses were the same as those of the metallized board license contracts. Later USG offered a revised perforated lath license to its licensees royalty free, i.e., extended an offer to include the perforated board patent in the main board license agreement at no additional royalty. Such revised licenses were accepted by Certain-teed, Ebsary and Kelley. On January 3, 1939, USG granted Newark, which had merged with Kelley, a royalty free perforated lath license, at the same time canceling the Kelley revised license.

18. Minimum price bulletins were sent out by USG to its licensees under the various license contracts, except during the period from August 6, 1929 (the date of expiration of the Utzman product patent No. 1,034,746), until the date of the execution of the November 1929 contracts. The price bulletins are limited in their application to patented board manufactured and sold by each licensee under its license. The price on board was calculated on the basis of a mill price plus freight from the nearest mill (freightwise) to the point of destination. The bulletins provided for prices on various quantities of board such as carloads, less-than-carloads, and truckloads. In particular markets, such as metropolitan areas, where it was economic to deliver gypsum board in truckload quantities, prices were established for such quantities and the areas in which such prices were to apply were defined. Outside of such areas a higher price was fixed. Provision was made in various instances for a variation in price to cover pool car 8891 shipments, railroad switching charges, and "pick-ups" at a mill. The bulletins contained provisions purposed to prevent the violation of the minimum price requirements through such devices, in connection with a sale of board, as the giving away of board as "dunnage," making advertising allowances to the customer, granting of fictitious damage claims, splitting of commissions with the customer by commission salesmen, paying of unearned warehousing charges, fictitious hiring of customers' trucks, giving away of plaster or other products, or the sale of such products at a price unusually below the licensee's prevailing market price.

19. During the periods when price bulletins were sent out by USG to its licensees, each licensee, in the main, sold gypsum board manufactured by it at the prices and upon the terms and conditions stipulated in the bulletins. No bulletins have been sent out since July 8, 1941.

20. In 1932 USG set up as a department a wholly owned corporation called the Board Survey Company. Its function was to receive complaints of license violations, to investigate the facts, call them to the attention of the licensee involved, and upon occasion to the attention of the licensor USG. Board Survey Company was organized by USG for the purpose of bringing about compliance with the licensee. The licensees had no part in its formation, management or operation. From time to time a representative of USG, as licensor, met with representatives of the licensee companies for the purpose of explaining to them the provisions of the minimum price bulletins and for the purpose of securing adherence to such minimum prices by the licensees.

21. The defendants or their predecessors in interest were, at the time the license agreements were entered 8892 into, competitors in the manufacture and sale of substantially all of the gypsum board and a substantial part of the gypsum plaster made and sold in the "Eastern area," and the defendants now make and sell substantially all of the gypsum board and a substantial portion of the plaster in the "Eastern area." Sales of gypsum products are largely to retail dealers in building materials and mason supplies, rather than to building contractors and ultimate consumers.

22. The instant proceeding was filed on August 15, 1940.* A three-judge court was constituted on September 15, 1942. Preliminary to trial the Government propounded to the defendants an aggregate of 361 interrogatories, to many of which objections were filed. Hearings were had and rulings made on these objections. Thereafter the defendants, by virtue of amended answers containing pleas of res judicata based upon a disposition favorable to the defendants therein of the criminal case first described in the footnote, filed motions for summary judgment. These

* There have been two previous related proceedings. These were criminal indictments, both returned on June 28, 1940. One, United States v. United States Gypsum Co. et al., No. 66008, in the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia, charged USG, National, Certain-teed, Ebsary, Newark, and numerous officers and employees of these companies and of The American Gypsum Company (acquired by Celotex), with conspiring illegally to fix prices on gypsum board and to eliminate jobbers from the gypsum board industry; the other indictment, United States v. Certain-teed Products Corp. et al., No. 66007, in the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia, charged USG and Certain-teed with a conspiracy illegally to fix prices on perforated gypsum lath. The criminal case first described came on for trial in the fall of 1941, and on November 19, 1941, at the conclusion of the Government's case, a verdict was directed in favor of the defendants. A nolle prosequi was filed in the second case on September 17, 1942.

motions were argued orally and briefs were submitted, and the motions were denied on August 10, 1943
8893 (51 F. Supp. 613). Thereafter the defendants moved to strike, or alternatively for partial judgment dismissing, paragraph 46(a) of the Government's complaint as amended, which paragraph presented an issue as to the validity of certain of the patents upon which the November 1929 license agreements were based. These motions were orally argued and briefs were submitted upon them, and an order was entered on November 15, 1943 (53 F. Supp. 889), dismissing all of the Government's claim contained in paragraph 46(a) except the first and last sentences thereof.

23. The instant case came on for trial on November 15, 1943, and continued, with some intermissions, until the close of presentation of evidence by the Government on April 20, 1944. The testimony of 28 witnesses was heard and 641 exhibits, mostly of a documentary character, were received in evidence. Much of the testimony and most of the exhibits (448) were received in evidence subject to connection; 86 exhibits were offered but rejected. The record comprises since the commencement of the actual trial 7585 pages, exclusive of the exhibits. The later comprise several thousand additional pages. At the close of the Government's case the defendants moved to strike from the record all of the exhibits and testimony received subject to connection, on the ground that no prima facie showing of any conspiracy had been made, that such exhibits and testimony had not been shown to be in furtherance or in execution of any conspiracy, and that such exhibits had not otherwise been connected. The defendants moved also to dismiss the complaint with prejudice under Rule 41 (b) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure on the ground that upon the facts and the law the plaintiff had shown no right to relief. Briefs were submitted in advance of 8894 oral argument in support of and in opposition to the motions. After oral argument the motions were submitted and taken under advisement on May 29, 1944. The Government admitted that the motions should be granted as to Dahlberg. On June 6, 1944, additional briefs were filed, and on January 17, 1945, the court requested further briefs. The last of these was filed on March 14, 1945.

24. The principal patents upon which the main board license agreements in the instant case were founded, to wit, the Utzman (No. 1,034,746), Haggerty (No. 1,500,452) and Roos (Nos. 2,017,022, 2,079,338 and 2,080,009) patents, were product patents upon a building material called plasterboard or wallboard. The patents were upon the entire product, not merely upon the edge of the board in the Utzman patent, or upon the starch in the Haggerty patent, or upon the bubbles or air cells in the Roos patents. These patents covered fundamental developments in the gypsum board manufacturing industry. The open-edge board which preceded the closed-edge board of the Utzman patent had defects in that there was in its manufacture wastage due to the necessary trimming of the board edge, the edge was weaker, and the core would sift out in handling and nailing. When the closed-edge board of the Utzman patent came into the market the open-edge board was largely displaced under the demand of the trade for the better product. The Haggerty patent, directed to the employment of starch or a cooked carbohydrate in the core of the board to insure a good bond between the core and the paper covering sheets, solved the "peeler" trouble in the gypsum board industry, and made possible the modern high speed production of gypsum board. The Roos patents, covering cellular core gypsum board produced by the employment of foam or a foaming agent in the core to produce 8895 innumerable cells or voids, thereby lightening the board and lending desirable nailing and other qualities thereto, supplanted the sawdust theretofore a necessary "aggregate" used in the core. Sawdust had become difficult to obtain and was moreover unsatisfactory as an "aggregate" because of variation in quality and character, which produced manufacturing difficulties. The use of the foam of the Roos patents solved these difficulties and produced a superior product with reduced manufacturing costs.

25. No substantial distinction can properly be drawn between the instant case and the General Electric case (272 U. S. 476) in respect of the importance of the patented improvements within the respective industries, or in respect of the nature of the patents which underlie the license agreements in the two cases. The patents, although on different materials, are of similar character and bear a similar relationship to the respective industries and the development thereof. The patents principally involved in the instant case no less, and no more, cover completely the patented product than do those principally involved in the General Electric case.

26. The price bulletins in the instant case contained two classes of provisions, one class providing how price should be arrived at, the other intended to protect the price fixed, i.e., to prevent indirect price cutting in the sale of the patented product. The price provisions were drafted in view of the fact that the ultimate price at which the patented product is to be sold cannot be arrived at merely by naming an amount, but other factors which have economic relationship to price—such as terms of payment, cost of delivery to various areas, including freight 8896 charges, quantity sold, type of product sold, and the like must also be stipulated. The price protective provisions related only to the minimum prices established on the patented product and were designed solely to protect such prices.

27. The terms and conditions of the license agreements and price bulletins in the instant case, as compared with the terms and conditions, including price provisions, in the General Electric case, disclose no material distinction. In both cases the licenses were non-exclusive; there was to be no contest of the validity of the licensors' patents; there were provisions for royalties, records and reports. In both cases the licenses were granted upon the condition that the licensor should have the right to fix the minimum prices at which the licensee should sell the patented product, the prices to be charged by the licensor and licensee to be the same. In both cases, in respect of prices, there were two classes of provisions, one class providing how price should be arrived at, the other intended to protect the price fixed, i.e., to prevent indirect price cutting. In both cases the provisions for arriving at price were drafted in view of the fact that the ultimate price at which a product is to be sold cannot be arrived at merely by naming an amount, but that other factors which have economic relationship to price—such as terms of payment, cost of delivery to various areas, including freight charges, quantity sold, type of product sold, and the like, must also be stipulated. The provisions of the licenses in the General Electric case and in the licenses in the instant case in respect of indirect price cutting, i.e., the price protective provisions, are of similar character. If there is any difference between 8897 the provisions of the licenses in the General Electric case and in the instant case, it is in the greater stringency and complexity of those in the former.

28. The provisions of all of the license agreements in the instant case and the operations thereunder, including the bulletins issued by the licensor containing the price and price protective provisions, are reasonably and normally adapted to secure to USG the pecuniary reward for its patents and do not go beyond the limits of the monopoly granted by the patent laws.

29. The license agreements were executed at arm's length. There is no issue herein that their execution was obtained by coercion. Rather, the Government contends that the agreements were not bona fide but were sham agreements executed to disguise illegal purposes.

30. The evidence fails to establish that the agreements were not made in good faith or were intended only as sham agreements to disguise illegal purposes. On the contrary, the license agreements were executed as bona fide agreements and were intended to bind each party to the promises made therein. They were not sham agreements executed to disguise illegal purposes.

31. All of the license agreements except that of July 29, 1926 between USG and Beaver and that of September 17, 1926, between USG and Universal were executed after the decision in the General Electric case on November 23, 1926; and Bement v. National Harrow Company had long been decided (May 19, 1902) before the Beaver and Universal agreements were signed. The license agreements were executed upon the faith of these decisions. Prior to the making of the licenses in the instant case, the parties thereto had been advised that such licenses giving price control to the licensor were proper and that they had a right to enter into them under the patent laws.

32. All of the license agreements (except only the revised perforated lath licenses accepted by three of the licensees when USG extended an offer to include the perforated board patent in the main board license agreement without additional royalty) required the licensees to pay, and they did pay, substantial royalties; and many of them were entered into, as hereinbefore found, in settlement of infringement litigation and in consideration of the payment of substantial damages, which damages were paid.

33. Commencing as early as 1926 when the Beaver license was negotiated, USG offered terms of settlement of infringement claims and a license to any or all of the various board manufacturers. Throughout all of its negotiations with the various companies USG insisted upon these same terms which were: payment of damages for infringement, acknowledgment of the validity of USG's patents, payment of royalties, and the right in USG to fix prices upon board made and sold under its patents. At all times USG remained firm on these terms and rigidly insisted upon such terms for all settlements and licenses. American attempted to get better terms but USG remained firm that American should either pay in full for past infringement and for future use of the patents or go without the benefit of using them.

34. In the making of the licenses there was nothing furtive in the action of the parties. There was open negotiation and discussion between USG and the other companies in the industry of the proposed licenses and there was open discussion among the companies other than USG of their mutual problems arising out of USG's ownership and insistence upon enforcement of dominant patent rights in the gypsum board field.

8899 35. After the licenses were signed, they were enforced by USG and its agency, Board Survey, as valid and binding contracts and were so regarded by all the parties thereto. The enforcement of the license provisions after the licenses were signed, the formation by USG of Board Survey, and its activities to bring about compliance by all of the licensees with the terms of the licenses, and the meetings of USG with its licensees to explain to them the provisions of the minimum price bulletins and for the purpose of securing adherence to these bulletins by the licensees, affirmatively evidence good faith and that the licensor and licensees regarded the license agreements as valid and binding.

36. The companies which became licensees did so because they desired to settle or avoid litigation and to obtain the right to use USG's patents, considering it a business necessity to be able to do so. Several of the licensees had made the closed-edge board before they acquired the right to do so from USG, for which infringement of the Utzman patents they paid substantial damages. Also some of the licensees had manufactured board containing starch which was covered by the Haggerty patent. Numerous other patents included in the licenses were essential to the manufacturing of modern gypsum board.

37. Although there was discussion among the prospective licensees and with USG of the terms of the proposed licenses and of the advantages of signing them, nevertheless the decision to take a license was reached by each of the companies independently. The licensees took their respective licenses, without regard to what other companies did. Neither Griswold of American, Blagden of Beaver nor Holland of Universal acted, nor was told to act, as agent or emissary of USG or Avery in obtaining license agreements. The Avery-Blagden discussions involved the settlement of the USG-Beaver infringement litigation. Any interest by Griswold and Holland in the settlement of litigation in the industry was motivated by con-8900 cern for their respective companies and the proposed mergers each of them was promoting.

38. The execution of the licenses on the faith of the Bement and General Electric cases, payment of royalties and damages by the licensees, insistence by USG upon the same terms for all, open negotiation and enforcement, signing by the licensees to avoid litigation and to make the better closed-edge board and upon independent decisions by the several licensees—all evidence good faith in the execution of the license agreements.

39. Exhibits 227 and 231 are Certain-teed intra-company memoranda wherein C. O. Brown, Sales Manager, made reference to negotiations for the bubble board and starch licenses, and to the patents and patent applications involved. Those exhibits do not establish bad faith in the execution of the license agreements either on the part of Certain-teed or any other person or company. The primary reason of Certain-teed in taking a license under the Haggerty starch and the Roos bubble board patents was that the method of manufacture was cheaper, the products could be made much lighter with resultant savings in transportation costs, and a better product resulted, Certain-teed carefully investigated the bubble board invention and concluded, about July 3, 1929, that it had merit and that a license should be taken. It had already investigated the starch situation and thought that it might be subject, on account of its own use of starch, to a claim of infringement of the Haggerty patent. When the opportunity to obtain a license under the starch patents as well as the bubble board invention was presented, Certain-teed was glad to take advantage of it. Certain-teed was not motivated by a desire for price fixing when it determined to take the license. There was no understanding or agreement that the starch and bubble patents or the proposed licenses would be used as a vehicle to obtain price control. Whittemore, Vice-President of Certain-teed, had the final decision in respect of Certain-teed's taking the bubble board and starch patent license. The statement in his memorandum (part of Exhibit 227) to Van Hagan of the production department, "you can easily see the possibilities in this bubble patent", referred to the possibilities of production and quality advantages under that patent.

40. The Government contended that, if Certain-teed believed that USG was attempting to dominate and monopolize the gypsum board industry and to restrain competition as averred in the unverified answer of Certain-teed filed in USG's injunction suit against it and the memorandum with respect thereto (Exhibits 324 and 212, respectively), that company must have intended to join in such an illegal purpose when it subsequently took the license. It can with at least equal, if not greater, reasonableness be inferred that Certain-teed had before signing the license reached the conclusion that its statement concerning USG's purpose in bringing the suit was erroneous and that Certain-teed therefore felt free to accept the license agreement. The exhibits are at most equivocal in meaning and do not establish bad faith in the execution of the license agreement.

41. The Government has failed to establish that the perforated lath license contracts, signed by Certain-teed, American, Ebsary and Kelley on June 8, 1936, July 10, 1936, February 2, 1937, and June 23, 1937, respectively, were made in bad faith. On the contrary, said licenses were made in good faith and were intended to bind each party to the promises made therein. They were not sham agreements executed to disguise illegal purposes.

42. In many localities there is a building code requirement in the case of plaster bases that a wall structure (the base plus the applied coat of plaster) must stand a one hour fire test. USG, to meet this requirement, developed the perforated gypsum lath covered by the Roos patent, which contained perforations of such size and spacing as to permit a wall structure composed of it to withstand the one hour test. When plaster is applied to this type of lath some of it passes through the perforations and forms a mechanical key which, because of the size and spacing of the holes, supports the coat of plaster with the result that it will resist fire for an hour. USG's perforated lath passed the one hour fire test of the United States Bureau of Standards and received the Bureau's one hour fire rating. This was the first gypsum lath ever to pass this test. The only perforated lath which ever passed the Bureau's one hour test was of the type covered by the Roos perforated lath patent.

43. Certain-teed, in taking the perforated lath license, believed it was necessary to obtain a supply of the perforated lath product in order to be competitive. It thought that the volume of business in perforated lath would be small—although in this respect the company turned out to be mistaken, as the demand in the trade became considerable. Another reason motivating the company in taking the license was a desire to avoid possible patent infringement liability. Certain-teed was acting in good faith in taking this license.

44. Newark took the perforated lath license because it desired to be competitive with the other licensees who had signed a similar agreement. Newark found it necessary to sell perforated lath, felt that it had to be in a position to produce it, and wanted to be able to do so lawfully. In taking this license Newark acted in good faith.

8903 45. There is no evidence questioning the good faith of American or Ebsary in respect of their taking perforated lath licenses.

46. The Government has failed to establish that the metallized board licenses, signed by National, Kelley, Certain-teed, Atlantic, American, Universal and Ebsary on October 5, 1934, October 12, 1934, November 2, 1934, November 30, 1934, December 4, 1934, April 4, 1935, and August 14, 1935, respectively, were signed by the various licensees without any expectation that they would manufacture such board, but with the intention that they would purchase it from USG or National and then resell it at prices and under conditions fixed by USG. On the contrary, said licenses were made in good faith by each of said licensees with the intention to manufacture such board and were intended to bind each party to the promises made therein: They were not sham agreements executed to disguise illegal purposes.

47. When Certain-teed executed the metallized board license it intended to manufacture such board and soon thereafter did manufacture it. It had no agreement or understanding as to the price at which it would resell metallized board purchased from other companies. The amount of metallized board which Certain-teed purchased from other manufacturers was very small.

48. Atlantic considered the desirability of executing a metallized board license and favored such a license since there was an increasing demand for that type of board. When Atlantic took the license it intended to manufacture metallized board and before its business was sold to National it had started the manufacture of metallized board. Atlantic had no understanding or agreement with USG or anyone else as to the price at which it would sell metallized board purchased by it from other companies.

49. American concurred in USG's view that the 8904 board manufacturers should get behind this new insulating product, and, since insulating board had developed into a strong competitor of gypsum board, felt that it would be a good thing for the manufacturers to enter the metallized board field. American took the metallized board license with the expectation of manufacturing the product and did manufacture it after taking the license. American understood at all times that the only price fixed by USG was that of board manufactured by American under the patents licensed by USG.

50. There is no evidence questioning the good faith of Kelley and Newark in taking the metallized board license. Both companies manufactured metallized board under the license.

51. Ebsary took the metallized board license because it desired to manufacture the product under it, feeling that it was a matter of some importance to board manufacturers to be able to make a board and a lath with insulating qualities. Ebsary started to make this product early in 1936. Ebsary understood that the bulletin provisions applied only to such board as Ebsary itself made and sold. There was no understanding or agreement between USG and Ebsary that metallized board bulletin prices should be observed prior to the time Ebsary got into production of metallized board.

52. There is no evidence questioning the good faith of National or Universal on the subject of the metallized board license.

53. The prices which USG fixed under the metallized board licenses applied only to the patented metallized board manufactured and sold by the respective licensees. While some of the licensees purchased patented metallized board from other manufacturers and resold it, the resale prices of such board were not fixed by USG, nor was 8905 there any understanding or agreement that they would be.

54. The fact that for the privilege of using the patents, royalties are fixed in the license agreements at an amount equivalent to a designated percentage of the selling price of the licensees of all gypsum board manufactured by them, whether or not patented, does not establish an agreement to make only the patented product and does not establish that the license agreements were executed in bad faith. The patents were numerous and covered not only the patented board but machines and processes in the manufacture of board, and the rights and privileges granted were of great value to the manufacturers of gypsum board. This royalty provision is in effect a provision for a percentage of gross sales, and as such is but a convenient means of measuring the amount to be paid for the privilege of using the patents. It might with equal propriety have been a lump sum. This provision in the license agreements was not an attempt to impose a royalty upon an unpatented product, nor was it intended to drive open-edge board off the market, nor did it have that effect.

55. No evidence has been introduced proving or tending to prove that the board made and sold by the defendants was not made under the patents on which the license agreements were based.

56. There were no agreements between USG and the licensee companies other than those which were put into formal writing. There were no informal side agreements between USG and any of its licensees or between any of the defendants herein that they would discontinue making open-edge board or seconds of closed-edge board, or that USG would advance and stabilize the prices for board, or that all or any of the companies would increase their prices for other gypsum products, or that USG would con-8906 tinue to control prices through the use of other patents after expiration of the Utzman product patent in August 1929.

57. The evidence does not establish any of the Government's charges that the license agreements were non-bona fide because executed with intent to accomplish restraints of trade beyond the proper limits of the patent monopoly, specifically (1) illegally to raise and fix at arbitrary and non-competitive levels the price of gypsum board; (2) to accomplish improper standardization of gypsum board and its method of production; (3) to raise, maintain and stabilize the level of prices of unpatented materials—plaster and miscellaneous gypsum products; (4) to effectuate improper restriction upon distribution of gypsum board, plaster and miscellaneous gypsum products; or (5) to fix the prices at which manufacturing distributors resell gypsum board.

58. The licenses were not executed with an intent to fix prices of gypsum board at high levels or any given levels. There was at no time any understanding or agreement or even discussion as to what the prices of gypsum board would be upon the execution of the licenses.

59. After the execution of the licenses, the licensees had nothing whatever to do with fixing the minimum prices at which the patented products were to be sold.

60. The gypsum industry in the "Eastern area" was in a demoralized condition in the years 1927-1929. There was litigation, bad feeling, price cutting. The prices of board had fallen so low that for some manufacturers business was no longer profitable. Prices could not go down 8907 and business continue; any change would, as a matter of economic necessity, be upward.

61. The license agreements were not executed with intent to accomplish improper standardization of board and its method of production.

62. Only Texas, Certain-teed and Ebsary had made open-edge board before signing their licenses. Beaver, Universal, National, Niagara and American had made only closed-edge or partially closed-edge board. Atlantic's commencement of manufacturing any board was coincidental with its taking a license. There was no understanding or agreement to refrain from or discontinue the manufacture and sale of open-edge board. Nothing in the license agreements forbids making and selling it.

63. Each of the companies—Texas, Certain-teed and Ebsary—which had made the open-edge board had found it unsatisfactory because it was expensive and wasteful in production and distribution and because it was not desired by their customers who were demanding the closed-edge board, with resultant loss of business to each of the manufacturers. The primary reason that each of these companies took a license was to obtain the right to make the closed-edge board and this is what they did after acquiring a license. It may be inferred that each of such licensees did not expect, once it had secured the right to make the closed-edge board, to go forward further with the manufacture and sale of the inferior article.

64. Exhibit 226, which is a Certain-teed intra-company memorandum of June 4, 1929, by George M. Brown, and Exhibit 332, which is USG's Report to Stockholders for the fiscal year ending December 31, 1929, do not establish an improper intent not to make and sell open-edge board.

8908 65. The sixth "whereas clause" in Exhibit 5 (the Ebsary agreement of May 22, 1929), is not merely a purported waiver of the condition referred to in the fifth "whereas clause". Nor is it the fact that by tacit agreement the companies understood in May 1929 that the open-edge board was to be discontinued. The testimony of Lenci, who on being shown on direct examination only the fifth "whereas clause" said that it was the understanding of everybody who took out a license that the making of the open-edge board was to be discontinued, was corrected on cross-examination when his attention was called to the sixth "whereas clause", and it is clear from his entire testimony and from other evidence in the case that there was in fact no such understanding or agreement.

66. The license agreements were not executed with an intent to eliminate open-edge board.

67. A "second" is a defective board produced unintentionally in the process of manufacturing standard board.

A No. 2 board is a board made of lower grade material than that used in the manufacturing of the standard board. Both seconds and No. 2 board are by definition board made under the patents. There was no agreement or understanding that seconds or No. 2 board would not be manufactured. On the contrary the parties to the license agreements were free at all times to make and sell such board.

68. The provision of the license agreements requiring seconds to be marked as such was not intended to eliminate seconds. It is inferred that the real purpose of this provision was to prevent harming the reputation of the standard board by the confusion of seconds with it.

69. The license agreements were not executed with an intent to eliminate either seconds or No. 2 board.

8909 70. USG's Birdsey patent No. 1,696,877 of December 25, 1928, covered a method of binding gypsum boards together with a gummed tape which ran lengthwise along the edges of the board. The May 1929 license agreements, except that with Certain-teed, granted rights under this patent and required that the licensees use this bundling method and no other. Certain-teed was first granted license agreement executed July 3, 1929. This contained the restrictive provision. The November 1929 agreements did not contain the restrictive provisions. There was no satisfactory way of bundling gypsum board or lath except by means of the Birdsey bundle. Attempts to tie the board with wire resulted in the wire slipping and cutting the board thereby causing much breakage. Delivery of board by the licensees in broken condition would tend to devalue the product and thus lessen the pecuniary reward of the patentee's monopoly and it is inferable that the restrictive provision regarding use of the bundling patent was to exploit the patent and to accomplish packaging and delivery of board by the licensees in a manner which would preserve quality, i.e., without breakage. In any event, the restrictive provision was abandoned when the November 1929 licenses were executed.

71. The provisions for royalties for the use of the USG bundling patents contained in the May 1929 licenses, the Certain-teed July 3, 1929 license, and the November 1929 licenses, do not establish an attempt to standardize by eliminating other methods of packaging. The provisions were not so intended, nor did they have such effect. No other method was available (except, for lath, the 8910 uneconomic method of tying with wire).

72. The license agreements were not executed with an intent to standardize in respect of the bundling patents.

73. There was at no time any understanding or agreement among any of the parties to the respective license agreements that the prices would be raised or fixed upon plaster or any unpatented gypsum product. Nor were the license agreements in the instant case executed with an intent to raise, maintain and stabilize the prices of unpatented materials such as plaster and miscellaneous gypsum products. The parties to the respective license agreements knew that the licensor's right to fix minimum prices was limited to the prices on patented board manufactured and sold by the respective licensees.

74. After the signing of the May 1929 licenses, bulletins established patented board prices at the levels which USG had been following just prior to the licenses. Subsequently until August 6, 1929, and (except for Texas) after the execution of the November 1929 agreements, the prices on patented gypsum board were advanced over what they had been during the price war, and the prices of other gypsum products improved during the same period over their condition during the price war. The primary purpose of USG in granting the licenses was the settlement of litigation, the collection of damages for infringement, the obtaining of royalties, the fixing of a profitable price on patented board, and the securing of the various advantages which would normally flow from the general manufacture and sale of the superior product. The primary purpose of the licensees in the signing of the licenses was the obtaining of the right to make the superior product and the settlement or avoidance of litigation.

8911 75. The license agreements were not executed with an intent to effectuate improper restriction upon the distribution of gypsum board, plaster or miscellaneous gypsum products, specifically, to "eliminate" jobbers through the discontinuance of a sales discount.

76. A jobber is a functionary in the wholesaling process who buys from the manufacturer, or from another wholesaler who has bought from the manufacturer, and sells to the dealer. The jobber's service is that of relieving the manufacturer, or in some instances the wholesaler, from the necessity of direct contact with the dealer—this being accomplished by the jobber's sales force. In the gypsum industry, jobbers occupy a somewhat ambiguous position, since it is difficult to know whether or not a given person is a jobber.

77. There was no agreement or understanding between any of the parties to the license agreements in the instant case whereby jobbers would be eliminated from the gypsum board distributive system. Nor was there any understanding or agreement that jobbers' discounts would be discontinued. The issuance of the bulletin of August 8, 1930 (Exhibit 430) making the price to jobbers the same as to dealers was the exercise of the right of USG to establish a price for the patented product.

78. The Kling letter of November 12, 1929 to Avery (Exhibit 181), wherein Kling asks, among other things, for Avery's approval of four named jobbers and Avery's reply of November 16, 1929 (Exhibit 182) referring him to a provision in the proposed license with American and pointing out that American would have the right to sell the patented board to jobbers, do not establish an intent to "eliminate" jobbers, but on the contrary establish an 8912 intent to continue to deal with them.

79. The bulletin of May 24, 1929 (Exhibit 408) requesting each licensee to send USG a list of the jobbers to whom it was selling patented board and the discussion concerning jobbers at the licensee meeting of June 6, 1929 do not establish an intent to eliminate jobbers or withdraw the discount. They are at best equivocal in respect of any such intent.

80. The charge in the complaint of improper restrictions upon distribution of plaster and miscellaneous gypsum products, is not established. There is no evidence concerning any dealings by USG or the licensees with jobbers in respect of plaster and miscellaneous gypsum products.

81. The license agreements in the instant case were not executed with an intent to fix the prices at which manufacturing distributors would resell gypsum board.

82. The term "manufacturing distributors" is applicable to companies which manufacture and sell gypsum plaster but which do not, for lack of investment in the large amount of plant equipment necessary in the making of gypsum board, manufacture board. In order to be able to market a full line of products, the manufacturing distributors purchase gypsum board from USG or one or more of its licensees. The purchases are made at a discount, and the sales of the board are made to the same dealer trade as that to which USG and its licensees sell their board, and therefore are made in competition with USG and its licensees. Both the May and the November 1929 license agreements provided that a licensee might not sell patented gypsum board to manufacturing distributors 8913 without the written consent of USG. The manufacturing distributors referred to in the evidence are the Structural Gypsum Corporation, of Linden, New Jersey; the Connecticut Adamant Plaster Company, of New Haven, Connecticut; and the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation, of Oakfield, New York, hereinafter referred to as Structural, Connecticut Adamant, and Oakfield, respectively. No evidence was introduced concerning the other companies listed in the bill of particulars as manufacturing distributors.

83. There was no understanding or agreement of any kind that the resale prices of manufacturing distributors should be regulated or controlled. At no time was it Lenci's purpose, or that of Ebsary, as contended by the Government, to control the prices or practices of manufacturing distributors, and they at no time had any understanding or agreement with anyone to the effect that Ebsary would control or attempt to control the resale prices at which manufacturing distributors or any of them sold board purchased from Ebsary.

84. The clause of the licenses forbidding sales to manufacturing distributors without the written consent of USG was not intended to control the prices of such distributors, nor was it so used.

85. The license agreements in the instant case were not executed with intent to gain objectives beyond the proper limits of a patent monopoly.

86. The actual operations of the defendants under the license agreements were not carried beyond the proper limits of the patent monopoly and licensing thereunder, i.e., beyond the activities contemplated by the agreements as written and into the field denounced by the Sherman Act.

8914 The evidence does not establish any of the Government's charges, (1) that the price of gypsum board was illegally raised and fixed at arbitrary and non-competitive levels; (2) that improper standardization of gypsum board and its method of production was accomplished; (3) that the level of prices of unpatented materials—plaster and miscellaneous gypsum products—was raised, maintained and stabilized; (4) that improper restriction upon distribution of gypsum board, plaster and miscellaneous gypsum products was effectuated; or (5) that the prices at which manufacturing distributors resold gypsum board were fixed.

87. The defendants did not by any of their operations under the license agreements, nor did they by any agreement or understanding, illegally raise or fix at arbitrary or non-competitive levels the price of gypsum board, as charged by the Government.

88. As above found, after the signing of the May 1929 licenses, the USG bulletins established patented board prices at the levels at which USG had been selling board just prior to the execution of these licenses and subsequently these bulletin prices were advanced over what they had been during the price war. But the prices so established did not exceed those which prevailed prior to the first license (the Beaver license) and the price war. Since 1935 the prices have been lowered so that for the past several years wallboard has sold for $23 per M square feet and lath for $13, as compared with $30 and $15-$16, respectively, before the first license.

89. The defendants did not by any of their operations under the license agreements, nor did they by any agreement or understanding, accomplish any improper standardization of gypsum board or its method of production, as charged by the Government.

8915 90. Texas, Certain-teed and Ebsary, the only companies which prior to their licenses had made open-edge board, discontinued its manufacture and sale once they had acquired the right to make closed-edge board. The other licensees who had not manufactured the open-edge board did not commence its manufacture. But this was not the result of any understanding or agreement between any of the parties for the elimination of open-edge board.

91. The evidence fails to establish that there was an elimination of either seconds or No. 2 board. Every company unavoidably produces some seconds. As a company improves in the art of board manufacturing fewer and fewer seconds are produced. There is no evidence concerning elimination of No. 2 board.

92. The selling of seconds is harmful to the reputation of the perfect grade of the manufactured product. Protection by a patentee manufacturer of the quality of his product is important commercially, for if quality and reputation for quality descend, so will demand and price.

93. There is no evidence that during the period from May to November, 1929, when the restrictive provision regarding the bundling patents was in the licenses, it drove off the market any other method of packaging or that there was any other method (except, for lath, the uneconomic method of tying with wire). The use of the bundling invention, since the execution of the November 1929 licenses, has been on its merit for lack of a better one. There is no evidence that the restrictive provision will be reintroduced into the presently outstanding licenses; and it is found that its reintroduction is unlikely. There is no evidence that the elimination of this provision in November 1929 was in anticipation of the instant action, or of 8916 any other anti-trust proceeding. The question of the legality of the restrictive provision has become moot, and its presence in the May licenses is not a foundation for equitable restraint.

94. The defendants did not by any of their operations under the license agreements, nor did they by any agreement or understanding, raise, maintain or stabilize the level of prices of plaster or miscellaneous gypsum products or any other unpatented product, as charged by the Government. The increase in price of plaster and miscellaneous gypsum products over the price during the 1927-1929 price war was not the result of any device adopted or action taken by the defendants to bring about such increase.

95. The Bulletin provision that "Any sale of patented products, though ostensibly made at or above the minimum price established by licensor, will nevertheless be considered a violation of the provisions of the license if licensee directly or indirectly reduces the actual price charged by licensee below such minimum price * * * by reducing the price of other products * * *" is but part of a larger provision concerning rebates and allowances made for the purpose and with the effect of reducing the licensee's price on patented board below the minimum price therefor—a price protective provision. It was not a device to raise, maintain or stabilize the price of plaster or miscellaneous gypsum products, and it was not applied by the defendants to that end. Nor did it have that effect. On the contrary the provision in question was a proper price protective measure reasonably designed to secure to USG the pecuniary reward of its patent monopoly. In operation, it was not used to raise, maintain or stabilize the price of unpatented materials.

8917 96. Exhibits 489 through 495, 497, 498, 500 and 501, are Ebsary and Board Survey letters involving complaints that Ebsary had violated the minimuin price on patented gypsum board through the device of rebating by giving away plaster or other products to a dealer in connection with a sale of patented board for the purpose of reducing the minimum price on the board, and do not establish that defendants or any of them raised, maintained or stabilized the prices of unpatented materials. Ebsary fully understood that USG was not attempting to fix or control Ebsary's plaster prices.

97. Exhibits 727, 729 through 738, 746 through 749, 758 and 759 are letters involving complaints that the minimum price on patented gypsum board had been violated by certain other licensees through the device of rebating by giving away plaster to a dealer in connection with a sale of the patented board, and do not establish that defendants or any of them raised, maintained or stabilized the prices of unpatented materials.

98. The Government introduced additional exhibits relating to asserted violations of the ininimum price on the patented board by means of gifts of, or rebates upon, roofing products, paints, insulation board, building paper and fibre board, or by means of such devices as free painting of signs, sales of company stock below the market price, donations to a ball club or receiving payment for board in certificates of deposit, rather than in legal tender. The purpose of these investigations disclosed by these exhibits was the same as in the case of the investigations relating to asserted gifts of, or rebates upon, plaster—namely, to prevent the licensee involved from violating its license contract by selling the patented board manufactured by it at a price below the minimum price therefor established by the licensor. The items referred to in these ex-8918 hibits are not embraced within the charge of the complaint.

99. The defendants did not by any of their operations under the license agreements, nor did they by any agreement or understanding, effectuate any improper restriction upon distribution of gypsum board, plaster or miscellaneous gypsum products, as charged by the Government.

100. As found above, USG, on August 8, 1930, by a bulletin (Exhibit 430) made the minimum price at which a licensee could sell its patented board to jobbers the same as the minimum price to the regular dealer trade. While thereafter a jobber who purchased patented board from either USG or one of its licensees was obliged to pay the same price as a dealer, the discontinuance of the discount did not have the effect of forbidding sales of board to jobbers if they were willing to buy at the dealer price. Many jobbers continued to buy board and were able to perform a proper jobber's function. There were small dealers who, for financial reasons or lack of warehouse space, were not able to buy or store board in the minimum quantities in which the licensees were required by the bulletins to sell it. A jobber financially able to purchase a substantial amount of board and having adequate warehouse space could, though he purchased at the dealer price, resell in small lots to such dealers at an advance, because of the service he thus rendered them.

101. The discontinuance of the jobber discount was not accomplished pursuant to any understanding or agreement among defendants or any of them.

102. Exhibits 438, 471 and 502, which are communications of Ebsary to Board Survey and USG, do not establish concerted action to "eliminate" jobbers. Such ex-8919 hibits were complaints that particular licensees had made arrangements with jobbers or dealers to give discounts or lower prices on patented board in violation of the minimum price bulletins.

103. No evidence was introduced in support of the charge that the defendants effectuated any restriction upon distribution of plaster and miscellaneous gypsum products through jobbers. Both the bulletin establishing the jobber discount and the bulletin making the price to jobbers and dealers the same applied only to patented board.

104. The defendants did not by any of their operations under the license agreements, nor did they by any agreement or understanding, fix the prices at which manufacturing distributors resold gypsum board, as charged by the Government.

105. The evidence does not establish any of the Government's charges that the resale prices of manufacturing distributors were controlled by (a) the use by USG of the provision in the May and November 1929 licenses requiring USG's written consent to the sale by licensees of patented board to manufacturing distributors, (b) the supplying to manufacturing distributors by their licensee sellers of the bulletin dealer prices on board, (c) the policing of manufacturing distributors sales of board, and (d) the limiting of the manufacturing distributor discount to approximately the cost of handling the board.

106. USG freely, and without conditions attached, granted consents to the licensees to sell board to manufacturing distributors. No consent once granted was ever withdrawn. The consents were never used by USG to control or attempt to control in any way the resale price of any of the manufacturing distributors.

8920 107. So far as the manufacturing distributors themselves were concerned, the consents to sell, which had been given by USG to their respective suppliers, were not subject to be withdrawn in the event that the distributors did not resell gypsum board at given prices and no threats of withdrawal of consents to their suppliers were ever made to any of them.

108. None of the manufacturing distributors had any agreement with its supplier to resell board at any particular price or prices. The furnishing by the licensees of information with respect to their dealer prices to the manufacturing distributors was to enable the distributors to determine their own net cost of the board, and not for the purpose of controlling the manufacturing distributors' resale prices. The discount allowed to the manufacturing distributors was 12-1/2% (on lath) and 15% (on wallboard) off the dealer price, and this was the basis on which the manufacturing distributors were normally quoted.

109. No one from the board manufacturing companies or Board Survey ever investigated any manufacturing distributor with respect to its resale prices; and no one from USG or any other board manufacturer ever threatened to stop selling board to a manufacturing distributor on account of prices it charged on resales.

110. There were no contractual or coercive arrangements by which manufacturing distributors were compelled to resell board either at prices fixed by USG or at any other price.

111. There was no investigation and regulation of the resale prices of manufacturing distributors on gypsum board.

8921 112. Exhibits 463 and 464 do not establish policing by Board Survey of Connecticut Adamant's resale price on board. The "policing" was not of Connecticut Adamant's resale price but of Ebsary's price to Connecticut Adamant.

113. Exhibits 512, 513 A and 514 and related evidence involve a complaint against the licensee Kelley rather than against the manufacturing distributor Oakfield. The situation was one in which a complaining licensee inferred from the activities of the accused licensee's customer, the manufacturing distributor, that the accused licensee was violating the license bulletins. Again the investigation was not of the resale price of the manufacturing distributor but of the discount allowed by the seller licensee.

114. Exhibit 438 and related evidence present a situation wherein a complaint was made of an apparent license violation by Kelley and not of the resale price by Structural.

115. Exhibits 436 through 447, 449 and 450 and related evidence involve complaints against apparent license violations by Kelley rather than a protest against Structural or its prices or practices.

116. The evidence fails to establish any control of or attempt to control the manufacturing distributors' resale prices on board by "policing" such resale prices. All that the evidence establishes is that one licensee was insisting to USG that a competitor-licensee was apparently violating, and should be required to abide by, the minimum price provisions of the bulletins. The protest of the complaining licensee was natural and stemmed from the "most favored nation" clause in each of the licenses for, if one li-8922 censee was permitted by USG to sell board on more favorable terms than another, the license of the former was in effect being rewritten.

117. As above found, USG fixed the price at which the licensees might sell patented wallboard and lath to manufacturing distributors at 15% and 12-1/2%, respectively, off the minimum price to dealers. The fixing of this discount did not result in any unlawful control of the resale prices of manufacturing distributors.

118. The evidence (including certain evidence specially relied on by the Government consisting in the large of intra and inter-company correspondence and memoranda relating to the terms upon which USG was offering to settle litigation and extend licenses and the advantages and disadvantages of taking licenses—Exhibits 104, 123, 124, 132, 136b, 157, 158, 185, 189, 198, 204, 205, 206 and 716—the admission in paragraph 7 of the answer of Ebsary and the testimony of Griswold, Blagden, Holland and Lenci) fails to establish that defendants associated themselves in a plan to blanket the industry under patent licenses and stabilize prices, as charged by the Government. On the contrary, there was no such plan or enterprise to blanket the gypsum industry with patent licenses and stabilize prices.

Conclusions of Law

1. This Court has jurisdiction of this cause.

2. A patentee may divide his patent monopoly by licensing the right to make, use and sell the patented 8923 product and may fix the terms and conditions, including the price, under which the patented product shall be sold, provided the terms and conditions of sale are normally and reasonably adapted to secure the pecuniary reward of the patentee's monopoly.

3. No legal distinction can properly be drawn between the instant case and the General Electric case (272 U.S. 476).

4. None of the defendants was a party to any contract, combination in the form of trust or otherwise, or conspiracy, in restraint of trade or commerce among the several states in gypsum products in violation of Section 1 of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act.

5. None of the defendants monopolized or attempted to monopolize, or combined or conspired with any other person or persons, to monopolize any part of the trade or commerce among the several states in gypsum products in violation of Section 2 of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act.

6. None of the defendants was a party to any contract, combination in the form of trust or otherwise, or conspiracy, in restraint of trade or commerce in gypsum products in the District of Columbia, or in restraint of trade or commerce in gypsum products between any state or states or the District of Columbia, or between the District of Columbia and any state or states, in violation of Section 3 of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act.

7. The license agreements were executed in good faith and said agreements, and the activities of defendants and their agents thereunder, were lawful and proper and within the limits of the licensor's patent monopoly.

8924 8. Upon the facts and the law, the plaintiff has shown no right to relief.

9. Defendants and each of them are entitled to judgment dismissing the complaint upon the merits.

Assignment of errors and prayer for reversal

Filed Sept. 30, 1946

The United States of America, plaintiff in the above-entitled cause, in connection with its petition for appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States, hereby assigns error to the record and proceedings and the entry of the final decree in the district court on August 5, 1946, in the above-entitled cause, and says that in the entry of the final decree the district court committed error to the prejudice of the plaintiff in the following particulars:

1. The court erred in its ruling, made in advance of trial, that the plaintiff was not entitled to show the invalidity of any of defendants' patents and that the court had no authority in the present proceeding to pass on the validity of defendants' patents.

2. The court erred in entering its order of November 15, 1943, granting defendants' motion for partial judgment and dismissing paragraph 46(a) of the complaint as amended, except the first and last sentences of said paragraph.

3. The court erred (1) in holding that the plaintiff conceded at the oral argument that the Government is seeking a judicial determination that the Patent Office erred in issuing the patents mentioned in paragraph 46(a) of the complaint and (2) in denying plaintiff's motion that the court modify its opinion in this respect.

8934 4. The court erred in holding that, in so far as the present suit attacks the validity of any of defendants' patents, the distinction between this suit and an independent proceeding by the Government for cancellation of such patents is not substantial.

5. The court erred in holding that where the Government brings a proceeding under the Sherman Act charging an illegal price-fixing conspiracy, it may not show the fact of patent invalidity in order to show the illegality of the defendants' conspiracy.

6. The court erred in holding that in a proceeding brought by the Government under the Sherman Act in which the validity of certain of defendants' patents is pertinent to the issues in such proceeding, the Government is estopped to show the invalidity of these patents.

7. The court erred in ruling at the trial that where one of the defendants had admitted, under Rule 36 of the Rules of Civil Procedure, the genuineness of a document written by him, the admission of genuineness bound only such defendant, and a declaration in furtherance of the conspiracy contained in the document bound only such defendant even though the conspiracy has been established aliunde.

8. The court erred in holding that on a motion to dismiss at the close of plaintiff's case in a nonjury action under Rule 41(b) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, it is the duty of the court to weigh the evidence, draw inferences therefrom, and, if it finds the evidence insufficient to make out a case for the plaintiff, to render a decision for the defendant on the merits.

9. The court erred in holding that on the defendants' motion to dismiss pursuant to Rule 41(b), every factual issue as to which the evidence before the court did not preponderate in favor of the plaintiff must be resolved against the plaintiff.

10. The court erred in holding that Rule 52(a) of the Rules of Civil Procedure required the court to make findings of fact upon the granting of defendants' motion to dismiss.

8935 11. The court erred in making any findings of fact in the present case.

12. The court erred in holding that defendants' patent license contracts are indistinguishable from the patent licensing agreement ruled upon in United States v. General Electric Co., 272 U. S. 476, and that said contracts, including their price provisions, are lawful.

13. The court erred in holding that there is no dispute about the nature of the principal patents upon which the license agreements were founded.

14. The court erred in holding that the defendants did not have the burden of establishing that their price fixing was justified by their patent rights and that the plaintiff had the burden of establishing the contrary.

15. The court erred in holding that the affirmative allegations made in defendants' answers concerning their patent rights do not constitute pleas in confession and avoidance as matters of defense, but may be treated as surplusage, or as denials in affirmative form, or as assertions in aid of denials.

16. The court erred in holding that there was no evidence, outside the declarations of alleged conspirators, to establish any of the charges of illegal conduct made in the complaint.

17. The court erred in making its examination of the evidence upon the basis that each declaration of a defendant was binding only upon the declarant.

18. The court erred in holding that the defendants, in their actual operations under the license agreements, did not exceed the proper limits of rights given by patent law.

19. The court erred in holding that even if the declarations of alleged coconspirators are considered as binding on all the defendants, the evidence fails to establish that the defendants illegally conspired to restrain, or that they illegally conspired to monopolize, interstate commerce in gypsum board and gypsum products.

8936 20. The court erred in finding that Roos patent applications, ultimately issued as patents Nos. 2,017,022, 2,079,338, and 2,080,009, covered cellular core gypsum board produced by the employment of foam or a foaming agent in the core of the board to produce a multitude of cells or voids (Finding 11).

21. The court erred in finding that the court ruled in Universal Gypsum & Lime Co. v. Haggerty, 21 F. 2d 544, that the Haggerty patent (No. 1,500,452) was valid (Finding 12).

22. The court erred in finding that the Haggerty patent solved the "peeler" trouble in the gypsum board industry and made possible modern high-speed production of gypsum board (Findings 12 and 24).

23. The court erred in finding that Roos patent No. 1,914,345 covered the use of metallic foil as a thermal insulating element in board and that this patent covered a board having a metallized surface (Finding 16).

24. The court erred in finding that Roos patent No. 1,938,354 covered a fire-resistant plasterboard having holes punched through it at designated intervals (Finding 17).

25. The court erred in finding that U. S. G. offered a revised perforated lath license to its licensees at no additional royalty (Finding 17).

26. The court erred in finding that the price on board in U.S.G.'s price bulletins was calculated on the basis of a mill price plus freight from the nearest mill (freight-wise) to the point of destination (Finding 18).

27. The court erred in finding that the Utzman (No. 1,034,746), Haggerty (No. 1,500,452) and Roos (Nos. 2,017,-022; 2,079,338 and 2,080,009) patents were product patents upon the entire product and that they covered fundamental developments in the gypsum board industry (Finding 24.)

8937 28. The court erred in finding that when the closed-edge board of the Utzman patent came into the market the open-edge board was largely displaced under the demand of the trade for the better product (Finding 24).

29. The court erred in finding that there is no substantial distinction between the present case and the General Electric case (272 U. S. 476) in respect of either the importance of the patented improvements within the respective license agreements; that the patents are of similar character and bear a similar relationship to the respective industries; and that the patents principally involved in the present case cover the patented product just as completely as did the principal patents in the General Electric case (Finding 25).

30. The court erred in finding that the so-called price protective provisions of U.S.G.'s price bulletins related only to the minimum prices established on the patented product and were designed solely to protect such prices (Finding 26).

31. The court erred in finding that the terms and conditions of the license agreements and price bulletins in the instant case as compared with the terms and conditions, including price provisions, in the General Electric case (272 U. S. 476), disclose no material distinction, and that the provisions of the licenses (sic) in the General Electric case and the licenses in this case in respect to indirect price cutting are of similar character (Finding 27).

32. The court erred in finding that the provisions of all the license agreements and the operations thereunder, including U.S.G.'s price bulletins, are reasonably and normally adapted to secure to U.S.G. the pecuniary reward for its patents and do not go beyond the limits of the monopoly granted by the patent laws (Finding 28).

8938 33. The court erred in finding that the license agreements were not executed to disguise illegal purposes (Finding 29 and 30).

34. The court erred in finding that the enforcement of the license agreements by U.S.G., the formation by U.S.G. of Board Survey, and its activities to bring about compliance by all the licensees, and the meetings between U.S.G. and its licensees, affirmatively evidence good faith (Finding 35).

35. The court erred in finding that the companies which became licensees did so because they desired to settle or avoid litigation and to obtain the right to use U.S.G.'s patents, considering it a business necessity to be able to do so; that some of the licensees had manufactured board containing starch which was covered by the Haggerty patent; and that numerous other patents included in the licenses were essential to the manufacturing of modern gypsum board (Finding 36).

36. The court erred in finding that the decision to take a license was reached by each company independently and that the licensees took their respective licenses without regard to what other companies did (Finding 37).

37. The court erred in finding that Exhibits 227 and 231 do not establish bad faith on the part of Certain-teed in the execution of the license agreements, that Certain-teed was not motivated by a desire for price fixing when it determined to take the license, and that there was no understanding or agreement that the starch and bubble patents or the proposed licenses would be used as a vehicle to obtain price control (Finding 39).

38. The court erred in finding that Exhibit 324 and 212 are equivocal in meaning and do not establish bad faith in the execution of the license agreement (Finding 40).

39. The court erred in finding that Certain-teed acted in good faith in taking the perforated lath license agreement (Finding 43).

8939 40. The court erred in finding that while some of the licensees purchased patented metallized board from other manufacturers and resold it, the resale prices of such board were not fixed by U.S.G., nor was there any understanding or agreement that they would be (Finding 53).

41. The court erred in finding that the fixing of royalties in the license agreements at an amount equivalent to a designated percentage of the licensees' selling price of all gypsum board manufactured by them, whether patented or not, was not intended to drive open-edge board off the market and did not have that effect (Finding 54).

42. The court erred in finding that there were no agreements between U.S.G. and the licensee companies other than those which were put into formal writing and that there were no informal side agreements between U.S.G. and any of the defendants that they would discontinue making open-edge board or seconds of closed-edge board, or that U.S.G. would advance and stabilize the prices for board, or that all or any of the companies would increase their prices for other gypsum products, or that U.S.G. would continue to control prices through the use of other patents after the expiration of the Utzman product patent in August 1929 (Finding 56).

43. The court erred in finding that the evidence does not establish that the license agreements were executed with intent to accomplish restraints beyond the limits of the patent monopoly (Finding 57).

44. The court erred in finding that the license agreements were not executed with an intent to fix prices of board at high levels or any given level and that there was at no time any understanding or agreement or even discussion as to what the prices of gypsum board would be upon the execution of the licenses (Finding 58).

45. The court erred in finding that after the execution of the licenses, the licensees had nothing whatever to do with fixing the minimum prices at which the patented products were to be sold (Finding 59).

8940 46. The court erred in finding that the license agreements were not executed with intent to accomplish improper standardization of board and its method of production or with intent not to make and sell open-edge board or to eliminate it from the market (Findings 61, 64, and 66).

47. The court erred in finding that there was no agreement or understanding that seconds or No. 2 board would not be manufactured, and that the license agreements were not executed with intent to eliminate either seconds or No. 2 board (Findings 67 and 69).

48. The court erred in finding that the provisions for royalty for use of the U.S.G. bundling patents contained in the May 1929 licenses, the Certain-teed July 3, 1929 license, and the November 1929 licenses, do not establish an attempt to standardize by eliminating other methods of packaging, and that the provisions were not so intended and did not have such effect, and that no other method (except an uneconomic one) was available (Findings 71, 72 and 93).

49. The Court erred in finding that there was at no time an understanding or agreement among any of the parties to the respective license agreements that the prices would be raised or fixed upon plaster or any unpatented gypsum product and that the license agreements were not executed with an intent to raise, maintain and stabilize the prices of unpatented materials (Finding 73).

50. The court erred in finding that the primary purpose of the licensees was the obtaining of the right to make a superior product and the settlement or avoidance of litigation, and that the primary purpose of U.S.G. was settlement of litigation, collection of damages for infringement, obtaining royalties, and securing the various advantages which would normally flow from the general manufacture and sale of a superior product (Finding 74).

8941 51. The court erred in finding that the license agreements were not executed with intent to effectuate improper restriction upon the distribution of gypsum board or gypsum products by eliminating jobbers through discontinuance of a sales discount (Finding 75).

52. The court erred in finding that there was no agreement or understanding between any of the parties to eliminate jobbers from the distributive system; that there was no understanding or agreement that jobbers' discounts would be discontinued; that the issuance of the bulletin of August 8, 1930, was the exercise of the right of U.S.G. to establish a price for the patented product; and that after the issuance of this bulletin many jobbers continued to buy board and were able to perform a proper jobber's function (Findings 77, 100, 101 and 102).

53. The court erred in finding that the charge in the complaint of improper restrictions upon distribution of plaster and miscellaneous gypsum products is not established, and that there is no evidence concerning any dealings by U.S.G. or the licensees with jobbers in respect of plaster and miscellaneous gypsum products (Finding 80).

54. The court erred in finding that the license agreements were not executed with an intent to fix or control the prices at which manufacturing distributors would resell gypsum board, and that the defendants did not by any of their operations under the license agreements, or by any agreement or understanding, fix or control the resale prices of gypsum board or attempt so to do (Finding 81, 83, 84, 104, 105, 106, 107, 109, 110, 116 and 117).

55. The court erred in finding that the license agreements were bona fide and were not executed with intent to gain objectives beyond the proper limits of the patent monopoly, and that the operations under the license agreements were not carried beyond the proper limits of the patent monopoly (Findings 85 and 86).

8942 56. The court erred in finding that the defendants did not, by their operations under the license agreements or by any agreement or understanding, illegally raise, maintain, or fix at noncompetitive levels, the price of gypsum board, gypsum products, or other unpatented materials, or accomplish any improper standardization of gypsum board or its method of production (Finding 87, 89, 94, 95, 96, 97 and 99).

57. The court erred in finding that elimination of open-edge board was not the result of any understanding or agreement between the parties and that the evidence fails to establish that there was an elimination of seconds (Findings 90 and 91).

58. The court erred in finding that the defendants did not associate themselves in a plan to blanket the industry under patent licenses and stabilize prices (Finding 118).

59. The court erred in concluding that a patentee may divide his patent monopoly by licensing the right to make, use and sell the patented product and may fix the terms and conditions, including the price, under which the patented product shall be sold, providing the terms and conditions of sale are normally and reasonably adapted to secure the pecuniary reward of the patentee's monopoly (Conc. 2).

60. The court erred in concluding that no legal distinction can properly be drawn between the present case and the General Electric case (Conc. 3).

61. The court erred in concluding that none of the defendants was a party to any contract, combination or conspiracy in illegal restraint of interstate commerce in gypsum products (Conc. 4).

62. The court erred in concluding that none of the defendants monopolized, or attempted to monopolize, or combined or conspired to monopolize, any part of interstate commerce in gypsum products (Conc. 5).

63. The court erred in concluding that the license agreements were executed in good faith and that the activities thereunder of defendants and their agents were lawful and proper and within the limits of the licensor's patent monopoly (Conc. 7).

64. The court erred in concluding that upon the facts and the law, the plaintiff had shown no right to relief (Conc. 8).

65. The court erred in not denying the defendants' motion to dismiss the complaint.

66. The court erred in entering judgment dismissing the complaint.

Wherefore, plaintiff prays that the final decree of the district court may be reversed to the extent that it is inconsistent with the errors herein assigned by the plaintiff, and for such other and fit relief as the court may deem just and proper.

9192 Supreme Court of the United States

Order noting probable jurisdiction

December 16, 1946

The statement of jurisdiction in this case having been submitted and considered by the Court, probable jurisdiction is noted.

9193 Government's Exhibit No. 1

This agreement, executed in duplicate this 29th day of July, 1926, by and between the United States Gypsum Company, an Illinois corporation, of Chicago, Illinois, hereinafter referred to as "Gypsum Company", party of the first part, and The Beaver Products Company, Inc., a New York corporation, of the town of Tonawanda, State of New York, hereinafter referred to as "Beaver Company", party of the second part; witnesseth:

Whereas, the Gypsum Company is the owner of the entire right, title and interest in, to and under Letters Patent of the United States, No. 1,029,328, dated June 11th, 1912, for Method of Manufacturing Plaster Board, and No. 1,034,746, dated August 6th, 1912, for Plaster Board, (hereinafter called the "Utzman patents"), and is also the owner of the entire right, title and interest in, to and under the Letters Patent and Applications for Letters Patent of the United States set forth in Exhibit "A" attached hereto and made a part hereof, and any and all Letters Patent which may be granted therefor or thereupon; and

Whereas, the Gypsum Company is about to acquire in part settlement of its claims against said Beaver Company the entire right, title and interest in, to and under the Letters Patent and Applications for Letters Patent of the United States, set forth in Exhibit "B" attached hereto and made a part hereof; and

Whereas, heretofore, on or about November 20th, 1916, the Gypsum Company filed its Bill of Complaint in the United States District Court for the Northern Dis-

June 13th, 1921, filed its Supplemental Bill in said cause charging infringement of the said last mentioned Letters Patent by the method employed in the manufacture of and by the modified form of plaster board then being manufactured and sold by the defendant in said cause, and thereupon further proceedings were had and taken in said cause (decisions with respect to which are reported in 290 Fed. (C. C. A.) 798, 290 Fed. (C. C. A.) 800, and 263 U. S. 713), and thereafter upon trial in open court the said District Court on or about July 21, 1925, found the issues under said supplemental bill in favor of the Gypsum Company and that the said Letters Patent were infringed by the method of manufacture and by the modified form of plaster board then being manufactured and sold by the defendant therein and ordered an accounting of profits and damages and the issuance of a permanent injunction (decision not yet reported) and more recently, on or about No-
9195 vember 4, 1925, the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit granted a stay of the accounting proceedings and of the issuance of the injunction so ordered by the District Court upon the filing by the defendant (appellant) of a bond in the penal sum of One Million Dollars ($1,000,000.), which said bond was duly filed and said cause is now pending on appeal in the said United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit; and

Whereas, the Gypsum Company has a substantial claim against the Beaver Company because and on account of said infringement, and the parties hereto have expended large sums of money in said patent litigation and the same has been otherwise costly and expensive to them and they are desirous of making a full and complete settlement of said controversy and of avoiding further litigation; and

Whereas, the parties hereto have agreed to settle said claim by the payment to the Gypsum Company by the Beaver Company of the sum of Two Hundred Fifty Thousand Dollars ($250,000.00) in cash, and an amount equivalent to five per cent. (5%) of Beaver Company's selling price of all plaster board or gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it until August 6, 1929, and one and one-half per cent. (1½%) of such selling price from August 6, 1929 to February 10, 1937, and the assignment to the Gypsum Company of the said Letters Patent and applications for Letters Patent set forth in said Exhibit "B", and in the granting to Beaver Company of the license as in this agreement contained.

9196 1. The Beaver Company hereby agrees to pay to the Gypsum Company upon the execution of this agreement the sum of Two Hundred Fifty Thousand Dollars ($250,000.00) and to assign, transfer, convey and set over, or cause to be assigned, transferred, conveyed and set over, unto the Gypsum Company the said Letters Patent and Applications for Letters Patent described in said Exhibit "B" and any and all Letters Patent which may be issued therefor or thereupon, in consideration of which, and of the payment by the Beaver Company to the Gypsum Company of the amounts hereinafter mentioned, the Gypsum Company does hereby release and discharge the Beaver Company, the Beaver Board Companies, Bestwall Manufacturing Company, the American Cement Plaster Company, and every subsidiary, associated or affiliated company, and all persons privy to or claiming under any of them, from all claims and demands, whether for damages or profits or for both damages and profits, which the Gypsum Company now has against them or any of them, for or on account of any infringement of any of its said Utzman patents and said patents described in Exhibit "A", by the Beaver Company or any predecessor in interest or title, prior to the date hereof.

2. The parties hereto do hereby agree to dismiss, without further cost to either party, all actions both at law and in equity, wheresoever pending, arising out of or in any way connected with the infringement of said Utzman patents, against The Beaver Products Company, Inc., the Beaver Board Companies, Bestwall Manufacturing Company, the American Cement Plaster Company, or any subsidiary, associated or affiliated company of any of them, it being understood, however, that the Appeal in Cause No. 3693, October Term, 1925, now pending in the Cir-
9197 cuit Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit, shall be dismissed so that the decree below shall stand as a final adjudication in said cause. It is further understood that the judgment therein for an accounting shall be satisfied of record and that the Gypsum Company waives all right to the issuance of a writ of injunction pursuant to the terms of said decree.

3. The Gypsum Company agrees to give and grant unto Beaver Company an indivisible and non-exclusive right, license and privilege of using the processes and making and using the machines and/or inventions set forth and claimed in said Utzman Patents and in any and all of said patents or applications for letters patent described in said Exhibits "A" and "B", at any and all factories now or hereafter owned and/or operated or controlled by the Beaver Company or any subsidiary, associated or affiliated company, and of manufacturing at any such place or places, selling and using plaster board or gypsum wallboard embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said Utzman patents and said patents and applications for letters patent described in Exhibits "A" and "B", until the 10th day of February, 1937, the date of expiration of Patent No. 1,330,413, mentioned in said Exhibit "A", which said license shall be evidenced by a separate instrument this day executed and delivered to the Beaver Company, a true copy of which is hereto attached marked Exhibit "C", and made a part hereof.

4. The Beaver Company further agrees to pay to the Gypsum Company in settlement and discharge of the said claim, and for the right, license and privilege of 9198 manufacturing, using and/or selling plaster board or gypsum wallboard, and for the privilege of using the processes and making and using the machines and/or inventions embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said Utzman Patents and in any and all of said patents and applications for letters patent described in Exhibits "A" and "B", an amount (hereinafter for convenience referred to as a license fee or royalty) equivalent to five per cent. (5%) of the selling price of the Beaver Company, of all plaster board or gypsum wallboard of every kind, manufactured and sold by the Beaver Company between the date hereof and August 6, 1929 the date of the expiration of said Utzman Patent No. 1,034,746, and thereafter an amount equivalent to one and one-half per cent. (1½%) of the selling price of the Beaver Company, of all such plaster board or gypsum wallboard, from August 6, 1929 until February 10, 1937, the date of the expiration of said patent No. 1,330,413.

5. It is expressly understood and agreed that the said license shall be personal to the Beaver Company and that the same or any right therein or thereunder shall not be sold, assigned or transferred without the written consent of the Gypsum Company or transferred by operation of law, except that the same may be assigned to any successor or subsidiary corporation of the Beaver Company, and except that in the event of the appointment of a receiver or receivers for the purpose of conserving the business and assets of the Beaver Company, such receiver or receivers shall succeed to all the Beaver Company's rights under said license and under this agreement.

9199 6. The said License shall contain a provision that the said license is granted upon the condition that the Gypsum Company shall have, and that it does thereby reserve, the right to determine and fix at any time, and to change from time to time during the term of said Utzman Patent Number 1,034,746, the minimum price or prices (not more, however, than the then prevailing market price or prices) at which the Beaver Company shall sell any plaster board or gypsum wallboard manufactured by the Beaver Company embodying the improvements set forth and claimed in said Utzman Patent Number 1,034,746, and in case it shall exercise the right so reserved it shall first serve written notice of its intention so to do upon the Beaver Company, accompanied with a statement of the price or prices at which the Beaver Company shall sell said patented product, and thereafter shall give to the Beaver Company written or telegraphic notice of any change in such price or prices, and the Beaver Company expressly covenants and agrees that it will not at any time during the term of said Utzman Patent Number 1,034,746, after the receipt of such notice, directly or indirectly sell or offer for sale any plaster board or gypsum wallboard, embodying the improvements set forth and claimed in said Utzman Patent Number 1,034,746, at a price or prices less than that stated by the Gypsum Company in said notice, or in any such written or telegraphic notice of a change in such price or prices. It is expressly understood and agreed that this provision of the said License shall apply only to the said Utzman Patent Number 1,034,746, and shall not apply to any of said other Letters Patent.

9200 7. The Beaver Company agrees, during the term of said license, to keep separate, full and accurate books of account and records showing the exact quantity of all plaster board and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it, and agrees that on or before the 20th day of each and every calendar month during said term it will render unto the Gypsum Company true written returns, verified under oath by an officer or other agent of the Beaver Company, setting forth the quantity of all said plaster board and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it during the preceding calendar month, together with the price or prices at which the same was sold, such written returns to be delivered to the Gypsum Company at its office in Chicago, Illinois, and the Beaver Company agrees to pay to the Gypsum Company, on or before the 20th day of each calendar month, at the office of the Gypsum Company at Chicago, Illinois, the hereinbefore stipulated royalties or license fees which may then be due under the said license on account of all of said plaster board and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it during the next preceding calendar month.

8. The Gypsum Company, or its duly authorized representative, shall during the term of said license have the right at all reasonable times during business hours to inspect the books of account and records of the Beaver Company referred to in the next preceding paragraph hereof, including all records of every kind showing the quantity of said plaster board and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it, the price or prices at which the same was sold, and to make copies thereof and memoranda therefrom.

9201 9. The Beaver Company agrees that all plaster board or gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it embodying the claims of any of said patents, shall be distinctly marked with the word "patented" together with the dates of the Utzman patents and the dates of any other patents which the Gypsum Company may properly specify, and in connection with the said markings it will further mark said patented product with the words "Licensed under the above Letters Patent", which markings shall be plainly visible.

10. Having regard for the fact that there are or may be certain manufacturers of plaster or gypsum products who do not or may not manufacture gypsum wallboard or plaster board but who desire or may desire to have gypsum wall-

board or plaster board manufactured for them, it is understood and agreed that the Beaver Company may manufacture gypsum wallboard or plaster board embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said Letters Patent, for any such other manufacturer; provided, however, that the said license fee or royalty to be paid to the Gypsum Company as hereinbefore provided, shall be based upon all gypsum wallboard or plaster board manufactured for such other manufacturer, and upon the regular selling price of the Beaver Company of such plaster board or gypsum wallboard to its regular dealer trade at the time of such sale, and shall not be based upon the price at which said plaster board or gypsum wallboard is sold by the Beaver Company to such other manufacturer.

11. The Beaver Company expressly covenants and agrees that all of said patented product sold by it and commonly known in the trade as "seconds" shall be plainly invoiced as seconds and shall be plainly marked with a visible red stamp or label firmly fixed on each of said boards 9202 showing the word "seconds" in letters at least three inches in height.

12. It is expressly understood and agreed that the patented product manufactured and sold hereunder shall include all board having a protected edge, it being recognized by the parties hereto that any board manufactured by the Beaver Company having a protected edge is within the scope of said Utzman patents Nos. 1,029,328 and 1,034,746.

After the expiration of said Letters Patent No. 1,034,746, and until the expiration of Letters Patent No. 1,330,413, it is expressly understood and agreed that the patented product manufactured and sold hereunder shall include all board having a protected edge, the parties hereto agreeing hereby that any and all board having a protected edge is within the claims or is manufactured according to the processes or by the use of machines embodying the claims either of said Letters Patent No. 1,330,413, or of one or more of the other of said letters patent listed in Exhibits "A" and "B" hereto, under which the aforesaid indivisible and non-exclusive right, license and privilege is granted.

the said letters patent and each of them, and agrees that it will not at any time before or after the expiration or termination of said license, directly or indirectly, by itself, through or together with another or others, contest the validity of either or any of said letters patent or the title thereto of the Gypsum Company, or question in any way the prima facie scope of either or any of said letters 9203 patent, or the priority, novelty or patentability of the subject matter of any of the said applications for letters patent.

14. In the event that the Beaver Company shall at any time neglect, fail or refuse to keep or perform any of the conditions and agreements herein to be by the Beaver Company kept and performed, then Gypsum Company, at its election, may serve upon Beaver Company notice of intention to terminate the license herein granted, which notice shall specify the alleged neglect, failure or refusal; and if, within thirty (30) days from the date of delivery of said notice, the Beaver Company shall not keep or perform the conditions and agreements specified in said notice, then said license and all rights acquired by the Beaver Company thereunder shall be and become cancelled and terminated, without the necessity of any court action; provided, however, that the Beaver Company shall not be relieved thereby from paying to the Gypsum Company any licensee fees or royalties or any other obligations accrued hereunder at the time of such termination. In case at any time the Beaver Company shall commit any act of bankruptcy, then the license hereunder shall immediately be and become cancelled and terminated, but the Gypsum Company shall not thereby be prevented from collecting all license fees or royalties and other obligations accrued hereunder at the time of such termination. Failure on the part of the Gypsum Company to notify the Beaver Company of a breach of the license or to terminate said license because of such breach shall not constitute a waiver of the Gypsum Company's right to terminate said license in accordance with the provisions of this paragraph. The Gypsum Company may specif-9204 ically enforce this contract or any of the terms, conditions and covenants thereof, by injunction or in such other manner as may be provided by law.

15. It is understood and agreed that if at any time during the continuance of the license the Beaver Company shall, in the judgment of the Gypsum Company, suffer substantial detriment by reason of any infringement upon the part of any person or persons of the said patents whether now or hereafter issued under which the license is granted, the Gypsum Company will afford the Beaver Company such reasonable protection as in the judgment of the Gypsum Company shall be necessary or proper, and in case the Gypsum Company shall grant to any such infringer, or to any other person, any license under said patents upon terms more favorable than those contained in the said license, then it will grant to Beaver Company a license on the same terms.

16. The Gypsum Company agrees, upon the expiration of the said license, to grant to the Beaver Company a license to manufacture, use and/or sell under said patents and applications for letters patent described in said Exhibits "A" and "B", upon such terms and conditions as may then be agreed upon between the parties hereto, and failing to arrive at any such agreement the Gypsum Company will grant to the Beaver Company from and after such expiration date, a license to make, and use the machines and use the processes and to manufacture, use and sell the articles disclosed in said patents and applications for letters patent described in said Exhibit "B", whether or not disclosed or claimed in any patent or application for letters patent, described in Exhibit "A", in consideration of the sum 9205 of One Dollar ($1.00), the receipt whereof is hereby acknowledged by the Gypsum Company.

17. The terms "plasterboard" and "gypsum wall board" shall be understood to mean all board by whatever name called having the structural characteristics of plasterboard or gypsum wall board, irrespective of the purpose for which the same may be sold or used.

18. This agreement shall be binding upon and inure to the benefit of the successors and assigns of the parties hereto, but nothing in this paragraph contained shall be construed to permit an assignment by the Beaver Company of any right hereunder, or under said license, except as hereinabove specifically authorized.

19. It is understood and agreed that the patents and applications for Letters Patent set forth in Exhibit "B" are pledged with Central Trust Company of Illinois and Aksel K. Bodholdt, Trustees under a certain First and Refunding mortgage, executed by Beaver Products Company, Inc., to said Central Trust Company and Aksel K. Bodholdt, Trustee, dated July 1, 1922, and the same are to be released and assigned to the Gypsum Company by said trustees, or one of said trustees. It is further understood and agreed that the Beaver Company shall be authorized and empowered to pledge the license herein provided for with said trustees under said mortgage, with the express understanding, however, that the same shall not be transferred or assigned by said trustees, on a foreclosure of said mortgage, to any person or persons, without the consent of the Gypsum Company.

In witness whereof, the parties hereto have caused these presents to be signed by their respective Presidents,

9212 EXHIBIT "C"

LICENSE AGREEMENT

This agreement executed in duplicate this ——— day of July, 1926, by and between the United States Gypsum Company, an Illinois corporation of Chicago, Illinois, hereinafter referred to as "Licensor" and The Beaver Products Company, Inc., a New York Corporation of the Town of Tonawanda, State of New York, hereinafter referred to as "Licensee", witnesseth:

Whereas, Licensor is the owner of the entire right, title and interest in, to and under Letters Patent of the United States, No. 1,029,328, dated June 11th, 1912, and No. 1,034,746, dated August 6th, 1912, (hereinafter called the "Utzman Patents"), and is also the owner of the entire right, title and interest in, to and under the Letters Patent and applications for Letters Patent of the United States set forth in Exhibit "A" attached hereto and made a part hereof, and any and all Letters Patent which may be granted therefor or thereupon; and

Whereas, heretofore said Utzman patents have been adjudicated by the United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division, and by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit (258 Fed. 647; 270 Fed. 542; 290 Fed. 798; 290 Fed. 800; see also 263 U. S. 713), and said courts have decreed that said Utzman patents are valid and were infringed by the defendants in the cases so reported, and in the decision of the said District Court rendered on or about July 21, 1925, and not yet reported, by reason of the making, using and selling of plaster board or gypsum wallboard
9213 having protected edges, and said District Court has ordered perpetual injunctions and accountings against said defendants; and

Whereas, Licensee recognizes and admits the validity and scope of said Utzman patents and admits that Licensee has heretofore infringed upon the same, and that Licensor has a substantial claim against Licensee for damages and profits because and on account of said infringement, and both Licensor and Licensee have expended or will be compelled to expend large sums of money in patent litigation in respect of said infringement, and such litigation has been, or will be otherwise costly and expensive to both of said parties who are therefore desirous of making a full and complete settlement of their controversies and of avoiding further litigation; and

Whereas, the parties hereto have agreed to settle said claim by the payment to the Licensor by the Licensee, of a sum of money in cash and an amount equivalent to five per cent. (5%) of Beaver Company's selling price of all plaster board or gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it until August 6, 1929, and one and one-half per cent. (1½%) of such selling price from August 6, 1929 to February 10, 1937, and the assignment to Licensor of certain Letters Patent and applications for Letters Patent, and the granting of this License to the Licensee.

9214 1. Licensor has agreed to and does hereby give and grant unto Licensee, an indivisible and non-exclusive right, license and privilege of using the processes, and making and using the machines and/or inventions set forth and claimed in said Utzman Patents, and in any and all of said patents or applications for letters patent described in said Exhibit "A", at any and all factories now or hereafter owned and/or operated or controlled by Licensee or any subsidiary, associated or affiliated company, and of manufacturing at any such place or places, selling and/or using plaster board or gypsum wallboard embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said Utzman patents and said patents and applications for letters patent described in Exhibit "A", until the 10th day of February, 1937, the date of expiration of Patent No. 1,330,413, mentioned in said Exhibit "A".

It is expressly agreed and understood that the indivisible and non-exclusive right, license and privilege aforesaid is granted upon condition that the Licensor shall have, and it hereby reserves the right to determine and fix at any time, and to change from time to time during the term of said Utzman Patent number 1,034,746 the minimum price or prices (not more, however, than the then prevailing market price or prices) at which the Licensee shall sell any plaster board or gypsum wallboard manufactured by Licensee embodying the improvements set forth and claimed in said Utzman Patent number 1,034,746, and in case it shall exercise the right so reserved it shall first serve written notice of its intention so to do upon Licensee, accompanied with a statement of the price or prices at which the Licensee shall sell said patented product, and thereafter shall give to the Licensee written or telegraphic notice of any 9215 change in such price or prices, and the Licensee expressly covenants and agrees that it will not at any time during the term of said Utzman Patent number 1,034,746, after the receipt of such notice, directly or indirectly sell or offer for sale, any plaster board or gypsum wallboard embodying the improvements set forth and claimed in said Utzman Patent number 1,034,746 at a price or prices less than that stated by the Licensor in said notice, or in any such written or telegraphic notice of a change in such price or prices. It is expressly understood and agreed that this provision of the said License shall apply only to the said Utzman Patent number 1,034,746, and shall not apply to any of said other Letters Patent.

2. The Licensee further agrees to pay to the Licensor, in settlement and discharge of the said claim, and for the right, license and privilege of manufacturing, using and/or selling plaster board or gypsum wallboard, and for the privilege of using the processes and making and using the machines and/or inventions, embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said Utzman Patents and in any and all of said patents and applications for letters patent described in Exhibit "A", an amount (hereinafter for convenience referred to as a license fee or royalty) equivalent to five per cent. (5%) of the selling price of the Licensee, of all plaster board or gypsum wallboard of every kind, manufactured and sold by Licensee between the date hereof and August 6, 1929, the date of the expiration of said Utzman Patent No. 1,034,746, and thereafter an amount equivalent to one and one-half per cent. (1½%) of the selling price of the Licensee, of all such plaster board or gypsum wallboard, from August 6, 1929 until February 10, 1937, the date of the expiration of said patent No. 1,330,413.

9216 3. It is expressly understood and agreed that the said License shall be personal to the Licensee and that the same or any right therein or thereunder shall not be sold, assigned or transferred without the written consent of the Licensor or transferred by operation of law, except that the same may be assigned to any successor or subsidiary corporation of Licensee, and except that in the event of the appointment of a receiver or receivers for the purpose of conserving the business and assets of Licensee, such receiver or receivers shall succeed to all of Licensee's rights under said License and under this agreement.

4. Licensee agrees to keep separate, full and accurate books of account and records showing the exact quantity of all plaster board and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it, and agrees that on or before the 20th day of each and every calendar month it will render unto Licensor true written returns, verified under oath by an officer or other agent of Licensee, setting forth the quantity of all plaster board and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it during the preceding calendar month, together with the price or prices at which the same was sold, such written returns to be delivered to Licensor at its office in Chicago, Illinois, and Licensee agrees to pay to Licensor, on or before the 20th day of each calendar month, at the office of Licensor at Chicago, Illinois, the hereinbefore stipulated royalties or license fees which may then be due under this agreement on account of all of said plaster board and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it during the next preceding calendar month.

5. Licensor, or its duly authorized representative shall have the right at all reasonable times during busi-
9217 ness hours to inspect the books of account and records of Licensee referred to in the next preceding paragraph hereof, including all records of every kind showing the quantity of said plaster board and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it, the price or prices at which the same was sold, and to make copies thereof and memoranda therefrom.

6. Licensee agrees that all plaster board or gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it embodying the claims of any of said patents shall be distinctly marked with the word "Patented", together with the dates of the Utzman patents, and the dates of any other patents which Licensor may properly specify, and in connection with the said markings it will further mark said patented product with the words "Licensed under the above Letters Patent", which markings shall be plainly visible.

ter board but who desire or may desire to have gypsum wallboard or plaster board manufactured for them, it is understood and agreed that Licensee may manufacture gypsum wallboard or plaster board embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said Letters Patent, for any such other manufacturer; provided, however, that the said license fee or royalty to be paid to Licensor as hereinbefore provided shall be based upon all gypsum wallboard or plaster board manufactured for such other manufacturer and upon the regular selling price of Licensee of such plaster board or gypsum wallboard 9218 to its regular dealer trade at the time of such sale,
and shall not be based upon the price at which plaster board or gypsum wallboard is sold by Licensee to such other manufacturer.

8. Licensee expressly covenants and agrees that all of said patented product sold by it and commonly known in the trade as "seconds" shall be plainly invoiced as seconds and shall be plainly marked with a visible red stamp or label firmly fixed on each of said boards showing the word "seconds" in letters at least three inches in height.

9. It is expressly understood and agreed that the patented product manufactured and sold hereunder shall include all board having a protected edge, it being recognized by the parties hereto that any board manufactured by Licensee having a protected edge is within the scope of said Utzman patents Nos. 1,029,328 and 1,034,746.

After the expiration of said Letters Patent No. 1,034,746 and until the expiration of Letters Patent No. 1,330,413, it is expressly understood and agreed that the patented product manufactured and sold hereunder shall include all board having a protected edge, the parties hereto agreeing hereby that any and all board having a protected edge is within the claims or is manufactured according to the processes or by the use of machines embodying the claims either of said Letters Patent No. 1,330,413, or of one or more of the other of said letters patent listed in Exhibit "A" hereto, under which the aforesaid indivisible and non-exclusive right, license and privilege is granted.

10. As one of the considerations for the indivisible and non-exclusive license herein and hereby granted, Li-
9219 censee hereby acknowledges the validity of the Letters Patent, granted and to be granted, forming the subject-matter of this license, throughout the respective lives of the said Letters Patent and each of them, and agrees that it will not at any time before or after the expiration or termination of this license, directly or indirectly, by itself, through or together with another or others, contest the validity of either or any of said Letters Patent or the title thereto of Licensor, or question in any way the prima facie scope of either or any of said Letters Patent, or the priority, novelty or patentability of the subject-matter of any of the said applications for letters patent.

11. In the event that Licensee shall at any time neglect, fail or refuse to keep or perform any of the conditions and agreements herein to be by Licensee kept and performed, then Licensor, at its election, may serve upon Licensee notice of intention to terminate the license herein granted, which notice shall specify the alleged neglect, failure or refusal; and if, within thirty (30) days from the date of delivery of said notice, Licensee shall not keep or perform the conditions and agreements specified in said notice, then said license and all rights acquired by Licensee hereunder shall be and become cancelled and terminated without the necessity of any court action; provided, however, that Licensee shall not be relieved thereby from paying to Licensor any license fees or royalties or any other obligations accrued hereunder at the time of such termination. In case at any time Licensee shall commit any act of bankruptcy, then the license hereunder shall immediately be and become cancelled and terminated, but Licensor
9220 shall not thereby be prevented from collecting all license fees or royalties and other obligations accrued hereunder at the time of such termination. Failure on the part of Licensor to notify Licensee of a breach of this license contract or to terminate said license because of such breach shall not constitute a waiver of Licensor's right to terminate said license in accordance with the provisions of this paragraph. Licensor may specifically enforce this contract or any of the terms, conditions and covenants hereof, by injunction or in such other manner as may be provided by law.

12. Any notice to be given under the terms hereof may be served upon the Licensee by mailing the same to the Licensee, postage prepaid, addressed to it at its last known principal office, and the deposit of any such notice in the United States mails, postage prepaid and so addressed, shall constitute service of said notice upon the Licensee.

13. It is understood and agreed that if at any time during the term hereof the Licensee shall, in the judgment of the Licensor, suffer substantial detriment by reason of any infringement upon the part of any person or persons of the said patents, whether now or hereafter issued, under which this license is granted, the Licensor will afford the Licensee such reasonable protection as in the judgment of the Licensor shall be necessary or proper; and in case the Licensor shall grant to any such infringer, or to any other person, any license under said patents upon terms more favorable than these granted hereunder to this Licensee, then it will grant to this Licensee a license on the same terms.

14. The terms "plasterboard" and "gypsum wall board" shall be understood to mean all board by whatever 9221 name called having the structural characteristics of plasterboard or gypsum wallboard, irrespective of the purpose for which the same may be sold or used.

15. This license and all of the coverants and agreements hereof shall be binding upon and inure to the benefit of the successors and assigns of the parties hereto, but nothing in this paragraph shall be construed to permit an assignment hereof by the Licensee except as hereinabove specifically provided.

In witness whereof, the parties hereto have caused these presents to be signed by their respective Presidents, attested by their respective Secretaries, and their corporate seals to be hereunto affixed, in duplicate, the day and year first above written.

This agreement executed in duplicate this 17th day of September 1926, by and between the United States Gypsum Company, an Illinois corporation, of Chicago, Illinois, hereinafter referred to as "Licensor" and the Universal Gypsum & Lime Co., a Delaware corporation, with its principal business office in the City of Chicago, State of Illinois, hereinafter referred to as "Licensee," witnesseth,

Whereas, Licensor is the owner of the entire right, title and interest in, to and under Letters Patent of the United States, Number 1,029,328, dated June 11th, 1912 and Number 1,034,746, dated August 6th, 1912, (hereinafter called the "Utzman Patents"), and is also the owner of the entire right, title and interest in, to and under the Letters Patent and applications for Letters Patent of the United States set forth in Exhibit "A" attached hereto and made a part hereof, and any and all Letters Patent which may be granted therefor or thereupon; and

Whereas, heretofore said Utzman patents have been adjudicated by the United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division, and by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit (258 Fed. 647; 270 Fed. 542; 290 Fed. 798; 290 Fed. 800; see also 263 U. S. 713), and said courts have decreed that said Utzman patents are valid and were infringed by the defendants in the cases so reported, and in the decision of the said District Court rendered on or about July 21, 1925, and not yet reported, by reason of the making, using and selling of plaster board or gypsum wallboard having protected edges, and said District
9223 Court has ordered perpetual injunctions and accountings against said defendants; and

Whereas, Licensee recognizes and admits the validity and scope of said Utzman patents insofar only as they cover plaster board and/or gypsum wallboard, and admits that Licensee has heretofore infringed upon the same, and that Licensor has a substantial claim against Licensee for damages and profits because and on account of said infringement, and both Licensor and Licensee have expended or will be compelled to expend large sums of money in patent litigation in respect of said infringement, and such litigation has been, or will be otherwise costly and expensive to both of said parties who are therefore desirous of making a full and complete settlement of their controversies and of avoiding further litigation; and

Whereas, the parties hereto have agreed to settle said claim by the payment to the Licensor by the Licensee, of a sum of money and an amount equivalent to five per cent. (5%) of Licensee's selling price of all plaster board or gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it until August 6, 1929, and one and one-half per cent (1½%) of such selling price from August 6, 1929 to February 10, 1937 as hereinafter provided in paragraph numbered 2 of this agreement, and the granting of this license to the Licensee for the consideration expressed in said paragraph numbered 2;

Now, therefore, in consideration of the sum of One Dollar ($1.00) and other good and valuable considerations, the receipt whereof is hereby acknowledged, the parties hereto do hereby agree as follows, to-wit:

9224 right, license and privilege of using the processes, and making and using the machines and/or inventions set forth and claimed in said Utzman patents, and in any and all of said patents or applications for letters patent described in said Exhibit "A", at any and all factories now or hereafter owned and/or operated or controlled by Licensee or any subsidiary, associated or affiliated company, and of manufacturing at any such place or places plaster board and/or gypsum wallboard embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said Utzman patents and said patents and applications for letters patent described in Exhibit "A", and of selling and/or using such plaster board and/or gypsum wallboard so manufactured, until the 10th day of February, 1937, the date of expiration of Patent Number 1,330,413, mentioned in said Exhibit "A".

It is expressly agreed and understood that the indivisible and non-exclusive right, license and privilege aforesaid is granted upon condition that the Licensor shall have, and it hereby reserves the right to determine and fix at any time, and to change from time to time during the term of said Utzman Patent Number 1,034,746 the minimum price or prices (not more, however, than the then prevailing market price or prices) at which the Licensee shall sell any plaster board or gypsum wallboard manufactured by Licensee embodying the improvements set forth and claimed in said Utzman Patent Number 1,034,746, and in case it shall exercise the right so reserved it shall first serve written notice of its intention so to do upon Licensee, accompanied with a statement of the price or prices at which the Licensee shall sell said patented product, and thereafter shall give to the Licensee written or telegraphic notice of any change in such price or prices, and the Licensee expressly covenants and agrees that it will not be at 9225 any time during the terms of said Utzman Patent Number 1,034,746, after the receipt of such notice, directly or indirectly sell or offer for sale, any plaster board or gypsum wallboard embodying the improvements set forth and claimed in said Utzman Patent Number 1,034,746, at a price or prices less than that stated by the Licensor in said notice, or in any such written or telegraphic notice of a change in such price or prices. It is expressly understood and agreed that this provision of the said license shall apply only to the said Utzman Patent Number 1,034,746, and shall not apply to any of said other Letters Patent.

2. The Licensee has agreed, and does hereby agree, to pay to the Licensor, in settlement and discharge of the said claim, and for the right, license and privilege of manufacturing, using and/or selling plaster board or gypsum wallboard, and for the privilege of using the processes and making and using the machines and/or inventions embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said Utzman patents and in any and all of said patents and applications for letters patent described in Exhibit "A", an amount (hereinafter for convenience referred to as a license fee or royalty) equivalent to five per cent. (5%) of the selling price of the Licensee, of all plaster board or gypsum wallboard of every kind, manufactured and sold by Licensee between the date hereof and August 6, 1929, the date of the expiration of said Utzman Patent Number 1,034,746, and thereafter an amount equivalent to one and one-half per cent. (1½%) of the selling price of the Licensee, of all such plaster board or gypsum wallboard, from August 6, 1929, until February 10, 1937, the date of the expiration of said Patent Number 1,330,413.

3. It is expressly understood and agreed that the said license shall be personal to the Licensee and that the same or any right therein or thereunder shall not be sold, 9226 assigned or transferred without the written consent of the Licensor or transferred by operation of law, except that the same may be assigned to any successor or subsidiary corporation of Licensee, and except that in the event of the appointment of a receiver or receivers for the purpose of conserving the business and assets of Licensee, such receiver or receivers shall succeed to all of Licensee's rights under said license and under this agreement.

4. Licensee agrees to keep separate, full and accurate books of account and records showing the exact quantity of all plaster board and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it, and agrees that on or before the 20th day of each and every calendar month it will render unto Licensor true written returns, verified under oath by an officer or other agent of Licensee, setting forth the quantity of all plaster board and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it during the preceding calendar month, together with the price or prices at which the same was sold and invoiced, such written returns to be delivered to Licensor at its office in Chicago, Illinois, and Licensee agrees to pay to Licensor, on or before the 20th day of each calendar month, at the office of Licensor at Chicago, Illinois, the hereinbefore stipulated royalties or license fees which may then be due under this agreement on account of all of said plaster board and gypsum wallboard sold and invoiced by it during the next preceding calendar month.

9227 of said plaster board and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it, the price or prices at which the same was sold, and to make copies thereof and memoranda therefrom.

6. Licensee agrees that all plaster board or gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it embodying the claims of any of said patents shall be distinctly marked with the word "Patented", together with the dates of the Utzman patents, and the date of any other patents which Licensor may properly specify, and in connection with the said markings it will further mark said patented product with the words "Licensed under the above Letters Patent", which markings shall be plainly visible.

7. Having regard for the fact that there are or may be certain manufacturers of plaster or gypsum products, or jobbers of such products, who do not or may not manufacture gypsum wallboard or plaster board but who desire or may desire to have gypsum wallboard or plaster board manufactured for them, it is understood and agreed that Licensee may manufacture gypsum wallboard or plaster board embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said Letters Patent, for any such other manufacturer and/or jobber; provided, however, that the said license fee or royalty to be paid to Licensor as hereinbefore provided shall be based upon all gypsum wallboard or plaster board manufactured for, and sold and invoiced to, such other manufacturer and/or jobber and upon the regular selling price of Licensee of such plaster board or gypsum wallboard to its regular dealer trade at the time of such sale and invoice, and shall not be based upon the price at which plaster board or gypsum wallboard is sold and invoiced by Licensee to such other manufacturer or jobber.

8. Licensee expressly covenants and agrees that all of said patented product sold by it and commonly 9228 known in the trade as "seconds" shall be plainly invoiced as seconds and shall be plainly marked with a visible red stamp or label firmly fixed on each of said boards showing the word "seconds" in letters at least three inches in height.

9. It is expressly understood and agreed that the patented plaster board and/or gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold hereunder shall include all such board having a protected edge, it being recognized by the parties hereto that any such board manufactured by Licensee having a protected edge is within the scope of said Utzman Patents Numbers 1,029,328 and 1,034,746.

After the expiration of said Letters Patent Number 1,034,746 and until February 10, 1937, the date of the expiration of Letters Patent Number 1,330,413, it is expressly understood and agreed that the patented plaster board and/or gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold hereunder shall include all such board having a protected edge, and that any and all such board having a protected edge is within the claims or is manufactured according to the processes or by the use of machines embodying the claims either of said Letters Patent Number 1,330,413, or of one or more of the other of said letters patent listed in Exhibit "A" hereto, under which the aforesaid indivisible and non-exclusive right, license and privilege is granted.

10. As one of the considerations for the indivisible and non-exclusive license herein and hereby granted, Licensee hereby acknowledges only until February 10, 1937, the date of the expiration of the said Letters Patent Number 1,330,413, the validity of the aforesaid Utzman patents and all of the said Letters patent, granted and to be granted on applications for patents specified in Exhibit "A", and only insofar as each and every of said Letters Patent relate to plaster board and/or gypsum wallboard, and agrees that it will not at any time prior to February 10, 1937, 9229 the date of the expiration of said Letters Patent Number 1,330,413, whether before or after the termination of this license, insofar only as they relate to plaster board and/or gypsum wallboard, directly or indirectly, by itself, through or together with another or others, contest the validity of either or any of said Letters Patent or the title thereto of Licensor, or question in any way the prima facie scope of either or any of said Letters Patent; but it is expressly understood that the Licensee shall have full right to contest the priority, novelty or patentability of the subject matter of any and all of the claims of the applications for letters patent specified in Exhibit "A" in accordance with customary patent office procedure to the same extent as though this agreement had never been entered into.

11. In the event that Licensee shall at any time neglect, fail or refuse to keep or perform any of the conditions and agreements hereinafter in this paragraph specified to be by Licensee kept and performed, then Licensor, at its election, may serve upon Licensee notice of intention to terminate the license herein granted, which notice shall specify the alleged neglect, failure or refusal; and if Licensee, within thirty (30) days from the date of the delivery of said notice, shall not have paid to Licensor the license fees or royalties then due and payable in accordance with the terms hereof if specified in said notice; or within such thirty (30) day period shall not have made and kept the books of account and records hereinbefore mentioned if specified in said notice; or within such thirty (30) day period shall not have permitted Licensor to examine said books of account and records as hereinbefore provided if specified in said notice; or within thirty (30) 9230 days after receipt of such notice shall not have marked said plaster board or gypsum wallboard manufactured by it subsequent to the receipt of such notice "Patented", with the dates of the patents, or marked or invoiced the same as "seconds", as hereinbefore provided if specified in said notice; or shall, after the receipt of such notice, fail in good faith to comply with the conditions contained in paragraph 1 hereof, in the sale of plaster board and/or gypsum wallboard embodying the improvements set forth and claimed in said Utzman Patent Number 1,034,746, in case Licensor shall exercise the right therein reserved by it, if specified in said notice, then in either of such events the said license and all rights acquired by Licensee hereunder shall be and become cancelled and terminated without the necessity of any court action; provided, however that Licensee shall not be relieved thereby from paying to Licensor any license fees or royalties accrued hereunder at the time of such termination; and provided further that should a difference of opinion arise at any time under this agreement between the parties hereto as to the validity of the grounds for any default that may be specified in said notice, the Licensor shall in such case not be privileged to declare a default hereunder on account of any such alleged default specified in said notice with respect to which a difference of opinion has arisen as aforesaid, until and unless the same has first been settled by arbitration as hereinafter provided. In such case of a difference of opinion, Licensee shall, within said thirty (30) day period, first state in writing to Licensor wherein and in what respect such difference of opinion shall consist and shall at the same time appoint in writing one person as an arbitrator and the Licensor shall thereupon appoint another person as an arbitrator and in case the two persons so appointed shall not agree, within thirty (30) days after such appointment, upon the difference of opinion which shall have arisen, then the two per-9231 sons so appointed shall appoint a third person, and the decision of a majority of the three arbitrators so appointed shall constitute a final settlement of the said difference of opinion and be binding upon both the Licensor and the Licensee; provided, further, that in case the difference of opinion above mentioned shall constitute a difference of opinion as to the amount of the royalties or license fees to be paid hereunder then the Licensee shall first pay or offer to pay the amount of such license fees or royalties which it then admits is due and payable in accordance with the terms hereof and the acceptance thereof by the Licensor shall not waive its rights in the controversy with respect thereto. Upon the determination of the said dispute by the said arbitrators as aforesaid, then if the Licensee shall fail or refuse to comply with the terms of the award or finding made by the said arbitrators within thirty (30) days from the date of such award or finding, in the event such award or finding is against the Licensee, then the Licensor may at its election terminate and cancel this license. In the event of default hereunder by the Licensee and notice of such default is served on Licensee by Licensor as herein provided, and after service of such notice Licensee shall cure such default as herein provided, the same shall constitute a nullification of the said notice by the Licensor as though the same had not been served. In case at any time Licensee shall commit any act of bankruptcy then the license hereunder shall immediately be and become cancelled and terminated, but Licensor shall not thereby be prevented from collecting all license fees or royalties accrued hereunder at the time of such termination. Failure on the part of Licensor to notify Licensee of a breach of this license contract as aforesaid or to terminate said license because of such breach shall not constitute a waiver of Licensor's right to terminate said 9232 license at a later time in accordance with the provisions of this paragraph. Licensor may specifically enforce this contract or any of the terms, conditions and covenants hereof, by injunction or in such other manner as may be provided by law.

12. Any notice to be given under the terms hereof may be served upon the Licensee by mailing the same to the Licensee postage prepaid and duly registered, addressed to it at its last known principal office, and the deposit of any such notice in the United States mails, registered and postage prepaid and so addressed, shall constitute service of said notice upon the Licensee.

13. It is understood and agreed that if at any time during the term hereof the Licensee shall, in the judgment of the Licensor, suffer substantial detriment by reason of any infringement upon the part of any person or persons of the said patents, whether now or hereafter issued, under which this license is granted, by the manufacture, use and/or sale of plaster board and/or gypsum wallboard, the Licensor will afford the Licensee such reasonable protection as in the judgment of the Licensor shall be necessary or proper; and in case the Licensor shall grant to any such infringer, or to any other person, any license or licenses under said patents for the manufacture, use and/or sale of plaster board and/or gypsum wallboard wherein the royalties or license fees are more favorable than those granted hereunder to this Licensee, then the royalties or license fees hereunder shall be automatically reduced for all plaster board and/or gypsum wallboard thereafter sold, to the basis fixed in such other license or licenses for the term or terms of any such other license or licenses, but not to exceed the term of this license.

9233 14. The terms "plaster board" and "gypsum wallboard" wherever used in this agreement, shall be understood to mean plaster board and gypsum wallboard of every kind having the structural characteristics of plaster board or gypsum wallboard, as now commercially recognized, and with fibrous or paper covering on or adjacent to both sides, but the terms shall not be construed to mean precast slabs manufactured from Insulex or other gypsum mixtures that are more than one and one-half (1½) inches in thickness and which do not have a protected edge either in whole or in part.

15. This license and all of the covenants and agreements hereof shall be binding upon and inure to the benefit of the successors and assigns of the parties hereto, but nothing in this paragraph shall be construed to permit an assignment hereof by the Licensee except as hereinabove specifically provided.

In witness whereof, the parties hereto have caused these presents to be signed by their respective Presidents, attested by their respective Secretaries, and their corporate seals to be hereunto affixed, in duplicate, the day and year first above written.

UNITED STATES GYPSUM COMPANY

300 West Adams Street

CHICAGO

JUNE 13, 1929.

MR. M. H. BAKER

National Gypsum Company,

Buffalo, N. Y.

DEAR SIR: To the license agreement between you and the United States Gypsum Company, executed May 16, 1929, is affixed an "Exhibit A" which is a list of United States patents and patent applications. This list was prepared in 1926, a duplicate thereof being attached to a similar agreement executed at that time. Since 1926, however, the status of a number of the patents and applications listed has changed in that two of the patents enumerated have been reissued, a number of the applications listed have since matured into issued patents; certain of the applications are still pending and the remainder have lapsed and hence are not in the list.

In order to bring the list up to date by giving effect to these changes, we have rewritten "Exhibit A" and enclose copy of the same herewith. Will you please substitute the enclosed for "Exhibit A" which is at present affixed to the aforesaid license agreement and advise us that you have done so, returning the old exhibit to us for cancellation.

The Federal Statutes relating to patents have recently been amended to require that in marking an article manufactured under a patent the number of the patent should be given. Will you please, therefore, in marking your product covered by the license, include also the number of each patent with the date thereof, as is now provided for in the license agreement, or if you prefer use only the patent number?

Very truly yours,

S. L. AVERY, President.

9239 LICENSE AGREEMENT

This agreement executed in duplicate this 16th day of May, 1929, by and between the United States Gypsum Company, an Illinois corporation of Chicago, Illinois, hereinafter referred to as "Licensor" and National Gypsum Company, a Delaware corporation, having its principal office at Buffalo, New York, hereinafter referred to as "Licensee," witnesseth:

Whereas, Licensor is the owner of the entire right, title and interest in, to and under Letters Patent of the United States, No. 1,029,398, dated June 11th, 1912, and No. 1,034,746, dated August 6th, 1912 (hereinafter called the "Utzman Patents"), and Letters Patent of the United States, No. 1,358,508, dated November 9, 1920 (hereinafter called the "Birdsey Patent"), and is also the owner of the entire right, title and interest in, to and under the Letters Patent and applications for Letters Patent of the United States set forth in Exhibit "A" attached hereto and made a part hereof, and any and all Letters Patent which may be granted therefor or thereupon; and

Whereas, heretofore said Utzman Patents have been adjudicated by the United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division, and by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit (258 Fed. 647; 270 Fed. 542; 290 Fed. 798; 290 Fed. 800; 15 Fed. (2d) 704; see also 263 U.S. 713), and said courts have decreed that said Utzman Patents are valid and were infringed by the defendants named in said suits, by reason of their making, using and selling plasterboard or gypsum wallboard having protected edges, and said District Court ordered perpetual injunctions and accountings against said defendants; and

9240 Whereas, said Birdsey Patent number 1,358,508 has been adjudicated by the United States District Court for the Northern District of Ohio (in Equity number 1621), and said court has decreed that said Birdsey patent is valid and was infringed by Defendant in said cause by reason of its making, using and selling plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard having edges of the character disclosed in said patent, and said District Court ordered a perpetual injunction and accounting against Defendant which cause is now pending on appeal before the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit (Appeal number 5392); and

Whereas, Licensor has a substantial claim against Licensee for damages and profits because and on account of alleged infringements of patents; and

Whereas, Licensor has agreed to grant a license to Licensee under said patents and to settle the said claim in consideration of the payment by the Licensee to Licensor of five per cent (5%) of Licensee's selling price of all plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it until August 6, 1929, and one and one-half per cent (1½%) of such selling price from August 6th, 1929, to February 10, 1937, plus three and one-half per cent (3½%) of such selling price from August 6, 1929 until said three and one-half per cent (3½%) of such selling price shall aggregate the sum of approximately one hundred Eighty Thousand Dollars ($180,000.00).

Now, therefore, in consideration of the sum of one dollar and other good and valuable considerations, receipt whereof is hereby acknowledged, the parties hereto do hereby agree as follows, to wit:

1. Licensor has agreed to and does hereby give and grant unto licensee, an indivisible and non-exclusive right, license and privilege of using the processes, and making and using the machine and/or inventions set forth
9241 and claimed in said Utzman Patents, and in any and all of said patents or applications for letters patent described in said Exhibit A, at the plant or factory now owned and/or operated by Licensee at Clarence, N. Y. and National City, Michigan, or at any other plant or factory hereafter owned or operated or controlled by it or any subsidiary, associated or affiliated company, and of manufacturing at said plant or factory and selling and/or using plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured at said plant or factory and embodying the invention and improvements set forth and claimed in said Utzman Patents and said patents and applications for letters patent described in Exhibit A, until the 10th day of February, 1937, the date of expiration of patent number 1,330,413 mentioned in said Exhibit A, all subject to the terms and conditions hereinafter stated.

It is expressly understood and agreed that the indivisible and non-exclusive right, license and privilege aforesaid is granted upon condition that the Licensor shall have, and it hereby reserves the right to determine and fix at any time and to change from time to time during the term of said Utzman Patent number 1,034,746 the minimum price or prices at which the Licensee shall sell any plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured by Licensee embodying the improvement set forth and claimed in the said Utzman Patent 1,034,746, and in case it shall exercise the right so reserved it shall first serve written notice of its intention so to do upon Licensee accompanied with a statement of the price or prices at which the Licensee shall sell said patented product, and thereafter shall give to the Licensee written or telegraphic notice of any change in such price or prices, and the Licensee expressly covenants and agrees that it will not at any time during the term of said Utzman Patent number 1,034,746, after the receipt of such notice, directly or indirectly sell or offer for sale any plasterboard or gypsum wallboard embodying the improvements set 9242 forth and claimed in said Utzman Patent number 1,034,746 prior to the expiration thereof at a price or prices less than that stated by the Licensor in said notice or in any such written or telegraphic notice of a change in such price or prices.

2. The Licensee further agrees to pay to the Licensor in settlement and discharge of said claim and for the right, license and privilege of manufacturing, using and/or selling plasterboard or gypsum wallboard, and for the privilege of using the processes and making and using the machines and/or inventions embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said Utzman Patents and in any and all of said patents and applications for letters patent described in Exhibit A, an amount (hereafter for convenience referred to as a license fee or royalty) equivalent to five per cent (5%) of the selling price of the Licensee of all plasterboard or gypsum wallboard of every kind, whether patented or unpatented, manufactured and sold by Licensee between the date hereof and August 6, 1929, the date of the expiration of said Utzman Patent number 1,034,746 and thereafter an amount equivalent to one and one-half per cent (1½%) of the selling price of the Licensee of all such plasterboard or gypsum wallboard from August 6, 1929, until February 10, 1937, the date of the expiration of said patent number 1,330,413, and in addition thereto an amount equivalent to three and one-half per cent (3½%) of the selling price of the Licensee of such plasterboard or gypsum wallboard from August 6, 1929, until said three and one-half per cent (3½%) of said selling price shall have aggregated the sum of approximately One Hundred Eighty Thousand Dollars ($180,000).

It is understood and agreed that if prior to the expiration of said license the Licensee shall not have paid
9243 to the Licensor said additional sum of approximately One Hundred Eighty Thousand Dollars ($180,000) over and above the said five per cent (5%) royalties between the date hereof and August 6, 1929, and the said one and one-half per cent (1½%) royalties from August 6, 1929, until February 10, 1937, the Licensee shall from the date of the expiration of said license pay to the Licensor five per cent (5%) of the selling price of the Licensee of all plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it until said sum of approximately One Hundred Eighty Thousand Dollars ($180,000) shall have been fully paid and satisfied.

It is expressly understood and agreed that this contract is executed without prejudice to Licensor to assert its said claim against Licensee for infringement of its said patents in case for any reason this contract shall not remain in force throughout the full term thereof and the Licensee shall not pay to the Licensor all of the sums of money herein agreed to be paid to it in accordance with the terms hereof, and it is further agreed that the claim of Licensor against Licensee for said infringement is not settled or discharged by the execution of this instrument, but shall only be settled and discharged by the full performance of this contract and the payment to Licensor of said sums of money. In case of the termination of this contract at any time prior to the expiration thereof or in the event of the failure of Licensee to make full payment to Licensor of all of said royalties or license fees, including said additional sum of approximately One Hundred Eighty Thousand Dollars ($180,000), in the manner herein specified, Licensor, shall have the same right which it now has or had prior to the execution of this instrument to recover of and from Licensee the full amount of its said claim for damage for infringement of its said patents, and nothing herein 9244 contained shall prevent the recovery by Licensor of all of its damages for such infringement against Licensee according to the full measure of damages allowed in such cases, the same as if this contract had never been made, less only such sums as shall have been paid by Licensee to Licensor since August 6, 1929, on account of said additional sum or amount of approximately One Hundred Eighty Thousand Dollars ($180,000.00). Upon the payment to Licensor of all of said royalties or license fees throughout the full term of said license plus said additional sum of approximately One Hundred Eighty Thousand Dollars ($180,000.00) at the time and in the manner herein specified, then the said claim of Licensor against Licensee for infringement of its said patents shall thereupon be and become fully settled, discharged and satisfied.

3. It is further agreed that so long as this agreement shall remain in force between the parties hereto, or in case the license granted under paragraph 1 hereof shall continue until February 10, 1937, then until the expiration of the patent specifically described in this paragraph, the Licensor does hereby give and grant unto Licensee an indivisible and non-exclusive right, license and privilege of making and using the inventions set forth and claimed in that certain patent known as the Birdsey Plasterboard Bundle Patent number 1,696,877, dated December 25, 1928, at the plant or factory now owned and/or operated by Licensee at Clarence, N. Y., and National City, Michigan or at any other plant or factory hereafter owned or operated by it and of selling bundles of plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard set forth and claimed in said patent number 1,696,877, upon the terms and conditions hereinafter stated.

The Licensee agrees to pay to the Licensor for the right, license and privilege of making, using, or selling the inventions set forth and claimed in said Patent number 1,696,877 in addition to the sums hereinabove set forth, a li-9245 cense fee or royalty of ten cents (10¢) per thousand square feet of plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard which is sold by it in bundles of any kind, payable at the times and in accordance with the terms of paragraph 5 hereof. It is expressly understood that licensee in its business of manufacturing and selling plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard will use only said bundle set forth and claimed in said patent number 1,696,877 and will not use any other bundle or method of bundling plasterboard during the term of said license.

4. It is expressly understood and agreed that the license herein granted shall be personal to the Licensee and that the same or any right therein or thereunder shall not be sold, assigned or transferred without the written consent of the Licensor or transferred by operation of law.

It is expressly understood that the Licensee shall not discontinue its business of manufacturing and selling plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard until the Licensor shall have received the full payment of all of the amounts agreed to be paid to it hereunder by the Licensee, nor shall this license be assigned to any company or companies acquiring the capital stock or assets of Licensee, or to any company resulting from any merger or consolidation between Licensee and any other company, nor shall any such merger, consolidation or acquisition affect any claim which Licensor has against Licensee or against any such other company for infringement of its said patents; provided, however, that this license may, with the written consent of the Licensor, be assigned to any company holding a similar license from Licensor upon the express assumption by such company of all claims of Licensor against Licensee and of the agreements and obligations of the Licensee herein contained.

9246 5. Licensee agrees to keep separate, full and accurate books of account and records showing the exact quantity of all plasterboard and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it, as well as a separate record of all plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard sold by it in bundles, and agrees that on or before the 20th day of each and every calender month it will render unto Licensor true written returns, verified under oath by an officer or other agent of Licensee, setting forth the quantity of all plasterboard and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it during the preceding calendar month, and the quantity thereof put up and sold by it in bundles, together with the price or prices at which the same was sold, such written returns to be delivered to Licensor at its office in Chicago, Illinois, and Licensee agrees to pay to Licensor, on or before the 20th day of each calendar month, at the office of Licensor at Chicago, Illinois, the hereinbefore stipulated royalties or license fees which may then be due under this agreement on account of all of said plasterboard and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it during the next preceding calendar month.

6. Licensor, or its duly authorized representative, shall have the right at all reasonable times during business hours to inspect the books of account and records of Licensee referred to in the next preceding paragraph hereof, including all records of every kind showing the quantity of said plasterboard and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it, and the quantity thereof put up and sold by it in bundles, the price or prices at which the same was sold, and to make copies thereof and memoranda therefrom.

7. Licensee agrees that all plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it embodying the 9247 claims of any of said patents shall be distinctly marked with the word "Patented", together with the dates of the Utzman Patents, and the dates of any other patents which Licensor may properly specify, and in connection with the said markings it will further mark said patented product with the words, "Licensed under the above Letters Patent," which markings shall be plainly visible.

8. Having regard for the fact that there are or may be certain manufacturers of plaster or gypsum products, or jobbers of such products, who do not or may not manufacture gypsum wallboard or plasterboard but who desire or may desire to have gypsum wallboard or plasterboard manufactured for them, it is understood and agreed that Licensee may with the written consent of Licensor manufacture gypsum wallboard or plasterboard embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said Letters Patent, for any such other manufacturer and/or jobber; provided, however, that the said license fee or royalty to be paid to Licensor as hereinbefore provided shall be based upon all gypsum wallboard or plasterboard manufactured for, and sold and invoiced to, such other manufacturer and/or jobber and upon the regular selling price of Licensee of such plasterboard or gypsum wallboard to its regular dealer trade at the time of such sale and invoice, and shall not be based upon the price at which plasterboard or gypsum wallboard is sold and invoiced by Licensee to such other manufacturer or jobber. The Licensee shall have no right to manufacture and sell any plasterboard or gypsum wallboard embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in any of said letters patent to other manufacturers or jobbers or other wholesale distributors of such products, without the written consent of Licensor.

It is understood that the selling price of the Licensee wherever mentioned in this instrument means the 9248 selling price to its regular dealer trade, and in case of the sale of any of said plasterboard or gypsum wallboard, whether patented or unpatented, for a price less than said price to Licensee's regular dealer trade, Licensee shall account to the Licensor in the payment of royalties hereunder at its regular dealer price; provided, however, that nothing herein continued shall give the Licensee the right to sell any of said patented products upon which the Licensor shall have fixed and determined the price thereof in accordance with the terms hereof at less than such price.

9. The Licensee and the Licensor each expressly covenants and agrees that all of said patented products sold by it and commonly known in the trade as "seconds" shall be plainly invoiced as seconds and shall be plainly marked with a visible red stamp or label firmly fixed on each of said boards showing the word "seconds" in letters at least three inches in height.

10. It is expressly understood and agreed that the patented product manufactured and sold hereunder shall include all board having a protected edge, it being recognized by the parties hereto that any board manufactured by Licensee having a protected edge is within the scope of said Utzman Patents numbers 1,029,326 and 1,034,746.

After the expiration of said Letters Patent number 1,034,746 and until the expiration of Letters Patent number 1,330,413, it is expressly understood and agreed that the patented product manufactured and sold hereunder shall include all board having a protected edge, the parties hereto agreeing hereby that any and all board having a 9249 protected edge is within the claims or is manufactured according to the processes or by the use of machines embodying the claims either of said Letters Patent number 1,330,413, or of one or more of the other of said Letters Patent listed in Exhibit "A" hereto, under which the aforesaid indivisible and non-exclusive right, license and privilege is granted.

11. As one of the considerations for the indivisible and non-exclusive license herein and hereby granted, Licensee hereby acknowledges the validity of the Letters Patent, granted and to be granted, forming the subject-matter of this license, throughout the full term of this contract, unless the same shall be cancelled or terminated prior thereto by reason of the default of the Licensor hereunder, and agrees that it will not at any time before February 10th, 1937 or the earlier termination of the license by reason of the default of the Licensor hereunder, directly or indirectly, by itself, through or together with another or others, contest the validity of either or any of said Letters Patent or the title thereto of Licensor, or question in any way the prima facie scope of either or any of said Letters Patent, or the priority, novelty or patentability of the subject-matter of any of the said applications for letters patent.

12. In the event that either party shall at any time neglect, fail or refuse to keep or perform any of the conditions and agreements herein to be by it kept and performed, then the other party, at its election, may serve upon the party in default written notice of intention to terminate this Agreement, which notice shall specify the alleged neglect, failure or refusal, and if within thirty (30) days from the date of delivery of said notice, the party in default shall not cure the default specified in said notice, then the 9250 other party may cancel and terminate this Agreement, by notifying the party in default, in writing, of its election so to do, without the necessity of any court action; provided, however, that neither party shall be relieved thereby from any liability accrued at the time of such termination. In case at any time the Licensee shall be adjudged a bankrupt, then the license hereunder shall immediately be and become cancelled and terminated, but the Licensor shall not thereby be prevented from collecting all license fees or royalties accrued hereunder at the time of such termination. The waiver of any breach by either party shall not be interpreted as constituting a waiver of any further breach or breaches. Either party may specifically enforce this contract or any of the terms, conditions and covenants hereof by injunction or in such other manner as may be provided by law.

13. Any notice to be given under the terms hereof may be served upon the Licensor or the Licensee by mailing the same to the Licensor or Licensee, postage prepaid, addressed to it as its last known principal office, and the deposit of any such notice in the United States mails, postage prepaid and so addressed, shall constitute service of notice hereunder.

14. It is understood and agreed that if at any time during the term hereof the Licensee shall, in the judgment of the Licensor, suffer substantial detriment by reason of any infringement upon the part of any person or persons of the said patents, whether now or hereafter issued, under which this license is granted, the Licensor will afford the Licensee such responsible protection as in the judgment of the Licensor shall be necessary or proper; and in case the Licensor shall grant to any such infringer, or to any other person, any license under said patents upon terms more favorable than those granted hereunder to this 9251 Licensee, then it will grant to this Licensee a license on the same terms.

15. The terms "plasterboard" and "gypsum wallboard" shall be understood to mean all board by whatever name called having the structural characteristics of plasterboard or gypsum wallboard, irrespective of the purpose for which the same may be sold or used.

16. The term "sum of approximately One Hundred Eighty Thousand Dollars ($180,000)" whenever used herein shall mean an amount of money to be determined as follows:

Within thirty days, an Accountant, satisfactory to both parties, shall make an audit of licensee's books as to quantities and prices of plasterboard and gypsum wallboard of all kinds sold by the licensee prior to the date hereof and shall make a certified report thereon. A sum equivalent to 5% of the licensee's selling price of all plasterboard and gypsum wallboard of all kinds sold by the licensee between the 29th of July, 1926, and the date hereof, as shown by said report of audit, shall be the principal sum; to this sum shall be added another sum as compensation for infringement of patents prior to 29th of July 1926, which shall be determined by the licensor on substantially the same basis as the settlements made by licensor with other infringers of the aforesaid patents, for infringements prior to said date. The two sums thus added together shall be the amount which the term "sum of approximately One Hundred Eighty Thousand Dollars ($180,000)" shall represent and mean.

17. This license and all of the covenants and agreements hereof shall be binding upon and inure to the benefit of the successors and assigns of the parties hereto, but nothing in this paragraph shall be construed to permit an assignment hereof by the Licensee except as hereinabove specifically provided.

LICENSE AGREEMENT

This agreement executed in duplicate this 22 day of May, 1929, by and between the United States Gypsum Company, an Illinois corporation of Chicago, Illinois, hereinafter referred to as "Licensor" and Certain-teed Products Corporation, a Maryland corporation having its principal office at Baltimore, Maryland, hereinafter referred to as "Licensee", witnesseth:

Whereas, Licensor is the owner of the entire right, title and interest in, to and under Letters Patent of the United States, No. 1,029,328, dated June 11th, 1912, and No. 1,034,746, dated August 6th, 1912 (hereinafter called the "Utzman Patents"), and Letters Patent of the United States, No. 1,358,508, dated November 9, 1920 (hereinafter called the "Birdsey Patent"), and is also the owner of the entire right, title and interest in, to and under the Letters Patent and applications for Letters Patent of the United States set forth in Exhibit "A" attached hereto and made a part hereof, and any and all Letters Patent which may be granted therefor or thereupon; and

Whereas, heretofore said Utzman Patents have been adjudicated by the United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division, and by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit (258 Fed. 647; 270 Fed. 542; 290 Fed. 798; 290 Fed. 800; 15 Fed. (2d) 704; see also 263 U. S. 713), and said courts have decreed that said Utzman Patents are valid and were infringed by the defendants named in said suits, by reason of their making, using and selling plasterboard or gypsum wallboard having protected 9258 edges and said District Court ordered perpetual injunctions and accountings against said defendants; and

Whereas, Licensee recognizes and admits the validity and scope of said Utzman patents; and

Whereas, said Birdsey Patent number 1,358,508 has been adjudicated by the United States District Court for the Northern District of Ohio (in Equity Number 1621), and said Court has decreed that said Birdsey Patent is valid and was infringed by defendant in said cause by reason of its making, using and selling plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard having edges of the character disclosed in said patent, and said District Court ordered a perpetual injunction and accounting against defendant, which cause is now pending on appeal before the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit (Appeal number 5392); and

Whereas, on or about April 1, 1928, Licensee acquired substantially all the plants, properties and assets of The Beaver Products Company, Inc., and the Licensor now asserts a claim against the Licensee for a sum equivalent to five per cent (5%) of the Licensee's selling price of all plasterboard and gypsum wallboard of every kind manufactured at plants formerly owned by The Beaver Products Company, Inc., and sold by the Licensee between April 1, 1928, and the date hereof, and the Licensee recognizes such claim and has agreed to pay the same in the manner hereinafter provided; and

Whereas, Licensor, at the request of Licensee, has agreed to grant a license to Licensee under the aforesaid patents, and to settle the said claim, in consideration of the payment by the Licensee to Licensor of five per cent (5%) of Licensee's selling price of all plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it until August 6th, 1929, and one and one-half per cent (1½%) of such selling price from August 6th, 1929, to February 10th, 1937, plus three and one-half per cent (3½%) of such selling price from August 6th, 1929, until said three and one-half per cent (3½%) of such selling price shall aggregate 9259 the fixed sum mentioned in paragraph 16 hereof.

Now, therefore, in consideration of the sum of one dollar and other good and valuable considerations, receipt whereof is hereby acknowledged, the parties hereto do hereby agree as follows, to-wit.

1. Licensor has agreed to and does hereby give and grant unto Licensee, an indivisible and non-exclusive right, license and privilege of using the processes, and making and using the machines and/or inventions set forth and claimed in said Utzman Patents, and in any and all of said patents or applications for letters patent described in said Exhibit A, at the plant or factory now owned and/or operated by Licensee at Fort Dodge, Iowa; Grand Rapids, Michigan; Acme, Texas; Akron, New York, or at any other plant or factory hereafter owned or operated by it, and of manufacturing at said plant or factory and selling and/or using plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured at said plant or factory and embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said Utzman Patents and said patents and applications for letters patent described in Exhibit A, until the 10th day of February, 1937, the date of expiration of patent number 1,330,413 mentioned in said Exhibit A, all subject to the terms and conditions hereinafter stated.

It is expressly understood and agreed that the indivisible and non-exclusive right, license and privilege aforesaid is granted upon condition that the Licensor shall have, and it hereby reserves the right to determine and fix at any time and to change from time to time during the term of said Utzman Patent number 1,034,746 the minimum price or prices at which the Licensee shall sell any plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured by Licensee embodying the improvements set forth and claimed in the said Utzman Patent 1,034,746, and in case it shall exercise the 9260 right so reserved it shall first serve written notice of its intention so to do upon Licensee accompanied with a statement of the price or prices at which the Licensee shall sell said patented product, and thereafter shall give to the Licensee written or telegraphic notice of any change in such price or prices, and the Licensee expressly covenants and agrees that it will not at any time during the term of said Utzman Patent number 1,034,746, after the receipt of such notice, directly or indirectly sell or offer for sale any plasterboard or gypsum or wallboard embodying the improvements set forth and claimed in said Utzman Patent number 1,034,746 prior to the expiration thereof at a price or prices less than that stated by the Licensor in said notice or in any such written or telegraphic notice of a change in such price or prices.

2. The Licensee further agrees to pay to the Licensor in settlement and discharge of said claim and for the right, license and privilege of manufacturing, using and/or selling plasterboard or gypsum wallboard, and for the privilege of using the processes and making and using the machines and/or inventions embodying the inventions set forth and claimed in said Utzman Patents and in any and all of said patents and applications for letters patent described in Exhibit A, an amount (hereafter for convenience referred to as a license fee or royalty) equivalent to five per cent (5%) of the selling price of the Licensee of all plasterboard or gypsum wallboard of every kind, whether patented or unpatented, manufactured and sold by Licensee between the date hereof and August 6, 1929, the date of the expiration of said Utzman Patent number 1,034,746 and thereafter an amount equivalent to one and one-half per cent (1½%) of the selling price of the Licensee of all such plasterboard or gypsum wallboard from August 6, 1929, until February 10, 1937, the date from August 6, 1929, until said three and one-half per cent (3½%) of said selling price shall have aggregated the fixed sum mentioned in Paragraph 16 hereof.

It is understood and agreed that if prior to the expiration of said license the Licensee shall not have paid to the Licensor said additional fixed sum mentioned in Paragraph 16 hereof, over and above the said five per cent (5%) royalties between the date hereof and August 6, 1929, and the said one and one-half per cent (1½%) royalties from August 6, 1929, until February 10, 1937, the Licensee shall from the date of the expiration of said license pay to the Licensor five per cent (5%) of the selling price of the Licensee of all plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it until said fixed sum mentioned in Paragraph 16 hereof shall have been fully paid and satisfied.

It is expressly understood and agreed that this contract is executed without prejudice to Licensor to assert its said claim against Licensee in case for any reason this contract shall not remain in force throughout the full term thereof and the Licensee shall not pay to the Licensor all of the sums of money herein agreed to be paid to it in accordance with the terms hereof, and it is further agreed that the said claim of the Licensor against Licensee is not settled or discharged by the execution of this instrument, but shall only be settled and discharged by the full performance of this contract and the payment to Licensor of said sums of money. In case of the termination of this contract at any time prior to the expiration thereof or in the event of the failure of Licensee to make full payment to Licensor of all of said royalties or License fees, including said additional fixed sum mentioned in 9262 Paragraph 16 hereof, in the manner herein specified, Licensor shall have, in addition to all its other rights under this agreement, the right to recover of and from Licensee the full amount of its said claim, and nothing herein contained shall prevent the recovery by Licensor of the full amount of its said claim from Licensee, less only such sums as shall have been paid by Licensee to Licensor since August 6, 1929, on account of said additional fixed sum mentioned in Paragraph 16 hereof. Upon the payment to Licensor of all of said royalties or license fees throughout the full term of said license, plus said additional fixed sum mentioned in Paragraph 16 hereof, at the time and in the manner herein specified, then the said claim of Licensor against Licensee shall thereupon be and become fully settled, discharged and satisfied.

3. It is expressly understood and agreed that the license herein granted shall be personal to the Licensee and that the same or any right therein or thereunder shall not be sold, assigned or transferred without written consent of the Licensor or transferred by operation of law.

4. It is expressly understood that the Licensee shall not discontinue its business of manufacturing and selling plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard until the Licensor shall have received the full payment of all of the amounts agreed to be paid to it hereunder by the Licensee, nor shall this license be assigned to any company or companies acquiring the capital stock or assets of Licensee, or to any company resulting from any merger or consolidation between Licensee and any other company, nor shall any such merger, consolidation or acquisition affect any claims which Licensor has against Licensee or against any such other company for infringement of its said patents or 9263 otherwise; Provided, However, that this license may, with the written consent of the Licensor, be assigned to any company holding a similar license from Licensor upon the express assumption by such company of all claims of Licensor against Licensee and of the agreements and obligations of the Licensee herein contained.

5. Licensee agrees to keep separate full and accurate books of account and records showing the exact quantity of all plasterboard and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it, and agrees that on or before the 20th day of each and every calendar month it will render unto Licensor true written returns, verified under oath by an officer or other agent of Licensee, setting forth the quantity of all plasterboard and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it during the preceding calendar month, together with the price or prices at which the same was sold, such written returns to be delivered to Licensor at its offices in Chicago, Illinois, and Licensee agrees to pay to Licensor, on or before the 20th day of each calendar month, at the office of Licensor at Chicago, Illinois, the hereinbefore stipulated royalties or license fees which may then be due under this agreement on account of all of said plasterboard and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it during the next preceding calendar month.

9264 quantity of said plasterboard and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it, the price or prices at which the same was sold, and to make copies thereof and memoranda therefrom.

7. Licensee agrees that all plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it embodying the claims of any of said patents shall be distinctly marked with the word "Patented," together with the dates of the Utzman Patents, and the dates of any other patents which Licensor may properly specify, and in connection with the said markings it will further mark said patented product with the words, "Licensed under the above Letters Patent," which markings shall be plainly visible.

8. Having regard for the fact that there are or may be certain manufacturers of plaster or gypsum products, or jobbers of such products, who do not or may not manufacture gypsum wallboard or plasterboard but who desire or may desire to have gypsum wallboard or plasterboard manufactured for them, it is understood and agreed that Licensee may with the written consent of Licensor manufacture gypsum wallboard or plasterboard embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said Letters Patent, for any such other manufacturer and/or jobber; provided, however, that the said license fee or royalty to be paid to Licensor as hereinbefore provided, shall be based upon all gypsum wallboard or plasterboard manufactured for, and sold and invoiced to, such other manufacturer and/or jobber and upon the regular selling price of Licensee of such plasterboard or gypsum wallboard to its regular dealer trade at the time of such sale and invoice, and shall not be based upon the price at which plasterboard or gypsum wallboard is sold and invoiced by Licensee to such other manufacturer or 9265 jobber. The Licensee shall have no right to manufacture and sell any plasterboard or gypsum wallboard embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in any of said letters patent to other manufacturers or jobbers or other wholesale distributors of such products, without the written consent of Licensor.

It is understood that the selling price of the Licensee wherever mentioned in this instrument means the selling price to its regular dealer trade, and in case of the sale of any of said plasterboard or gypsum wallboard, whether patented or unpatented, for a price less than said price to Licensee's regular dealer trade, Licensee shall account to the Licensor in the payment of royalties hereunder at its regular dealer price; provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall give the Licensee the right to sell any of said patented products upon which the Licensor shall have fixed and determined the price thereof in accordance with the terms hereof at less than such price.

9. The Licensee and the Licensor each expressly covenants and agrees that all of said patented product sold by it and commonly known in the trade as "seconds" shall be plainly invoiced as seconds and shall be plainly marked with a visible red stamp or label firmly fixed on each of said boards showing the word "seconds" in letters at least three inches in height.

10. It is expressly understood and agreed that the patented product manufactured and sold hereunder shall include all board having a protected edge, it being recognized by the parties hereto that any board manufactured by Licensee having a protected edge is within the scope of said Utzman Patents numbers 1,029,326 and 1,034,746.

9266 After the expiration of said letters patent number 1,034,746 and until the expiration of Letters Patent number 1,330,413, it is expressly understood and agreed that the patented product manufactured and sold hereunder shall include all board having a protected edge, the parties hereto agreeing hereby that any and all board having a protected edge is within the claims or is manufactured according to the processes or by the use of machines embodying the claims either of said Letters Patent Number 1,330,413, or of one or more of the other of said Letters Patent listed in Exhibit A hereto, under which the aforesaid indivisible and non-exclusive right, license and privilege is granted.

11. As one of the considerations for the indivisible and non-exclusive license herein and hereby granted, Licensee hereby acknowledges the validity of the Letters Patent, granted and to be granted, forming the subject-matter of this license, throughout the full term of this contract, unless the same shall be cancelled or terminated prior thereto by reason of the default of the Licensor hereunder, and agrees that it will not at any time before February 10th, 1937, or the earlier termination of the license by reason of the default of the Licensor hereunder, directly or indirectly, by itself, through or together with another or others, contest the validity of either or any of said Letters Patent or the title thereto of Licensor, or question in any way the prima facie scope of either or any of said Letters Patent, or the priority, novelty or patentability of the subject-matter of any of the said applications for letters patent.

12. In the event that either party shall at any time neglect, fail or refuse to keep or perform any of the conditions and agreements herein to be by it kept and
9267 performed, then the other party, at its election, may serve upon the party in default written notice of intention to terminate this Agreement, which notice shall specify the alleged neglect, failure or refusal, and if within thirty (30) days from the date of delivery of said notice, the party in default shall not cure the default specified in said notice, then the other party may cancel and terminate this Agreement, by notifying the party in default, in writing, of its election so to do, without the necessity of any court action; provided, however, that neither party shall be relieved thereby from any liability accrued at the time of such termination. In case at any time the Licensee shall be adjudged a bankrupt, then the license hereunder shall immediately be and become cancelled and terminated, but the Licensor shall not thereby be prevented from collecting all license fees or royalties accrued hereunder at the time of such termination. The waiver of any breach by either party shall not be interpreted as constituting a waiver of any further breach or breaches. Either party may specifically enforce this contract or any of its terms, conditions and covenants hereof by injunction or in such other manner as may be provided by law.

13. Any notice to be given under the terms hereof may be served upon the Licensor or the Licensee by mailing the same to the Licensor or Licensee, postage prepaid, addressed to it at its last known principal office, and the deposit of any such notice in the United States mails, postage prepaid and so addressed, shall constitute service of notice hereunder.

14. It is understood and agreed that if at any time during the term hereof the Licensee shall, in the judgment of the Licensor, suffer substantial detriment by reason of any infringement upon the part of any person or persons of the said patents, whether now or hereafter issued,
9268 under which this license is granted, the Licensor will afford the Licensee such reasonable protection as in the judgment of the Licensor shall be necessary or proper; and in case the Licensor shall grant to any such infringer, or to any other person, any license under said patents upon terms more favorable than those granted hereunder to this Licensee, then it will grant to this Licensee a license on the same terms.

15. The terms "plasterboard" and "gypsum wallboard" shall be understood to mean all board by whatever name called having the structural characteristics of plasterboard or gypsum wallboard, irrespective of the purpose for which the same may be sold or used.

16. The term "fixed sum mentioned in Paragraph 16 hereof," whenever used herein, shall mean an amount of money to be determined as follows: Within thirty (30) days from the date hereof, an accountant satisfactory to both parties shall make an audit of Licensee's books as to quantity and prices of plasterboard and gypsum wallboard of all kinds manufactured at the plants and/or mills formerly owned or operated by The Beaver Products Company, Inc., and sold by the Licensee between April 1, 1928, and the date hereof, and shall make a certified report thereon. A sum equivalent to five per cent (5%) of the Licensee's selling price of all such plasterboard and gypsum wallboard of all kinds sold between the dates aforesaid by the Licensee, as shown by said report of audit, shall be the amount which the term "fixed sum mentioned in Paragraph 16 hereof" shall represent and mean.

17. This license and all of the covenants and agreements hereof shall be binding upon and inure to the benefit of the successors and assigns of the parties hereto, but nothing in this paragraph shall be construed to permit an assignment hereof by the Licensee except as hereinabove specifically provided.

dents, attested by their respective Secretaries, and their corporate seals to be hereunto affixed, in duplicate, the day and year first above written.

LICENSE AGREEMENT

This agreement, executed in duplicate this 22nd day of May, 1929, by and between the United States Gypsum Company, an Illinois corporation, of Chicago, Illinois, hereinafter referred to as "Licensor," and Ebsary Gypsum Co. Inc., a New York corporation, of Newark, N. J., hereinafter referred to as "Licensee," witnesseth:

Whereas, Licensor is the owner of the entire right, title and interest in, to and under Letters Patent of the United States, No. 1,029,328, dated June 11th, 1912, and No. 1,034,746, dated August 6th, 1912 (hereinafter called the "Utzman Patents"), and Letters Patent of the United States, No. 1,358,508, dated November 9, 1920 (hereinafter called the "Birdsey Patent"), and is also the owner of the entire right, title and interest in, to and under the Letters Patent and applications for Letters Patent of the United States set forth in Exhibit "A" attached hereto and made a part hereof, and any and all Letters Patent which may be granted therefor or thereupon; and

Whereas, heretofore said Utzman Patents have been adjudicated by the United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division, and by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Seventh

Circuit (258 Fed. 647; 270 Fed. 542; 290 Fed. 798; 290 Fed. 800; 15 Fed. (2d) 704; see also 263 U. S. 713), and said Courts have decreed that said Utzman Patents are valid and were infringed by the defendants named in said suits, by reason of their making, using and selling plasterboard or gypsum wallboard having protected edges, and said District Court ordered perpetual injunctions and accountings against said defendants; and

Whereas, said Birdsey Patent Number 1,358,508 has been adjudicated by the United States District Court
9275 for the Northern District of Ohio (In Equity Number 1621), and said Court has decreed that said Birdsey Patent is valid and was infringed by defendant in said cause by reason of its making, using and selling plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard having edges of the character disclosed in said patent, and said District Court ordered a perpetual injunction and accounting against defendant, which cause is now pending on appeal before the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit (Appeal Number 5392); and

Whereas, Licensee recognizes and admits the validity and scope of said patents and is desirous of obtaining a license to use the processes and make and use the machines and/or inventions set forth and claimed in said patents and in said patents or applications for letters patent described in Exhibit "A"; and

Whereas, Licensor has been unwilling to grant a license except upon the express condition that Licensee will manufacture plasterboard or gypsum wallboard only with a folded or protected edge similar to that manufactured by Licensor, so that Licensor may be protected in its own business of manufacturing and selling said patented products and realize to the fullest extent the benefits under said patents from the manufacture by said Licensee; and

Whereas, Licensor has agreed to waive the express condition aforesaid and grant the said License in consideration of the agreement of Licensee to pay to it for the license to use the processes and make and use the machines and/or inventions set forth and claimed in all of said patents and applications for letters patent the amounts hereinafter stated and upon the terms and conditions hereinafter set forth, receipt whereof is hereby acknowledged, the parties hereto do hereby agree as follows, to-wit:

Now, therefore, in consideration of the sum of One Dollar ($1.00), and other good and valuable consideration, the

9276 1. Licensor has agreed to and does hereby give and grant unto Licensee, an indivisible and non-exclusive right, license and privilege of using the processes, and making and using the machines and/or inventions set forth and claimed in said Utzman Patents, and in any and all of said patents or applications for letters patent described in said Exhibit A, at the plant or factory now owned and/or operated by Licensee at Wheatland, New York, or at any other plant or factory hereafter owned or operated by it, and of manufacturing at said plant or factory and selling and/or using plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured at said plant or factory and embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said Utzman Patents and said patents and applications for letters patent described in Exhibit A, until the 10th day of February, 1937, the date of expiration of patent number 1,330,413 mentioned in said Exhibit A, all subject to the terms and conditions hereinafter stated.

It is expressly understood and agreed that the indivisible and non-exclusive right, license and privilege aforesaid is granted upon condition that the Licensor shall have, and it hereby reserves the right to determine and fix at any time and to change from time to time during the term of said Utzman Patent Number 1,034,746 the minimum price or prices at which the Licensee shall sell any plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured by Licensee embodying the improvements set forth and claimed in the said Utzman Patent 1,034,746, and in case it shall exercise the right so reserved it shall first serve written notice of its intention so to do upon Licensee, accompanied with a statement of the price or prices at which the Licensee shall sell said patented product, and thereafter shall give to the Licensee written or telegraphic notice of any change in such price or prices, and the Licensee expressly

9277 covenants and agrees that it will not at any time during the term of said Utzman Patent Number 1,034,746, after the receipt of such notice, directly or indirectly sell or offer for sale any plasterboard or gypsum wallboard embodying the improvements set forth and claimed in said Utzman Patent Number 1,034,746 prior to the expiration thereof at a price or prices less than that stated by the Licensor in said notice or in any such written or telegraphic notice of a change in such price or prices.

2. The Licensee further agrees to pay to the Licensor for the right, license and privilege of manufacturing, using and/or selling plasterboard or gypsum wallboard, and for the privilege of using the processes and making and using the machines and/or inventions embodying the inventions set forth and claimed in said Utzman Patents and in any and all of said patents and applications for letters patent described in Exhibit A, an amount (hereinafter for convenience referred to as a license fee or royalty) equivalent to five per cent (5%) of the selling price of the Licensee of all plasterboard or gypsum wallboard of every kind, whether patented or unpatented, manufactured and sold by Licensee between the date hereof and August 6, 1929, the date of the expiration of said Utzman Patent Number 1,034,746, and thereafter an amount equivalent to one and one half per cent (1½%) of the selling price of the Licensee of all such plasterboard or gypsum wallboard from August 6, 1929, until February 10, 1937, the date of expiration of said Patent Number 1,330,413.

3. It is further agreed that so long as this agreement shall remain in force between the parties hereto, or in case the License granted under Paragraph 1 hereof shall continue until February 10, 1937, then until the expiration of the patent specifically described in this para-
9278 graph, the Licensor does hereby give and grant unto Licensee an indivisible and non-exclusive right, license and privilege of making and using the inventions set forth and claimed in that certain patent known as the Birdsey Plasterboard Bundle Patent Number 1,696,877, dated December 25, 1928, at the plant or factory now owned and/or operated by Licensee at Wheatland, New York, or at any other plant or factory hereafter owned or operated by it, and of selling bundles of plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard set forth and claimed in said patent number 1,696,877, upon the terms and conditions hereinafter stated.

The Licensee agrees to pay to the Licensor for the right, license and privilege of making, using or selling the inventions set forth and claimed in said Patent Number 1,696,877, in addition to the sums hereinabove set forth, a license fee or royalty of ten cents (10¢) per thousand square feet of plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard which is sold by

it in bundles of any kind, payable at the times and in accordance with the terms of Paragraph 4 hereof. It is expressly understood that licensee in its business of manufacturing and selling plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard will use only said bundle set forth and claimed in said Patent Number 1,696,877 and will not use any other bundle or method of bundling plasterboard during the term of said license.

4. It is expressly understood and agreed that the license herein granted shall be personal to the Licensee and that the same or any right therein or thereunder shall not be sold, assigned or transferred without the written consent of the Licensor or transferred by operation of law.

It is expressly understood that the Licensee shall not discontinue its business of manufacturing and selling plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard until the Licensor shall have received the full payment of all of the amounts 9279 agreed to be paid to it hereunder by the Licensee, nor shall this license be assigned to any company or companies acquiring the capital stock or assets of Licensee, or to any company resulting from any merger or consolidation between Licensee and any other company, nor shall any such merger, consolidation or acquisition affect any claim which Licensor has against Licensee or against any such other company for infringement of its said patents; provided, however, that this license may, with the written consent of the Licensor, be assigned to any company holding a similar license from Licensor upon the express assumption by such company of all claims of Licensor against Licensee and of the agreements and obligations of the Licensee herein contained.

5. Licensee agrees to keep separate, full and accurate books of account and records showing the exact quantity of all plasterboard and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it, as well as a separate record of all plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard sold by it in bundles, and agrees that on or before the 20th day of each and every calendar month it will render unto Licensor true written returns, verified under oath by an officer or other agent of Licensee, setting forth the quantity of all plasterboard and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it during the preceding calendar month, and the quantity thereof put up and sold by it in bundles, together with the price or prices at which the same was sold, such written returns to be delivered to Licensor at its office in Chicago, Illinois, and Licensee agrees to pay to Licensor, on or before the 20th day of each calendar month, at the office of Licensor at Chicago, Illinois, the hereinbefore stipulated royalties or license fees which may then be due under this agreement on account of all of said plasterboard and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it during the next preceding calendar month.

6. Licensor, or its duly authorized representative, 9280 shall have the right at all reasonable times during business hours to inspect the books of account and records of Licensee referred to in the next preceding paragraph hereof, including all records of every kind showing the quantity of said plasterboard and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it, and the quantity thereof put up and sold by it in bundles, the price or prices at which the same was sold, and to make copies thereof and memoranda therefrom.

7. Licensee agrees that all plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it embodying the claims of any of said patents shall be distinctly marked with the word "Patented", together with the dates of the Utzman Patents, and the dates of any other patents which Licensor may properly specify, and in connection with the said markings it will further mark said patented product with the words, "Licensed under the above Letters Patent," which markings shall be plainly visible.

of such plasterboard or gypsum wallboard to its regular dealer trade at the time of such sale and invoice, and 9281 shall not be based upon the price at which plasterboard or gypsum wallboard is sold and invoiced by Licensee to such other manufacturer or jobber. The Licensee shall have no right to manufacture and sell any plasterboard or gypsum wallboard embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in any of said letters patent to other manufacturers or jobbers or other wholesale distributors of such products, without the written consent of Licensor.

It is understood that the selling price of the Licensee wherever mentioned in this instrument means the selling price to its regular dealer trade, and in case of the sale of any of said plasterboard or gypsum wallboard, whether patented or unpatented, for a price less than said price to Licensee's regular dealer trade, Licensee shall account to the Licensor in the payment of royalties hereunder at its regular dealer price; provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall give the Licensee the right to sell any of said patented products upon which the Licensor shall have fixed and determined the price thereof in accordance with the terms hereof at less than such price.

9. The Licensee and the Licensor each expressly covenants and agrees that all of said patented product sold by it and commonly known in the trade as "seconds" shall be plainly invoiced as seconds and shall be plainly marked with a visible red stamp or label firmly fixed on each of said boards showing the word "seconds" in letters at least three inches in height.

10. It is expressly understood and agreed that the patented product manufactured and sold hereunder shall include all board having a protected edge, it being recognized by the parties hereto that any board manufactured by Licensee having a protected edge is within the scope of said Utzman Patents Numbers 1,029,326 and 1,034,746.

9282 After the expiration of said Letters Patent number 1,034,746 and until the expiration of Letters Patent Number 1,330,413, it is expressly understood and agreed that the patented product manufactured and sold hereunder shall include all board having a protected edge, the parties hereto agreeing hereby that any and all board having a protected edge is within the claim or is manufactured according to the processes or by the use of machines embodying the claims either of said Letters Patent Number 1,330,413, or of one or more of the other of said Letters Patent listed in Exhibit "A" hereto, under which the aforesaid indivisible and non-exclusive right, license and privilege is granted.

11. As one of the considerations for the indivisible and non-exclusive license herein and hereby granted, Licensee hereby acknowledges the validity of the Letters Patent, granted and to be granted, forming the subject-matter of this license, throughout the full term of this contract, unless the same shall be cancelled or terminated prior thereto by reason of the default of the Licensor hereunder, and agrees that it will not at any time before February 10th, 1937, or the earlier termination of the license by reason of the default of the Licensor hereunder, directly or indirectly, by itself, through or together with another or others, contest the validity of either or any of said Letters Patent or the title thereto of Licensor, or question in any way the prima facie scope of either or any of said Letters Patent, or the priority, novelty or patentability of the subject-matter of any of the said applications for letters patent.

12. In the event that either party shall at any time neglect, fail or refuse to keep or perform any of the conditions and agreements herein to be by it kept and performed, then the other party, at its election, may serve upon the 9283 party in default written notice of intention to terminate this Agreement, which notice shall specify the alleged neglect, failure or refusal, and if within thirty (30) days from the date of delivery of said notice, the party in default shall not cure the default specified in said notice, then the other party may cancel and terminate this Agreement, by notifying the party in default, in writing, of its election so to do, without the necessity of any court action; provided, however, that neither party shall be relieved thereby from any liability accrued at the time of such termination. In case at any time the Licensee shall be adjudged a bankrupt, then the license hereunder shall immediately be and become cancelled and terminated, but the Licensor shall not thereby be prevented from collecting all license fees or royalties accrued hereunder at the time of such termination. The waiver of any breach by either party shall not be interpreted as constituting a waiver of any further breach or breaches. Either party may specifically enforce this contract or any of the terms, conditions and covenants hereof by injunction or in such other manner as may be provided by law.

13. Any notice to be given under the terms hereof may be served upon the Licensor or the Licensee by mailing the same to the Licensor or Licensee, postage prepaid, addressed to it at its last known principal office, and the deposit of any such notice in the United States mails, postage prepaid and so addressed, shall constitute service of notice hereunder.

14. It is understood and agreed that if at any time during the term hereof the Licensee shall, in the judgment of the Licensor, suffer substantial detriment by reason of any infringement upon the part of any person or persons of the said patents, whether now or hereafter issued, under 9284 which this license is granted, the Licensor will afford the Licensee such reasonable protection as in the judgment of the Licensor, shall be necessary or proper; and in case the Licensor shall grant to any such infringer, or to any other person, any license under said patents upon terms more favorable than those granted hereunder to this Licensee, then it will grant to this License a license of the same terms.

15. The terms "plasterboard" and "gypsum wallboard" shall be understood to mean all board by whatever name called having the structural characteristics of plasterboard or gypsum wallboard, irrespective of the purpose for which the same may be sold or used.

16. This license and all of the covenants and agreements hereof shall be binding upon and inure to the benefit of the successors and assigns of the parties hereto, but nothing in this paragraph shall be construed to permit an assignment hereof by the Licensee except as hereinabove specifically provided.

9289 Government's Exhibit No. 6

November 5th, 1929.

ABEL DAVIS AND EUGENE HOLLAND,
Receivers, and Universal Gypsum & Lime Co.,
Chicago, Illinois.

DEAR SIRS: Referring to contract with you of even date herewith, in order to clear up some questions of construction of the instrument as drawn, it is understood that:

The words "less five cents (5¢) per one thousand (1,000) square feet if in board form or the equivalent thereto in weight if in other form" appearing on page 6 of said contract shall be construed to mean 5¢ for each 1,000 square feet of plasterboard or gypsum wallboard and on all other gypsum products 5¢ for each such number of pounds as is the equivalent of the number of pounds in 1,000 square feet of plasterboard or gypsum wallboard of 3/8" thickness, and for this purpose the weight of 1,000 square feet of any such board is to be taken as 1850 pounds.

The paragraph commencing on page 6 of said contract with the words "First party does hereby agree also to pay to second and third parties" and ending on page 7 with the words "and such licensee shall have paid its license fees or royalties therefor to first party" means that first party is to pay the said 1% less said 5¢ of the licensee's price upon the same number of feet of each kind of plasterboard or gypsum wallboard or the same quantity of other gypsum products, upon which the licensee is required to pay royalties or license fees to first party for the use of the Haggerty and/or Hite patents and only during the time the license with such licensee remains in force and such licensee pays its license fees or royalties to first party.

The provision commencing on page 8 with the words "If first party voluntarily cancels or changes any such license" and ending on page 9 with the words "first party may have under said license" is to be construed as follows:

(1) The words "If first party voluntarily cancels or changes any such license" appearing in said provision mean a cancellation or change voluntarily and deliberately made by agreement between first party and the licensee without the consent of second or third parties and do not include the cancellation, termination or change of the license agreement for any other reason whatsoever. Without intending to limit the phrase "for any other reason whatsoever" in the next preceding sentence, it is understood that the words "If first party voluntarily cancels or changes any such license" do not mean or include termination, cancellation or change made or done pursuant to the terms of the license agreement or in the exercise of any right or privilege thereunder; or due to any construction which may be put upon the license agreement by any court different from that claimed or understood by second or third parties or by first party or the licensee; or because of the holding of any court that the license agreement or any part thereof is invalid or unenforcible; or by the action, order or decree of any court for any reason whatsoever; or because of any default by the licensee thereunder; or because of any claim made by the licensee with respect to any inducement in the making of the license agreement or that first party has defaulted in any of the terms or conditions thereof; or resulting from an award or finding of arbiters ap-
9290 pointed under the terms of the license agreement; or arising on account of errors, mistakes or omissions made by the agents or employes of first party or the licensee in or about the performance of the license agreement.

(2) The words contained in said provision commencing with the words "then first party will make said payment" and ending with the words "until the expiration of said Haggerty patent or such earlier date that first party would have been relieved from paying upon the licensee's production and sales if no such voluntary cancellation or change had occurred" are to be construed according to the following illustrations:

(a) Suppose a license agreement has been made with X which during the first 6 months thereof manufactured and sold 600,000 square feet of plasterboard and gypsum wallboard, consisting of 300,000 square feet of gypsum lath, 200,000 square feet of gypsum wallboard and 100,000 square feet of plasterboard, and upon which first party made monthly payments to second and third parties in accordance with the terms of said contract. Assume that a year after the license agreement is made with X first party, by voluntary agreement with X, changes the license agreement so that X is required to pay royalties or license fees to first party upon only half of its production and sales, thereby reducing the number of feet of such board upon which first party is required to pay second and third parties. If such change were then applied to the first six months of the license agreement with X it would appear that first party would have paid upon only 300,000 square feet, consisting of 150,000 square feet of lath, 100,000 square feet of wallboard and 50,000 square feet of plasterboard. The extent of the reduction during such six months' period would have been the difference between the original 600,000 square feet and the said 300,000 square feet, or 150,000 square feet of lath, 100,000 square feet of wallboard and 50,000 square feet of plasterboard, one-sixth of each of which, or 25,000 square feet of lath, 16,666 square feet of wallboard and 8,333 square feet of plasterboard, is the number of square feet making up such reduction and upon which first party would be required to pay second and third parties monthly until the expiration of the Haggerty patent or such earlier date that first party would have been relieved from paying upon X's production and sales if no such voluntary cancellation or change had occurred; and first party in such case would also continue to pay monthly on the 50,000 square feet upon which X continued to pay license fees or royalties to first party. Suppose during any month following the change X should increase its production and sales to 200,000 square feet, then during any such month first party would pay to second and third parties upon 100,000 square feet, being the number of feet upon which first party receives royalties or license fees from X, plus 50,000 square feet, the amount of said reduction. If, on the other hand, during any month following such a change X's production and sales decreased to 50,000 square feet, then first party would pay upon 25,000 square feet, being the number of feet upon which first party receives royalties or license fees from X, plus the said reduction of 50,000 square feet;

(b) If in such case the license with X was voluntarily cancelled, then, by applying the changed situation to the first six months' period of the contract, it would appear that the reduction by reason of the change would have been the total production and sales of X, or 600,000 square feet for the period, making 100,000 square feet monthly. First party would then pay monthly upon 100,000 square feet, consisting of 50,000 square feet of lath, 33,333 square feet of wallboard and 16,666 square feet of plaster-
9291 board, until the expiration of the Haggerty patent or such earlier date that first party would have been relieved from paying upon X's production and sales if no such voluntary cancellation had occurred.

(3) The word "price" contained in the phrase "then first party will make said payment to second and third parties upon its own sales and price" contained in said provision, means the price of first party defined the same as the price of the licensee as defined at the bottom of page 6 and the top of page 7 of said contract.

(4) The price as defined on pages 6 and 7 of said contract shall be the licensee's delivered selling price less the deductions in said definition contained and less such other deductions as may be allowed the licensee in writing at the time the license agreement originally takes effect.

(5) The words contained in said provision "or such earlier date that first party would have been relieved from paying upon the licensee's production and sales if no such voluntary cancellation or change had occurred" mean if the license agreement had continued in its original form and would have terminated or licensee would have ceased to pay royalties thereunder, for any reason except first party's voluntary cancellation as above stated, then the date when that would have happened shall fix the date when first party shall not be required to pay anything further on account of said reduction and/or upon the production and sales of any licensee whose license agreement may have been so voluntarily cancelled or changed. To illustrate:

If the license agreement has been so voluntarily cancelled, then first party's obligation to pay anything on account of said reduction and/or on account of the production of any such licensee shall cease and determine in case of a holding that all of the claims of the Haggerty and Hite patents are invalid or in case the licensee shall cease to do business or cease to manufacture and sell plasterboard and gypsum wallboard or in any other case where the license would have terminated or the licensee would have ceased to pay any royalties or license fees to first party if the license had not been so voluntarily cancelled. If the license agreement has been so voluntarily changed but not cancelled, then the obligation of first party to pay anything on account of any such reduction and/or on account of any production and sales of the licensee shall cease and determine if the license agreement is terminated or the licensee ceases to pay any royalties or license fees to first party, for any reason whatsoever, except such a voluntary cancellation by first party.

This letter shall become a part of said contract with the same effect as if the same had been written therein.

Very truly yours,

UNITED STATES GYPSUM COMPANY

By S. L. AVERY, Its President.

EUGENE HOLLAND,
ABEL DAVIS,
Receivers.

UNIVERSAL GYPSUM & LIME CO.

By OLIVER MITCHELL, Vice-President.

9292 This agreement, made and executed in triplicate at Chicago, Illinois, this 5th day of November, A. D. 1929, by and between the United States Gypsum Company, an Illinois corporation, of Chicago, Illinois, party of the first part, and Abel Davis and Eugene Holland, as Receivers in Equity for Universal Gypsum & Lime Co., a Delaware corporation having an office in Chicago, Illinois, pursuant to appointment by the United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division, on April 22, 1929, in a certain cause there pending, entitled International Cooperage Company, Inc., complainant, vs. Universal Gypsum & Lime Co., defendant, State Bank of Chicago and William C. Miller, as trustees, intervenors, vs. Universal Gypsum & Lime Co., defendant, Equity number 9090, and and not individually, and Eugene Holland as receiver for the said Universal Gypsum & Lime Co. by appointment in any other United States District Court in proceedings now pending similar to the proceedings above described, and not individually, parties of the second part, and Universal Gypsum & Lime Co., a Delaware corporation of Chicago, Illinois, party of the third part, witnesseth, that:

Whereas, the first party is the owner of certain letters patent and applications for letters patent of the United States covering an improved gypsum wallboard and method or process of making the same, together with machines and appliances for the manufacture of such inventions, all as more specifically set forth in Exhibit A attached hereto and made a part hereof; and

Whereas, first party was the owner of all of the right, title and interest in and under letters patent of the 9293 United States number 1,029,328 and number 1,034,-746, known as the Utzman patents, the last of which expired August 6, 1929, which said Utzman patents were adjudicated by the United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division, and by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit (258 Fed. 647; 270 Fed. 542; 290 Fed. 798; 290 Fed. 800; 15 Fed. (2d) 704; see also 263 U. S. 713) and said courts decreed that said Utzman patents were valid and were infringed by the defendants named in said suits by reason of their making, using and selling plasterboard or gypsum wallboard having protected edges, and said District Court ordered perpetual injunctions and accountings against said defendants; and

Whereas, said Birdsey patent number 1,358,508 mentioned in said Exhibit A has been adjudicated by the United States District Court for the Northern District of Ohio, in Equity Case number 1621, and said court has decreed that said Birdsey patent is valid and was infringed by the defendant in said cause by reason of its making, using and selling plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard having edges of the character disclosed in said patent, and said District Court ordered a perpetual injunction and accounting against the said defendant, which cause is now pending on appeal before the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit; and

Whereas, first party asserted a substantial claim against third party for damages and profits because and on account of an alleged infringement of said patents; and first party agreed to grant a license to third party under said Utzman patents and said patents described in said Exhibit A to February 10, 1937, and to settle the said claim in consideration of the payment by third party to first party of 9294 a certain payment plus five per cent (5%) of third party's selling price and all plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it until August 6, 1929, and one and one-half per cent (1½%) of such selling price from August 6, 1929, to February 10, 1937; and

Whereas, the first party is the owner of all rights in and to an application for United States letters patent filed by Carlisle K. Roos, entitled "Cementitious Material," now pending in the United States Patent Office and covering the process of making a cellular product by forming a tenacious foam and mixing the foam with a cementitious material, and has heretofore acquired the sole and exclusive right in the United States of America (when gypsum is used as the main binding material) in that certain application for United States letters patent filed by Erik Christian Bayer, entitled "Methods of Manufacturing Porous Building Materials" and relating to a process broadly similar to that of said Roos application, which said applications with certain other Roos applications are set forth in Exhibit B hereto attached and made a part hereof, and which are all hereinafter referred to as said Roos and/or Bayer applications; and

Whereas, the second and third parties desire to acquire a license under said Roos and Bayer applications, and to obtain a license from first party to make, use and sell the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in all of said patents and applications for letters patent described in said Exhibit A throughout the full term thereof; and

Whereas, the second and third parties are the owners of the entire right, title and interest in and to letters patent of the United States and the inventions and improvements described therein, as follows: Joseph F. Haggerty 9295 number 1,500,452, dated July 8, 1924, for plasterwall board, and Charles E. Hite number 1,230,297, dated June 19, 1917 for heat-insulating material and method of making the same, subject to an outstanding license to the

California Cedar Products Company under said Haggerty patent; and

Whereas, second and third parties claim that in the process of manufacturing plasterboard and gypsum wallboard; as heretofore practiced by it, first party, by the use of a carbohydrate or starchy substance, has infringed the claims of the said Haggerty and Hite patents, especially by the use of carbohydrates in the manufacture of plasterboard and gypsum wallboard, the core of which is made according to the claims and improvements set forth and claimed in said Roos and Bayer applications; and

Whereas, the parties hereto have agreed to settle and adjust all of said claims, including any claim which second parties or said third party may have against first party for infringment of said Haggerty and Hite patents, and as a part of said settlement said second parties have agreed to sell, assign, transfer and convey to first party the entire right, title and interest in and to said inventions, improvements and said letters patent known as the Haggerty and Hite patents as aforesaid, and first party has agreed to give to second and third parties a license to manufacture, use and sell the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said Roos and Bayer applications in the manufacture of gypsum plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard, upon the terms and conditions hereinafter stated; and

Whereas, the United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division, by an order entered in said cause, Equity number 9090, and said
9296 other United States District Courts by orders entered therein in said receivership proceedings, have authorized the execution of this contract by said second and third parties.

Now, therefore, in consideration of the sum of One Dollar ($1.00) and other good and valuable considerations, receipt whereof is hereby acknowledged by each party from the other party, and of the mutual covenants and agreements hereinafter contained, the parties hereto do hereby agree as follows, to-wit:

1. Second and third parties have agreed to and do hereby sell, assign and set over unto first party, its successors and assigns, the entire right, title and interest for the United States of America, its territories and possessions, in and to the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said Haggerty patent number 1,500,452 and said Hite patent number 1,230,297 and in and to said letters patent together with any and all reissues and extensions of said letters patent, subject only to an outstanding license dated May 28, 1926, to California Cedar Products Company under said Haggerty patent upon the terms and conditions as in said license contained. The execution and delivery of this agreement shall in itself constitute the consideration for the sale and assignment of said patents to first party and nothing done or omitted to be done hereunder or in connection with any of the agreements herein contained shall affect the title of first party in or to said patents, but the same shall forever remain the absolute property of first party.

First party, in consideration of the sale and assignment of said Haggerty and Hite patents to it does hereby agree to grant unto second and third parties a license as 9297 hereinafter set forth under said Roos and Bayer applications described in said Exhibit B and any patent which may be issued for or upon said inventions or applications, and to pay to second and third parties upon the execution hereof the sum of Thirty Thousand Dollars ($30,000.00).

First party does hereby agree also to pay to second and third parties an amount equal to one per cent (1%) of the selling price, less five cents (5¢) per one thousand (1,000) square feet if in board form or the equivalent thereto in weight if in other form, of such plasterboard, gypsum wallboard and/or other gypsum products as may be manufactured and sold by those licensees which may at any time hold a license from first party, its successors or assigns, to use the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said Haggerty and/or Hite patents and in any reissues or extensions thereof and upon which board or other products the said licensees are obliged to pay royalties or license fees for the use of said patents to first party, except second and third parties or their assigns. First party shall, on or before the last day of each calendar month, pay to second and third parties the amount then due under this agreement for all such plasterboard, gypsum wallboard and/or such other gypsum products, manufactured and sold by said licensees during the next preceding calendar month. The said amount shall be computed and paid only upon those products of any such licensee upon which it is obligated under the terms of its license to pay to first party.

license fees or royalties for the use of said Haggerty and/or Hite patents and during the time such license fees or royalties are paid to first party. The price upon which said amount shall be computed shall be such licensee's delivered selling price less freight, trucking, or other 9298 transportation charges paid by the customer and regular cash discounts allowed by such licensee, but where sales are made to jobbers or manufacturers or other wholesale distributors then the price for this purpose shall be such licensee's regular dealer price on the date of sale less freight, trucking or other transportation charges, and discount as aforesaid. Adjustments made by first party for claims made by the customer shall be deducted from the aggregate amount of such selling price in making said computation. The delay of any licensee to report its production of such products with the prices at which they were sold or to pay its license fees or royalties to first party shall extend the time of payment by first party to the extent of the amount to be determined from such report until licensee shall have made its report or first party shall otherwise have obtained the information necessary to make such payment and such licensee shall have paid its license fees or royalties therefor to first party.

If for any reason any such licensee shall cease to be a licensee of first party under said Haggerty and Hite patents or shall cease to be liable to pay the stipulated royalties or license fees agreed to be paid by it for the use of said Haggerty and Hite patents, then in either of such events the output of such licensee shall not thereafter be included in computing the amount to be paid by first party as aforesaid. If all of the claims of said Haggerty and Hite patents shall be held by a court of last resort upon final appeal or review to be invalid, or if for any reason said licensees shall cease to be licensees of first party under said Haggerty and Hite patents or cease to be liable to pay the stipulated royalties or license fees agreed to be paid by them for the use of said Haggerty and Hite patents 9299 and no other licensee shall at any time thereafter be licensed by first party, its successors or assigns, under said Haggerty and/or Hite patents in the manufacture of plasterboard and gypsum wallboard or other gypsum products, then in any such event the obligation of first party to make said payments as aforesaid shall thereupon cease and determine.

Nothing herein contained shall be construed to affect the right of first party to cancel, terminate, change or alter any license agreement with any licensee for the use of said Haggerty or Hite patents or to exercise any right or privilege it may have under any such license agreement or to waive any of the provisions thereof. If first party voluntarily cancels or changes any such license so that the number of feet of plasterboard or gypsum wallboard (except that sold for export) upon which first party is obligated to pay second and third parties under this agreement is thereby reduced, then first party will make said payment to second and third parties upon its own sales and price of plasterboard or gypsum wallboard to the extent of any such reduction, the extent of such reduction to be determined by taking licensee's production and sales during the first six (6) months' period of such license agreement and applying the effect which such cancellation or change would have had upon the number of feet of board upon which first party was required to make said payments to second and third parties if such cancellation or change had existed during said six (6) months' period, and one-sixth of the number of feet of each kind of board making up said reduction shall constitute the number of feet of each kind of board upon which first party is to pay each month until the expiration of said Haggerty patent or such earlier date that first party would have been relieved from paying upon the licensee's production and sales if no such voluntary cancellation or change had occurred. This provision shall not apply to cancellation of any such license agreement because of default of such licensee or in the exercise of

Second and third parties shall have the right to examine any reports made by any licensee of first party under said Haggerty and/or Hite patents, as well as any audits of the books and records of such licensee made or caused to be made by first party.

Second and third parties by separate instrument of even date herewith have executed and delivered to first party an assignment selling, assigning and setting over unto first party, its successors and assigns, their entire right, title and interest for the United States of America, its territories and possessions, in and to said inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said Haggerty and

Hite patents, and said letters patent, together with any and all reissues and extensions thereof.

First party does hereby agree to assume and pay the obligations of third party to pay to Charles E. Hite of Philadelphia, installments maturing after the date hereof, of One Hundred Dollars ($100) per week during the remainder of the first period of six (6) years, commencing October 27, 1923, and One Hundred Dollars ($100) per week for a further period of five (5) years commencing at the expiration of said first period, as provided in that certain contract dated October 27, 1923, and made between the said Hite and The Gypsolite Company for the sale of said Hite patent to the latter, and on the same date guaranteed by third party, which contract shall be assigned to first party as of the date hereof, together with all advantages and benefits arising thereunder subsequent to the date hereof, but such assignment shall not affect the rights of second and/or third parties in any patent issued on any invention of said Charles E. Hite, other than said patent num-9301 ber 1,230,297, acquired by them prior hereto.

The second and third parties do hereby release and discharge the first party and its subsidiaries from all claims or demands, whether for damages or profits or for both damages and profits, which the second and/or third parties now have or claim to have against them or any of them for or on account of any infringement of the said Haggerty and/or Hite patents by the first party or any of its said subsidiaries prior to the date hereof. The second and third parties do hereby further release and discharge any person or company receiving a license from first party under said Haggerty and/or Hite patents, from all claims and demands, whether for damages or profits or for both damages and profits, which the second and/or third parties now have against them or any of them for or on account of any infringement of the said Haggerty and/or Hite patents prior to the date hereof. It is understood that this agreement is made for the personal benefit of any such other person or company receiving such a license and shall not apply to any assignee of such licensee.

2. First party agrees promptly to disclose to second and third parties all information and formulae which it now has or may obtain relating to the process of making a cellular product through the formation of a tenacious foam and mixing the foam with a cementitious material as set forth and claimed in said applications for letters patent filed by Carlisle K. Roos and Erik Christian Bayer, in so far as the same is or may be applied to gypsum, and including all information and formulae for the manufacture of gypsum plasterboard and gypsum wallboard embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said Roos and Bayer applications, together with a description of the machines or appliances which it now 9302 has for making the same. It will assist second and third parties to make their plants ready for making plasterboard and gypsum wallboard embodying said claims and for practicing said process in the manufacture of said board by furnishing without cost to second parties the advice and instruction of first party's experts and information with respect to the purchase and cost of said machines and appliances.

3. First party has agreed and does hereby give and grant unto second and third parties an indivisible and non-exclusive right, license and privilege of using the process or processes and making and using the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said Roos and Bayer applications for letters patent of the United States described in said Exhibit B and in any patent or patents granted for or upon any of said inventions or applications in the manufacture of gypsum plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard at the plants now owned and operated by second or third parties in the United States of America and/or at the plants now owned and operated by any of the present subsidiaries of third party in the United States of America and/or at any plants which may be built by second or third parties in the United States of America on any land now owned, leased or controlled by second or third parties and/or any of said present subsidiaries and/or on any land hereafter acquired, owned, leased or controlled by second or third parties or said present subsidiaries in the vicinity of land now owned, leased or controlled by them and not acquired from one engaged in the business of manufacturing and selling gypsum products, and of manufacturing at said plants, selling and using in the United States of America and the territories and possessions thereof gypsum plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard manufactured at said plants, the body or core of which granted for or upon any of said inventions or applications, until the last to expire of any patent which may be granted for or upon any of said Roos or Bayer applications, including any extension and/or reissue thereof. This license shall not include the right to manufacture gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard embodying said Roos and/or Bayer process at any plant or factory purchased or acquired by second or third parties or by any such subsidiary from any other person or company subsequent to the date hereof, without the express written consent of first party.

4. The first party has agreed to and does hereby grant and give unto second and third parties an indivisible and non-exclusive right, license and privilege of using the process or processes and making and using the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said Haggerty patent number 1,500,452, and said Hite patent number 1,230,297, in the manufacture of gypsum plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard, blocks, pipe covering and other products which may come within the scope of said patents at the plants now owned and operated by second or third parties in the United States of America and/or at the plants now owned and operated by any of the present subsidiaries of third party in the United States of America and/or at any plants which may be built by second or third parties in the United States of America on any land now owned, leased or controlled by second or third parties and/or any of said present subsidiaries, and/or on any land hereafter acquired, owned, leased or controlled by second or third parties or said present subsidiaries 9304 in the vicinity of land now owned, leased or controlled by them and not acquired from one engaged in the business of manufacturing and selling gypsum products, and of manufacturing at said plants, selling and using in the United States of America and the territories and possessions thereof, gypsum plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard and said other products, embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said Haggerty and/or Hite patents for the full term of the last to expire of said letters patent, including any extensions and/or reissues thereof. This license shall not include the right to manufacture gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard or any of said other products embodying the said Haggerty and/or Hite inventions, at any plant or factory purchased or acquired by second or third parties or by any such subsidiary from any other person or company subsequent to the date hereof, without the express written consent of first party.

5. First party has agreed to and does hereby give and grant unto second and third parties an indivisible and non-exclusive right, license and privilege of using the process or processes and making and using the machines and/or inventions set forth and claimed in any and all of said patents and/or applications for letters patent described in said Exhibit A in the manufacture of gypsum plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard at the plants or factories now owned and/or operated by second and third parties, or at any other plant or factory hereafter owned and/or operated or controlled by them or any subsidiary, associated or affiliated company of third party, and of manufacturing at any such place or places, selling and using in the United States of America and the territories and possessions thereof, gypsum plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard manufactured at any such place
9305 or places and embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said patents and/or applications for letters patent described in said Exhibit A for the full term of said letters patent, or of any letters patent which may be granted for or upon any of said applications described in said Exhibit A, including any extensions and/or reissues thereof.

6. It is expressly understood and agreed that each and all of the indivisible and non-exclusive rights, licenses and privileges aforesaid are granted upon condition that the first party shall have, and it hereby reserves, the right to determine and fix at any time and to change from time to time during the existence of said patents and so long as said licenses shall continue, th minimum price or prices at which second and third parties shall sell any plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured by second and third parties by the use of any of the machines or appliances covered by any of said letters patent and which shall embody the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in any of said patents which are presently issued, or any of said plasterboard, gypsum wallboard, blocks, pipe covering and/or other products manufactured by second and third parties and which shall embody the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in either patent number 1,500,452 or patent number 1,230,297, or commencing with the date when a patent shall have been granted or issued for or upon any of the said Roos or Bayer inventions and/or applications described in said Exhibit B, any of said plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured by second and third parties, the body or core of which is made according to the process set forth and claimed in any patent granted for or upon any of said Roos or Bayer inventions and/or applications described in said Exhibit B; and in case first party shall exer-9306 cise the rights so reserved, it shall first serve written notice of its intention so to do upon second and third parties, accompanied with a statement of the minimum price or prices at which second and third parties shall sell said gypsum plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard or said other products, and thereafter shall give to second and third parties written or telegraphic notice of any change in such price or prices, and second and third parties expressly covenant and agree that they will, not, so long as this agreement shall continue in force and effect and after receipt of such notice, given in accordance with the terms and conditions hereof, directly or indirectly, sell or offer for sale any gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured by them by use of any of the machines or appliances covered by any of said patents and which during the existence thereof shall embody the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in any of said patents which are presently issued, or any gypsum plasterboard, gypsum wallboard, blocks, pipe-covering and/or other products manufactured by second and third parties and which during the existence thereof shall embody the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in either patent number 1,500,452 or patent number 1,230,297 or any gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured by second and third parties after a patent shall have issued upon any of the said Roos or Bayer inventions and/or applications described in said Exhibit B and during the existence thereof, the body or core of which is made according to the process set forth and claimed in any patent granted for or upon any of said Roos or Bayer inventions and/or applications described in said Exhibit B, at a price or prices less than that stated by first party in said notice or in any such written or telegraphic notice of a change in such price or prices.

9307 Such minimum price shall not be more than that price at which first party determines to sell plasterboard or gypsum wallboard or said other products embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said patents to its own like trade in the same market.

7. Second and third parties agree to pay to first party in fulfillment of the obligation of third party to pay one and one-half per cent (1½%) of its said selling price from August 6, 1929, to February 10, 1937, as aforesaid, in settlement and discharge of the said claim of first party against said third party and for the right, license and privilege of using the processes and making and using the machines and/or inventions in the manufacture of gypsum plasterboard and gypsum wallboard covered by said patents and applications for letters patent described in said Exhibit A, and for the privilege of manufacturing, using and/or selling plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said patents and applications for letters patent described in said Exhibit A, an amount (hereinafter for convenience referred to as a license fee or royalty) equivalent to one and one-half per cent (1½%) of the selling price of second and third parties of all plaster board and gypsum wallboard of every kind, whether or not made by the use of said machines and/or embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said letters patent or applications for letters patent, manufactured and sold by second and third parties between the date hereof and February 10, 1937, the date of the expiration of patent number 1,330,413 mentioned in said Exhibit A.

It is understood that upon the issuance or granting of a patent for or upon any of the said Roos or 9308 Bayer applications described in said Exhibit B, then after the expiration from the date of the issuance of any such patent of a term equivalent to the present unexpired term of the last to expire of the said Haggerty and Hite patents, second and third parties, in addition to the foregoing royalties or license fees, will pay to first party for the right, license and privilege of thereafter using the process set forth and claimed in said Roos and Bayer applications and of any patent granted or issued for or upon said applications, an amount (hereinafter for convenience referred to as a license fee or royalty) equivalent to one per cent (1%) of the selling price of second and third parties of all plasterboard and gypsum wallboard of every kind, whether or not embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said Roos and Bayer applications, or any such patent issued for or upon the same, manufactured and sold by second and third parties until the expiration of the last to expire of any patent granted or issued for or upon any of the said Roos or Bayer applications.

Second and third parties' "selling price" shall mean the delivered selling price of second and third parties, less freight paid by the customer and less regular cash discounts allowed by them to the customer.

8. It is further agreed that so long as the licenses provided for in paragraphs 3, 4 and 5 hereof shall remain in force between the parties hereto, or in case said licenses shall expire before the expiration of the patents specifically described in this paragraph and the said licenses shall have continued in force between the parties hereto for the full term hereof, then until the expiration of the patents specifically described in this paragraph, first party does hereby give and grant unto the second and third parties an in-
9309 divisible and non-exclusive right, license and privilege of making and using the inventions set forth and claimed in those certain patents known as the Birdsey Plasterboard Bundle Patent number 1,696,877, dated December 25, 1928, Utzman patent number 1,724,740, dated August 13, 1929, Birdsey patent number 1,730,113 dated October 1, 1929, and applications for letters patent serial numbers 329,581 filed December 31, 1928, and 296,354 filed July 30, 1928, and any patent which may be granted for or upon said applications, including any extensions and/or reissues thereof, at the plants or factories now owned and/or operated by second and third parties or at any other plants or factories hereafter owned and/or operated or controlled by second and third parties, or any subsidiary, associated or affiliated company of said third party, and of selling or using bundles of plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard put up or bundled by second and third parties at any such place or places, according to the claims set forth and claimed in said patents and applications for letters patent in this paragraph described, upon the terms and conditions hereinafter stated.

Second and third parties agree to pay to first party for the right, license and privilege of making, using or selling the inventions set forth and claimed in said patents and applications in the next preceding paragraph described, in addition to the sums hereinabove set forth, an amount (hereinafter referred to as a license fee or royalty) equivalent to ten cents (10¢) per one thousand (1,000) square feet of plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard which is sold by second and third parties in bundles of any kind, whether or not the bundles shall be made according to the claims set forth and claimed in said patents, which said license fee or royalty shall be payable at the times and in accordance with 9310 the terms of paragraph 10 hereof. The term "bundle" shall not include unbundled material wired or strapped for purposes of transportation or unbundled material shipped for export or coastwise trade in fiber, wooden or other crates.

9. It is expressly understood and agreed that this contract and the licenses herein granted shall be personal to the second and third parties, and that the same or any right therein or hereunder shall not be sold, assigned or transferred without the written consent of first party or transferred by operation of law; Provided, However, that the same may be assigned by second and third parties to any company acquiring all of the assets and business or capital stock of third party or its plasterboard and wallboard business or its assets used in connection therewith, on condition that second and third parties shall first obtain an agreement in writing from any such assignee agreeing to assume all of the obligations of second and third parties under this agreement and to be bound by all of the terms and conditions thereof and shall deliver such agreement to first party. Second and third parties agree that in case of the sale of all of the assets and business or capital stock of third party or its plasterboard and wallboard business or its assets used in connection therewith, they will require the purchaser or purchasers thereof to assume in writing all the obligations of second and third parties hereunder and to agree to be bound by the terms and conditions hereof and deliver such agreement to first party. It is expressly understood, however, that if this agreement is assigned, as in this paragraph provided, the licenses granted in paragraphs 3 and 4 hereof and the rights extended under paragraph 22 hereof shall apply only to plants conveyed 9311 by second and third parties to such assignee and such plants as may be thereafter built by such assignee on land now owned, leased or controlled by second and/or third parties and not to any other plant or plants which such assignee may then have or build or acquire thereafter on ground other than that now owned, leased or controlled by second and/or third parties. Second and third parties may, however, assign the right to receive the said sums agreed to be paid to them by first party hereunder separately, if desired, from the licenses herein granted, without the consent of first party.

10. Second and third parties agree to keep separate, full and accurate books of account and records showing the exact quantity of all plasterboard and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by them, as well as a separate record of all plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard sold by them in bundles, and agree that at any time when they are required to pay any of said royalties or license fees under any of the licenses granted hereunder, in accordance with the terms hereof, they will, on or before the 20th day of each calendar month, render unto first party true written returns, verified under oath by second and third parties or their duly authorized agent, setting forth the quantity of all plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by them during the preceding calendar month, and/or the quantity thereof put up and sold by them in bundles, together with the price or prices at which the same was sold and is to be accounted for hereunder, such written returns to be delivered to first party at its office in Chicago, Illinois, and second and third parties agree to pay to first party, on or before the 20th day of each calendar month, at the office of first party at Chicago, Illinois, the hereinbefore stipulated royalties or license fees which may 9312 then be due under this agreement on account of all of said plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by them and/or put up and sold by them in bundles during the next preceding calendar month.

11. First party, or its duly authorized representative, shall at any time during the term hereof when second and third parties are required to pay any of said royalties in accordance with the terms hereof, have the right at all reasonable times during business hours to inspect the books of account and records of second and third parties, referred to in the next preceding paragraph hereof, including all records of every kind showing the quantity of said plasterboard and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by second and third parties and the quantity thereof put up and sold by them in bundles, and the price or prices at which the same was sold, and to make copies thereof and memoranda therefrom; Provided, However, that if at the time of any such examination second and third parties shall request it in writing, then such examination shall be made by a certified public accountant agreed upon between the parties hereto, in which event the expense thereof shall be borne one-half thereof by first party and one-half thereof by second and third parties. If the parties at any such time shall not agree upon the certified public accountant to make such examination, then first party shall name three certified public accountants of good standing, not directly or indirectly employed by it or in any other way connected with it. If second and third parties shall not accept any one of them, then first party shall have the right to make such examination itself.

12. Second and third parties agree that all plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by them
9313 embodying the claims of any of said patents and/or applications for letters patent shall be distinctly marked with the word "patented" and/or "patent applied for," as the case may be, together with the numbers of any of said patents or applications specified by first party, the claims of which may be embodied in said plasterboard or gypsum wallboard, and in connection with said marking, second and third parties will further mark said board with the words "licensed under the above letters patent" and/or "licensed under pending applications for letters patent," as the case may be, which marking shall be plainly visible. Other products manufactured and sold by second or third parties protected under said Haggerty or Hite patents shall be similarly marked. Second and third parties further agree that all bundles put up and sold by them embodying the claims of said patents numbers 1,696,877, 1,724,740 and 1,730,113 and/or any of said applications serial numbers 329,581 and 296,354 shall be similarly marked, together with the numbers of said bundle patents and/or applications.

13. Having regard for the fact that there are or may be certain manufacturers of plaster or gypsum products, jobbers or other wholesale distributors of such products, who do not or may not manufacture gypsum wallboard or plasterboard but who desire or may desire to have gypsum wallboard or plasterboard manufactured for them, it is understood and agreed that second and third parties may manufacture for jobbers (being those who do not manufacture but buy and sell plasterboard or gypsum wallboard in straight cars or in mixed cars with other building material and who do not sell at retail) gypsum wallboard or plasterboard embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said letters patent or in any letters patent after the same shall have been issued or granted for or upon any of the said applications, and may, 9314 with the written consent of first party, manufacture for any such other manufacturer or other wholesale distributor, gypsum wallboard or plasterboard embodying the said inventions and improvements; Provided, However, that the said license fee or royalty to be paid to first party, as hereinbefore provided, shall be based upon all gypsum wallboard and plasterboard manufactured for and sold and invoiced to such other manufacturer, jobber or wholesale distributor, and upon the regular selling price of second and third parties of such plasterboard or gypsum wallboard to their regular dealer trade at the time of such sale and invoice, and shall not be based upon the price at which plasterboard or gypsum wallboard is sold and invoiced by second and third parties to such other manufacturer, jobber or wholesale distributor. Nothing hereinbefore contained in this agreement shall be construed to give second and third parties the right to manufacture gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard, embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in any of said letters patent or in any letters patent after the same shall have been granted for or upon any of said applications, for said other manufacturers or wholesale distributors and to sell the same, without the written consent of first party.

14. Second and third parties covenant and agree that all of said gypsum plasterboard and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by them embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in any of said letters patent or patents issued upon any of said applications and commonly known in the trade as "seconds" shall be plainly invoiced as "seconds" and shall be plainly marked with a visible red stamp or label firmly fixed on each of said boards showing the word "seconds" in letters at least 9315 three (3) inches in height.

15. As one of the considerations for the indivisible and non-exclusive licenses herein and hereby granted, second and third parties hereby acknowledge the validity of said letters patent or of any letters patent which may be granted or issued for or upon said applications, forming the subject-matter of said licenses, so long as said licenses shall remain in full force and effect, and agree that they will not at any time during the existence of said licenses, directly or indirectly, by themselves, through or together with another or others, contest the validity of any of said letters patent or the title thereto of first party. This paragraph shall apply only to plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard in so far as all of said patents or patents issued upon any of said applications are concerned, except said Haggerty and Hite patents.

16. In the event that either party shall at any time neglect, fail or refuse to keep or perform any of the conditions or agreements herein to be kept by it and performed, then the other party, at its election, may serve upon the party in default written notice of intention to terminate the licenses herein granted, which notice shall specify the alleged neglect, failure or refusal, and if within thirty (30) days from the date of service of said notice the party in default shall not cure the default specified in said notice, then the other party may cancel and terminate the licenses herein granted by notifying the party in default in writing of its election so to do, without the necessity of any court action; Provided, However, that neither party shall be relieved thereby from any liability accrued at the time of such termination, and Provided Further that if the party upon whom said notice is served shall deny that it is in default, in whole or in part, as specified therein, then the party serving such notice shall not be privileged to cancel said licenses on account of the alleged default specified therein, provided the party upon whom said notice shall have been served shall within said thirty (30) day period perform the agreements and submit the question to arbitration, as in this paragraph hereinafter set forth. In case of any such denial, the party upon whom the notice shall have been served shall within said thirty (30) day period state in writing to the other party wherein and in what respect it denies the default specified in said notice, and shall at the same time make good any default specified therein which it does not deny, and appoint in writing one person as arbiter to arbitrate the question of whether or not it is in default in respect to that which it shall have denied as aforesaid, it being understood, however, that if the question shall be with respect to the amount of royalties or license fees to be paid hereunder, then the second and third parties shall first pay or offer to pay the amount of such license fees or royalties which they then admit is due and payable in accordance with the terms hereof, and the acceptance thereof by the first party shall not operate as a waiver of any of its rights hereunder or any claim it may have made in any notice served by it upon second parties. The party so serving said notice shall, after the other party shall have made good any default specified in said notice which it did not deny in writing as aforesaid, including the payment of royalties or license fees, if any, admitted to be due and payable hereunder, and within ten (10) days from the date of the appointment of said first arbiter in accordance with the terms hereof, appoint in writing another person as arbiter, and the two persons so appointed shall within ten (10) days or as soon as possible thereafter appoint in writing a third person as ar-9317 biter. The three persons so appointed shall, within thirty (30) days from the date of the appointment of said last mentioned arbiter, or as soon as possible thereafter, decide whether or not the party upon whom said notice has been served is in default hereunder with respect to anything contained in said notice. The decision of a majority of the three arbiters so appointed shall constitute a final settlement of the said question and be binding and conclusive upon the parties hereto, and if it shall have been determined by a majority of the said arbiters that the party upon whom said notice was served is in default with respect to anything contained in said notice, and the party so found to have been in default shall fail or refuse to comply with the terms of the award or finding made by said arbiters within thirty (30) days from the date such award or finding shall have been made, the party serving said notice may, at its election, terminate and cancel the said licenses in writing. In the event of default hereunder by either party, and notice of such default is served by the other party as herein provided, and after service of such notice the party in default shall cure the same as hereinbefore provided, the same shall constitute a nullification of said notice to the same effect as if said notice had not been served. In case this contract shall be assigned in accordance with the terms hereof or third party shall become substituted for second parties as hereinafter stated, then if any such assignee or said third party shall at any time be adjudged a bankrupt while holding said license, then all of said licenses shall immediately be and become cancelled and terminated, but first party shall not thereby be prevented from collecting any license fees or royalties accrued hereunder at the time of such termination. The waiver of any breach by either party shall not be interpreted as 9318 constituting a waiver of any further breach or breaches. Either party may proceed by action to specifically enforce this contract or any of the terms, conditions and covenants thereof by injunction or in such other manner as may be provided by law. The cancellation of said licenses for any reason whatsoever, shall not affect the title of first party in and to said Haggerty or Hite patents, and shall not affect the right of second and third parties to collect any sums due to them under the terms hereof.

17. Any notice to be given under the terms hereof may be served by either party hereto by mailing the same to the other party hereto, postage prepaid and registered, addressed to such party at its or their last known principal office. In case such notice is served upon first party or upon any corporation a party to this contract, then the same shall be addressed to an officer of first party or such other corporate party, as the case may be, directed to its last known principal office. The deposit of any such notice in the United States mails, postage prepaid, registered and so addressed, shall constitute service of notice hereunder.

18. It is understood and agreed that if at any time during the term hereof second and third parties shall, in the judgment of first party, suffer substantial detriment by reason of any infringement on the part of any person or persons of any of said letters patent or of any patent that may be granted upon said applications under which this license is granted, first party will afford second and third parties such reasonable protection as in the judgment of first party shall be necessary or proper.

The agreement to pay said royalties for said pat-9319 ents described in Exhibit A is made in consideration of the settlement of said claim of first party against third party and the right and privilege which second and third parties have already exercised of using the said Utzman patents first above mentioned and for the right and privilege of using any and/or all of said patents described in said Exhibit A throughout the full term thereof. If a court of last resort upon final appeal or review, shall hold all claims of the patents granted for or upon said Roos and Bayer applications described in said Exhibit B invalid, or second and/or third parties shall be permanently enjoined from manufacturing plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard, the body or core of which is made according to the processes set forth and claimed in said Roos and Bayer applications, in such manner that they cannot practice in any way any of the inventions set forth in the said applications or patents issued thereupon, and such injunction shall be made final by a court of last resort upon final appeal or review, then from the time the court of last resort upon final appeal or review, shall decree all claims of said Roos and Bayer patents invalid or make said injunction permanent and final, second and third parties shall be relieved from the payment of said license fees or royalties amounting to one per cent (1%) of their said selling price agreed to be paid by them for the use of the process set forth and claimed in said Roos and Bayer applications described in said Exhibit B or any patent which may be issued therefor or thereupon commencing after the expiration of the said Haggerty and Hite patents as hereinbefore provided. If a court of last resort upon final appeal or review, shall decree all the claims of said patents mentioned in paragraph 8 hereof invalid or second and/or third parties shall be permanently enjoined from using the 9320 inventions of all of the claims of said patents described in said paragraph 8 so that they cannot practice in any way any of the inventions set forth therein, and such injunction shall be made final by a court of last resort upon final appeal or review, then from the time the court of last resort upon final appeal or review shall decree all said claims invalid or make said injunction permanent and final, second and third parties shall be relieved from the payment of the royalties or license fees agreed to be paid therefor as set forth in said paragraph 8 hereof.

19. In case first party shall at any time subsequent to the date hereof grant to any other person any license under said patents or applications for letters patent set forth in said Exhibit A and paragraph 8 hereof for the manufacture, sale or use of gypsum wallboard embodying the claims or inventions set forth or claimed in said patents or said applications set forth in said Exhibit A and paragraph 8 hereof, or shall grant any right under any such license, upon terms more favorable than those granted hereunder to second and third parties, then it will grant to second and third parties a license on the same terms, or extend to them the same right granted to any such other person. This paragraph shall also apply to any license for the manufacture of plasterboard or gypsum wallboard under any patent issued for or upon said Roos and Bayer applications described in Exhibit B during the period second and third parties are required to pay license fees or royalties therefor to first party.

20. The terms "gypsum plasterboard," "gypsum wallboard" and "plasterboard" shall be understood to mean all board made of gypsum, by whatever name called, having the characteristics of gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard, irrespective of the purpose for which the same
9321 may be sold or used, and shall include gypsum laths and all other gypsum boards.

21. If there shall have been invented or come into use any process which shall make the said process of forming a cellular product as set forth and claimed in said Roos and Bayer applications described in said Exhibit B obsolete or shall displace the same, and first party shall in its own manufacture permanently and wholly abandon the use of the subject-matter of the claims of said Roos and Bayer applications, it shall notify second and third parties in writing thereof and second and third parties may, upon thirty (30) days' written notice to first party after they shall have become required to pay to first party license fees or royalties in accordance with the terms hereof for the use of said Roos and Bayer applications or patents, cancel and terminate this license in so far as the same applies to said Roos and Bayer applications or to any patent or patents granted or issued therefor or thereupon, and from the date of such cancellation the royalties or license fees to be paid by second and third parties hereunder for the use of said Roos and Bayer applications or patents shall cease and determine; Provided, However, that if first party shall not in such event permanently and wholly abandon the use of said process, but shall only partially abandon the same, then to the extent or degree and for the term that first party shall abandon the same in its own manufacture second and third parties shall be relieved from the payment of license fees or royalties during the time they are required to pay the same in accordance with the terms hereof to the same extent, that is to say, if the first party shall in such

or make or for a particular purpose or use, without the use of said process embodied therein, then if second and third parties shall manufacture and sell the same board of the same particular size, kind or make and for the same purpose or use without the use of said process embodied therein, then second and third parties shall not be required to pay royalties or license fees upon such particular board for the term that first party shall manufacture and sell the same. The use by first party of any improvement which second and third parties have the right to use, as set forth in paragraph 22 hereof, or the manufacture of plasterboard or gypsum wallboard without the use of said process for sale only in foreign countries where first party has no patented rights in said process shall not constitute an abandonment of said process or a partial abandonment thereof within the meaning of this paragraph.

22. If first parties shall at any time during the existence of this agreement make or obtain any improvement for the formation of the bubble described in the process set forth in said Roos and Bayer applications and/or method of its introduction in the core of plasterboard or gypsum wallboard, and which improvement is covered by the claims of said Roos and/or Bayer applications, and shall itself use the same in its own manufacture, then if second and third parties shall pay the license fees or royalties hereinbefore stipulated during the time they are required to pay the same, the right, license or privilege contained in paragraph 3 hereof shall be extended to and include the use of said improvement in the manufacture by second and third 9323 parties of gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard at the plants described in said paragraph 3, subject to all of the terms and conditions herein contained, except only that second and third parties shall not be required to pay any additional sum, royalty or license fee therefor. It is further understood that if a patent or patents shall be granted or issued for or upon said improvement, then all of the provisions of this agreement, as well as the provisions hereof reserving the right in first party to determine and fix at any time and to change from time to time the minimum price or prices at which second and third parties shall sell any gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured by second and third parties and embodying the claims of said patents, shall apply to the improvement set forth and claimed in any patent or patents granted or issued for or upon said improvement. First party will promptly notify second and third parties of the general adoption by it of any such improvement in its own manufacuture, together with such information as it may possess as to the use thereof in the manufacture of plasterboard and gypsum wallboard.

23. Second and third parties have investigated and fully satisfied themselves with respect to the inventions and improvements set forth in said patents and applications for letters patent, and the use thereof in their own manufacture, and have executed this agreement without relying upon any representations which may have been made by first party with respect thereto. No representations have been made by first party not expressly stated in this contract which second or third parties shall at any time have any right to rely upon as an inducement for making this contract or for any result or results to be obtained by 9324 second and third parties in their own plants by their use of the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in any of said patents or applications for letters patent.

24. First party agrees at any time during the term hereof to extend to second and third parties upon their written request an indivisible and non-exclusive license or privilege to use said process or processes set forth and claimed in said Roos or Bayer applications described in said Exhibit B, in the manufacture in their said plants of any other gypsum product not specifically covered by this agreement and in which first party shall use the same in its own manufacture and to sell the same upon the payment to first party of one per cent (1%) of the selling price of second and third parties of all of said other gypsum product, whether or not embodying the said process in making the same, manufactured and sold by second and third parties, and upon the same terms as set forth herein and upon all of the conditions hereof, subject, however, to the requirement to pay said one per cent (1%) of said selling price, as in this paragraph mentioned, in which event in the agreement for the same there shall be substituted for said plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard the name of such other product or products. An agreement containing all of said terms and conditions shall be reduced to writing and signed by the parties hereto before the same shall become effective.

25. This contract shall from the date hereof supersede all prior license agreements at any time made between any of the parties hereto relating to the subject-matter hereof or any of the patents or applications for letters patent referred to in this agreement; Provided, However, that neither party shall be barred or prevented from recover-
9325 ing any claims which may have accrued under said prior license agreements prior to the date hereof, including all payments, royalties or license fees agreed to be paid thereunder up to the date of this agreement.

26. This agreement and all of the covenants and agreements herein contained shall be binding upon and inure to the benefit of the successors and assigns of the parties hereof, and second parties in their respective capacities as receivers or co-receivers in equity of third party by appointment of any United States District Court in proceedings now pending similar to proceedings just above described, but nothing in this paragraph contained shall be construed to permit an assignment hereof or any right hereunder by second and third parties except as hereinabove specifically provided. It is further understood that second and third parties shall be treated as one party and notice and payment to or by or other action taken by second parties during said receivership shall be regarded as notice and payment to or by or action taken by the second and third parties, and if the said receivers shall be discharged and the business and properties of third party delivered back to said third party, then this agreement together with all the terms and conditions hereof shall be binding upon and inure to the benefit of third party to the same effect as if second parties were not named as a party herein.

In witness whereof first party has hereunto caused these presents to be signed by its president, attested by its secretary and its corporate seal to be hereunto affixed, and second parties have signed, sealed and delivered 9326 these presents pursuant to said order of the United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division, in said cause and said orders in said other causes, and third party has caused these presents to be signed by its vice-president, attested by its secretary and its corporate seal to be hereunto affixed, pursuant to said order of the United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division, in said cause and said orders in said other causes; all done in triplicate the day and year first above written.

LICENSE AGREEMENT

This Agreement made this 21st day of October, A.D. 1929, by and between the United States Gypsum Company, an Illinois corporation, of Chicago, Illinois, hereinafter referred to as Licensor, and Atlantic Gypsum Products Company a New Hampshire corporation, of Portsmouth, New Hampshire, hereinafter referred to as Licensee, Witnesseth, That

Whereas, Licensor is the owner of certain letters patent and applications for letters patent of the United States covering an improved gypsum wallboard and method or process of making the same, together with machines and appliances for the manufacture of such inventions which, with certain other patents, are more specifically set forth in Exhibit A attached hereto and made a part hereof; and

Whereas, Licensor was the owner of all of the right, title and interest in and under letters patent of the United States number 1,029,338 and number 1,034,746 known as the Utzman Patents, the last of which expired August 6, 1929, which said Utzman Patents were adjudicated by the United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division, and by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit, and were decreed by said courts as valid and having been infringed by the defendants named in said suits; and

Whereas, Birdsey Patent number 1,358,508, mentioned in said Exhibit A, was decreed by the United States District Court for the Northern District of Ohio as valid and infringed by the defendant in said cause by reason
9333 of its having made, used and sold plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard with edges of the character disclosed in said patent, and said District Court ordered a perpetual injunction and accounting against defendant, which cause is now pending on appeal before the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit; and

Whereas, Licensor is the owner of a new process disclosed in that certain application for United States letters patent filed by Carlisle K. Roos, entitled "Cementitious Material," now pending in the United States Patent Office and covering the process of making a cellular product, which comprises forming a tenacious foam and mixing the foam with cementitious material, and of certain other applications filed by said Roos covering specific employment of said invention, and Licensor has heretofore acquired the sole and exclusive rights in the United States of America (when gypsum is used as the main binding material) in that certain application for United States letters patent described in Exhibit A filed by Erik Christian Bayer, entitled "Methods of Manufacturing Porous Building Materials," and relating to a process broadly similar to that of said first mentioned Roos application, which said Roos and Bayer applications are described and set forth in said Exhibit A; and

Whereas, Licensor has agreed to purchase that certain Haggerty Patent number 1,500,452, dated July 8, 1924, and that certain Hite Patent number 1,230,297, dated June 19, 1917, both mentioned in said Exhibit A, subject to approval of the United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division thereof, and other 9334 United States district courts in receivership proceedings therein pending against the present owner of said patents; and

Whereas, gypsum wallboard or plasterboard manufactured by Licensee is made by the use of the machines or according to the processes or embodying the claims of some or all of said patents and applications for letters patent set forth in said Exhibit A, and Licensee desires to include in its manufacture the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said Roos and Bayer applications and said Haggerty and Hite patents, and to obtain a license from Licensor to make, use and sell the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in all of said patents and applications for letters patent set forth in said Exhibit A throughout the full term thereof; and

Whereas, Licensor has agreed to grant said License and to make certain disclosures as to the said Roos and Bayer applications referred to in said Exhibit A, upon the terms and conditions hereinafter stated;

Now, Therefore, in consideration of the sum of One Dollar and other good and valuable considerations, the receipt whereof is hereby acknowledged from each party to the other party, and in consideration of the mutual covenants and agreements hereinafter contained, the parties hereto do hereby agree as follows, to-wit:

1. Licensor agrees promptly to disclose to Licensee all information and formulae which it now has or may obtain relating to the process of making a cellular product through the formation of a tenacious foam and mixing the foam with a cementitious material, as set forth and claimed in said applications for letters patent filed by Carlisle K. Roos and Erik Christian Bayer, in so far as the same 9335 is or may be applied to gypsum, and including all information and formulae for the manufacture of gypsum plasterboard and gypsum wallboard embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said Roos and Bayer applications, together with a description of the machines or appliances which it now has for making the same. It will assist Licencee to make its plant ready for practicing said process in the manufacture of plasterboard and gypsum wallboard by furnishing without cost to Licensee the advice and instruction of Licensor's experts and information with respect to the purchase and cost of said machines and appliances.

2. Licensor has agreed to and does hereby give and grant unto Licensee an indivisible and non-exclusive right, license and privilege of using the process or processes and making and using the machines and/or inventions set forth and claimed in any and all of said patents and/or applications for letters patent set forth in Exhibit A attached hereto in the manufacture of gypsum plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard at the plants or factories now owned and/or operated by Licensee, or at any other plant or factory hereafter owned and/or operated or controlled by it or any subsidiary, associated or affiliated company, and of manufacturing at any such place or places, selling and using in the United States of America and the territories and possessions thereof gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured at any such place or places and embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said patents and/or applications for letters patent described in said Exhibit A, for 9336 the full term of said letters patent or of any letters patent which may be granted for or upon any of said applications, including any extensions and/or reissues thereof.

It is expressly understood and agreed that the indivisible and non-exclusive right, license and privilege aforesaid is granted upon condition that the Licensor shall have and it hereby reserves the right to determine and fix at any time and to change from time to time during the existence of said patents and so long as said license shall continue, the minimum price or prices at which Licensee shall sell any plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured by Licensee by use of any of the machines or appliances covered by any of said letters patent and which shall embody the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in any of said patents which are presently issued, or any of said plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured by second parties and which shall embody the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in either patent number 1,500,452 or patent number 1,230,297, or commencing with the date when a patent shall have been granted or issued for or upon any of the said Roos or Bayer inventions and/or applications any of said plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured by Licensee, the body or core of which is made according to the process set forth and claimed in any patent granted for or upon any of said Roos or Bayer inventions and/or applications, and in case Licensor shall exercise the right so reserved, it shall first serve written notice of its intention so to do upon Licensee, accompanied with a statement of the minimum price or prices at which Licensee shall sell said gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard, and 9337 thereafter shall give Licensee written or telegraphic notice of any change in such price or prices, and Licensee expressly covenants and agrees that it will not, so long as this agreement shall continue in force and effect and after receipt of such notice given in accordance with the terms and conditions hereof, directly or indirectly, sell or offer for sale any gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured by it by use of any of the machines or appliances covered by any of said patents and which during the existence thereof shall embody the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in any of said patents which are presently issued, or any gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured by second parties and which during the existence thereof shall embody the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in either patent number 1,500,452 or patent number 1,230,297, or any gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured by Licensee after a patent shall have issued upon any of the said Roos or Bayer inventions and/or applications and during the existence thereof, the body or core of which is made according to the process set forth and claimed in any patent granted for or upon any of said inventions and/or applications, at a price or prices less than that stated by Licensor in said notice or in any such written or telegraphic notice of a change in such price or prices.

Said minimum price shall not be more than that price at which Licensor determines to sell plasterboard or gypsum wallboard embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said patents to its own like trade in the same market.

9338 3. Licensee agrees to pay to Licensor for said disclosures, information and assistance and the agreements of Licensor herein contained, and for the right, license and privilege of using the processes and making and using the machines and/or inventions in the manufacture of plasterboard and gypsum wallboard covered by said patents and applications for letters patent described in said Exhibit A, and for the privilege of manufacturing, using and/or selling plasterboard and gypsum wallboard embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said patents and applications for letters patent, an amount (hereinafter for convenience referred to as a license fee or royalty) equivalent to three and one-half per cent (3½%) of the selling price of Licensee of all plasterboard and gypsum wallboard of every kind, whether or not made by the use of said machines and/or embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said letters patent or applications for letters patent, manufactured and sold by Licensee between the date hereof and February 10, 1937, the date of the expiration of patent number 1,330,413 mentioned in said Exhibit A, and thereafter an amount equivalent to two per cent (2%) of the selling price of Licensee of all such plasterboard and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it between February 10, 1937, and July 8, 1941, the date of the expiration of said patent number 1,500,452, and thereafter an amount equivalent to one per cent (1%) of the selling price of Licenses of all such plasterboard and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it between

July 8, 1941, and the date of the expiration of the last to expire of any patent granted or issued for or upon any of the said Roos or Bayer applications; Provided, How-9339 ever, that if no patent shall have been granted or issued for or upon any of said Roos or Bayer applications covering said process referred to in paragraph 1 hereof, within two (2) years from the date hereof, then commencing with the end of said two (2) year period the said license fees or royalties agreed to be paid by Licensee shall be reduced by one per cent (1%) of Licensee's said selling price until such patents shall have been granted or issued for or upon any of said Roos and Bayer applications, at which time Licensee shall again commence to pay the full amount of said license fees or royalties until the date of the expiration of the last to expire of any such patent or patents. If at the time of the execution of this contract Licensee's plant shall not be equipped to practice the process set forth and claimed in said Roos or Bayer applications in the manufacture of plasterboard or gypsum wallboard, then Licensee shall pay as such license fees or royalties two and one-half per cent (2½%) of said selling price between the date hereof and January 1, 1930, or such earlier date as Licensee shall make its plant ready to practice said process in the manufacture of said board, and the payment of three and one-half per cent (3½%) of said selling price and said period of two (2) years in this paragraph mentioned shall commence on January 1, 1930, or such earlier date as Licensee shall have made its plant ready as aforesaid. The amount of one per cent (1%) of said selling price included in said royalties or license fees is the amount agreed to be paid by Licensee for the use of said Haggerty and Hite patents.

Licensee's selling price shall mean the delivered selling price of Licensee, less freight paid by the customer and less regular cash discounts allowed by Licensee.

9340 between the parties hereto, or in case the license granted under paragaph 2 hereof shall expire before the expiration of the patents specifically described in this paragraph, and the said license granted under paragraph 2 shall continue in force between the parties hereto for the full term of the last to expire of any of said patents described in said Exhibit A, or of any patent or patents granted for or upon any application described in said

Exhibit A, then until the expiration of the patents specifically described in this paragraph, Licensor does hereby give and grant unto the Licensee an indivisible and non-exclusive right, license and privilege of making and using the inventions set forth and claimed in those certain patents known as the Birdsey Plasterboard Bundle Patent number 1,696,877, dated December 25, 1928, Utzman Patent number 1,724,740 dated August 13, 1929, Birdsey Patent number 1,730,113 dated October 1, 1929, and applications for letters patent serial numbers 329,581 filed December 31, 1928, and 296,354 filed July 30, 1928, and any patent which may be granted for or upon said applications, including any extensions and/or reissues thereof, at the plants or factories now owned or operated by Licensee or at any other plant or factory hereafter owned and/or operated and controlled by Licensee or any subsidiary, associated or affiliated company of Licensee, and of selling or using bundles of plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard put up or bundled by Licensee at any such place or places according to the claims set forth and claimed in the said patents and applications for letters patent in this paragraph described, upon the terms and conditions hereinafter stated.

Licensee agrees to pay to Licensor for the right, license and privilege of making, using or selling the inventions set forth and claimed in said patents and applications in the next preceding paragraph described, in addition to the sums hereinabove set forth, an amount (hereinafter referred to as a license fee or royalty) equivalent to ten cents (10¢) per one thousand (1,000) square feet of plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard which is 9341 sold by Licensee in bundles of any kind, whether or not the bundles shall be made according to the claims set forth and claimed in said patents, which said license fee or royalty shall be payable at the times and in accordance with the terms of paragraph 6 hereof. The term "bundle" shall not include unbundled material wired or strapped for purpose of transportation or unbundled material shipped for export or coastwise trade in fiber, wooden or other crates.

5. It is expressly understood and agreed that the license herein granted shall be personal to the Licensee, and that the same or any right herein or thereunder shall not be sold or assigned or transferred without the written consent of Licensor, or transferred by operation of law; Provided,

However, that the same may be assigned by Licensee to any company acquiring all the assets and business or all of the capital stock of Licensee, on condition that Licensee shall first obtain an agreement in writing from any such assignee agreeing to assume all of the obligations of Licensee under this agreement and to be bound by all of the terms and conditions hereof and shall deliver such agreement to Licensor. Licensee agrees not to sell all of its assets and business or all of its capital stock or to transfer and convey its plasterboard and/or wallboard business, or its assets used in connection therewith, without requiring the purchaser or purchasers thereof to assume, in writing, all of the obligations of Licensee hereunder, and to agree to be bound by all of the terms and conditions of this contract, and deliver such agreement to Licensor.

6. Licensee agrees to keep separate full and accurate books of account and records showing the exact 9342 quantity of all plasterboard and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it, as well as a separate record of all plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard sold by it in bundles, and agrees that on or before the twentieth day of each calendar month it will render unto Licensor true written returns verified under oath by an officer or other agent of Licensee, setting forth the quantity of all plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it during the preceding calendar month and the quantity thereof put up and sold by it in bundles, together with the price or prices at which the same was sold and is to be accounted for hereunder, such written returns to be delivered to Licensor at its office in Chicago, Illinois, and Licensee agrees to pay to Licensor on or before the 20th day of each calendar month at the office of Licensor at Chicago, Illinois, the hereinbefore stipulated royalties or license fees which may then be due under this agreement on account of all said plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it and put up and sold by it in bundles during the next preceding calendar month.

7. Licensor, or its duly authorized representative, shall have the right at all reasonable times during business hours to inspect the books of account and records of Licensee referred to in the next preceding paragraph hereof, including all records of every kind showing the quantity of said plasterboard and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it and the quantity thereof put up and sold by it in bundles and the price or prices at which the same was sold, and to make copies thereof and memoranda therefrom; Provided, However, that if at the time of any such examination Licensee shall request it in writing, then such examination shall be made by a certified public accountant agreed upon between the parties hereto, in which event the expense thereof shall be borne equal-9343 ly by both parties. If the parties at any such time shall not agree upon the certified public accountant to make such examination, then Licensor shall name three certified public accountants of good standing not directly or indirectly employed by it or in any other way connected with it, and if Licensee shall not accept any one of them, then Licensor shall have the right to make such examination itself.

8. Licensee agrees that all plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it embodying the claims of any of said patents and/or applications for letters patent shall be distinctly marked with the word "Patented" and/or "Patent Applied For," as the case may be, together with the numbers of any of said patents or applications specified by Licensor, the claims of which may be embodied in said plasterboard or gypsum wallboard, and in connection with said marking Licensee will further mark said board with the words "Licensed Under The Above Letters Patent" and/or "Licensed Under Pending Applications for Letters Patent," as the case may be, which marking shall be plainly visible. Licensee further agrees that all bundles put up and sold by it embodying the claims of any of said patents numbers 1,696,877, 1,724,740 and 1,730,113 and/or any of said applications serial numbers 329,581 and 296,354 shall be similarly marked together with the numbers of said bundle patents and/or applications.

cars or in mixed cars with other building material
or plasterboard embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said letters patent or in any letters patent after the same shall have been issued, granted for or upon any of the said applications and may with the written consent of first party manufacture for any such other manufacturer or other wholesale distributor, gypsum wallboard or plasterboard embodying the said inventions and improvements; Provided, However, that the said license fee or royalty to be paid to Licensor as hereinbefore provided shall be based upon all gypsum wallboard and plasterboard manufactured for and sold and invoiced to such other manufacturer, jobber or wholesale distributor and upon the regular selling price of Licensee of such plasterboard or gypsum wallboard to its regular dealer trade at the time of such sale and invoice, and shall not be based upon the price at which plasterboard or gypsum wallboard is sold and invoiced by Licensee to such other manufacturer, jobber or wholesale distributor. Nothing hereinbefore contained in this agreement shall be construed to give Licensee the right to manufacture gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in any of said letters patent or in any letters patent after the same shall have been granted for or upon any of said applications for said other manufacturers or wholesale distributors and to sell the same, without the written consent of Licensor.

10. Licensee covenants and agrees that all of said gypsum plasterboard and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in any of said Letters patent or patents issued upon any of said applications and commonly known in the trade as "Seconds" shall be plainly 9345 invoiced as "Seconds" and shall be plainly marked with a visible red stamp or label firmly fixed on each of said boards showing the word "Seconds" in letters at least three inches in height.

11. As one of the considerations for the indivisible and non-exclusive license herein and hereby granted, Licensee hereby acknowledges the validity of said letters patent or of any letters patent which may be granted or issued for or upon said applications, forming the subject-matter of said license so long as said license shall remain in full force and effect, and agrees that it will not at any time during the existence of said license, directly or indirectly, by itself, through or together with another or others, contest the validity of either or any of said letters patent or the title thereto of Licensor.

12. In the event that either party shall at any time neglect, fail or refuse to keep or perform any of the conditions or agreements herein to be kept by it and performed, then the other party, at its election, may serve upon the party in default written notice of intention to terminate this license, which notice shall specify the alleged neglect, failure or refusal, and if within thirty (30) days from the date of delivery of said notice the party in default shall not cure the default specified in said notice, then the other party may cancel and terminate this agreement by notifying the party in default in writing of its election so to do, without the necessity of any court action: Provided, However, that neither party shall be relieved thereby from any liability accrued at the time of such termination; and Provided Further, that if the party upon whom said notice is served shall deny that it is in default in whole or in part, as specified therein, then the party serving such notice shall not be privileged to cancel this contract on account of the alleged default specified
9346 therein, provided the party upon whom said notice shall have been served shall within said thirty (30) day period perform the agreements and submit the question to arbitration, as in this paragraph hereinafter set forth. In case of any such denial the party upon whom the notice shall have been served shall within said thirty (30) day period state in writing to the other party wherein and in what respect it denies the default specified in said notice and shall at the same time make good any default specified therein which it does not deny and appoint in writing one person as arbiter to arbitrate the question of whether or not it is in default in respect to that which it shall have denied as aforesaid, it being understood, however, that if the question shall be with respect to the amount of royalties or license fees to be paid hereunder, then the Licensee shall first pay or offer to pay the amount of such license fees or royalties which it then admits is due and payable in accordance with the terms hereof, and the acceptance thereof by the Licensor shall not operate as a waiver of any of its rights hereunder or of any claim it may have made in any notice served by it upon Licensee.

The party so serving said notice shall, after the other party shall have made good any default specified in said notice which it did not deny in writing as aforesaid, including the payment of royalties or license fees, if any, admitted by it to be due and payable hereunder, and within ten (10) days from the date of the appointment of said first arbiter in accordance with the terms hereof, appoint in writing another person as arbiter, and the two persons so appointed shall within ten (10) days or as soon as possible thereafter appoint in writing a third person as arbiter. The three persons so appointed shall, within thirty (30) days from the date of the appointment of said last mentioned arbiter, or as soon as possible thereafter, decide whether or not the party upon whom said notice
9347 has been served is in default hereunder with respect to anything contained in said notice. The decision of a majority of the three arbiters so appointed shall constitute a final settlement of the said question and be binding and conclusive upon both the Licensor and the Licensee, and if it shall have been determined by a majority of the said arbiters that the party upon whom said notice was served is in default with respect to anything contained in said notice and the party so found to have been in default shall fail or refuse to comply with the terms of the award or finding made by said arbiters within thirty (30) days from the date such award or finding shall have been made, the party serving said notice may at its election terminate and cancel this agreement in writing. In the event of default hereunder by either party and notice of such default is served by the other party as herein provided, and after service of such notice the party in default shall cure the same as hereinbefore provided the same shall constitute a nullification of said notice to the same effect as if said notice had not been served. In case at any time the Licensee shall be adjudged a bankrupt, then the license hereunder shall immediately be and become canceled and terminated, but the Licensor shall not thereby be prevented from collecting all license fees or royalties accrued hereunder at the time of such termination. The waiver of any breach by either party shall not be interpreted as constituting a waiver of any further breach or breaches. Either party may proceed by action to specifically enforce this contract or any of the terms, conditions and covenants thereof by injunction or in such other manner as may be provided by law.

13. Any notice to be given under the terms hereof may be served by the Licensor or the Licensee by mailing the same to the other party hereto, postage prepaid and registered, addressed to any of its officers at its 9348 last known principal office, and the deposit of any such notice in the United States mails, postage prepaid and so addressed, shall constitute service of notice hereunder. Any telegraphic notice given under paragraph 2 hereof shall be confirmed in writing in the ordinary course of business.

14. It Is Understood And Agreed that if at any time during the term hereof the Licensee shall, in the judgment of the Licensor, suffer substantial detriment by reason of any infringement on the part of any person or persons of any of said letters patent or of any patent that may be granted upon said applications, under which this license is granted, the Licensor will afford the Licensee such reasonable protection as in the judgment of the Licensor shall be necessary or proper.

If a court of last resort upon final appeal or review shall decree all the claims of the patents granted for or upon said Roos and Bayer applications invalid or Licensee shall be permanently enjoined from manufacturing plasterboard and gypsum wallboard, the body or core of which is made according to the process set forth and claimed in said Roos and Bayer applications in such manner that they cannot practice in any way any of the inventions set forth in the said applications, and such injunction shall be made final by a court of last resort upon final appeal or review, then from the time the court of last resort upon final appeal or review shall decree that all the claims of the patents granted or issued for or upon said Roos and Bayer applications are invalid, or make such injunction permanent and final, the license fees or royalties to be paid by Licensee hereunder shall be reduced by one per cent (1%) of said selling price, or if a court of last resort upon final appeal or review shall decree that all the claims of said Haggerty and 9349 Hite patents are invalid or Licensee shall be permanently enjoined from manufacturing plasterboard and gypsum wallboard embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said Haggerty and Hite patents in such manner that they cannot practice in any way any of the inventions set forth in said patents, and such injunction shall be made final by a court of last resort upon final appeal or review, then from the time the court of last resort upon final appeal or review shall decree all claims of said Haggerty and Hite patents invalid or make said injunction permanent and final, the said license fees or royalties agreed to be paid by Licensee for said Haggerty and Hite patents shall cease and determine.

15. In case Licensor shall, subsequent to the effective date hereof, grant to any other person except Abel Davis and Eugene Holland, receivers of the Universal Gypsum & Lime Co. or their successors or to the said Universal Gypsum & Lime Co., any license under said patents or applications for letters patent set forth in said Exhibit A and paragraph 4 hereof for the manufacture, sale or use of gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard or bundles thereof, embodying the claims or inventions set forth and claimed in said patents or said applications, or shall grant any right under any such license, upon terms more favorable than those granted hereunder to this Licensee, then it will grant to this Licensee a license on the same terms or extend to it the same right granted to any such other person. This paragraph shall not apply to any license granted on or prior to the effective date hereof, nor shall the same apply to the terms of settlement of any claim of Licensor or provisions with respect to the payment thereof, contained in any such license.

9350 wallboard" and "plasterboard" shall be understood to mean all board made of gypsum, by whatever name called, having the characteristics of gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard, irrespective of the purpose for which the same may be sold or used, and shall include gypsum laths and all other gypsum boards.

17. If at any time after the expiration of two (2) years from January 1, 1930, or such earlier date that Licensee shall make its plant ready to practice the process set forth and claimed in said Roos and Bayer applications in the manufacture of gypsum wallboard or plasterboard, there shall have been invented or come into use any process which shall make the said process of forming a cellular product as set forth and claimed in said Roos and Baver applications obsolete or shall displace the same, and the Licensor shall in its own manufacture permanently and wholly abandon the use of the subject-matter of the claims of said Roos and Bayer applications, it shall notify Licensee in writing thereof, and Licensee may then, upon thirty (30) days' written notice to Licensor, cancel and terminate this license in so far as the same applies to said Roos and Bayer applications or to the patent or patents granted or issued therefor or thereupon, and from the date of such cancellation the royalties or license fees to be paid by Licensee hereunder shall be reduced by one per cent (1%) of its said selling price; Provided, However, that if Licensor shall not in such event permanently and wholly abandon the use of said process but shall only partially abandon the same, then to the extent or degree and for the term that Licensor shall abandon the same in its own manufacture Licensee shall be relieved from the payment of license fees or royalties to the same extent, that is to say, if Licensor shall in such event manufacture and sell any board the core of which is made of gypsum of 9351 a particular size, kind or make, or for a particular purpose or use, without the use of said process embodied therein, then if Licensee shall manufacture and sell the same board of the same particular size, kind or make and for the same purpose or use, without the use of said process embodied therein, then Licensee shall not be required to pay royalties or license fees upon such particular board for the term that Licensor shall manufacture and sell the same. "License fees" and "royalties" for the purpose of this paragraph shall mean one per cent (1%) of said selling price. The use by Licensor of any improvement which Licensee has the right to use as set forth in paragraph 18 hereof, or the manufacture of plasterboard or gypsum wallboard without the use of said process for sale only in foreign countries where Licensor has no patented rights in said process, shall not constitute an abandonment of said process or a partial abandonment thereof within the meaning of this paragraph.

18. If Licensor shall at any time during the existence of this agreement make or obtain any improvement for the formation of the bubble described in the process set forth in said Roos and Bayer applications and/or method of its introduction in the core of plasterboard or gypsum wallboard, and which improvement is covered by the claims of said Roos and Bayer applications, and shall itself use the same in its own manufacture, then so long as Licensee shall continue to pay the license fees or royalties herein-

before stipulated the right, license or privilege herein contained shall be extended to and include the use of said improvement in the manufacture by Licensee of gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard, subject to all of the terms and conditions herein contained, except only that Licensee shall not be required to pay any additional sum, royalty or license fee therefor. It is further under-9352 stood that if a patent or patents shall be granted or issued for or upon said improvement, then all of the provisions of this agreement, as well as the provision of paragraph 2 hereof reserving the right in Licensor to determine and fix at any time and to change from time to time the minimum price or prices at which Licensee shall sell any gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured by Licensee and embodying the claims of said patents, shall apply to the improvement set forth and claimed in any patent or patents granted or issued for or upon said improvement. Licensor will promptly notify Licensee of the general adoption by it of any such improvement in its own manufacture, together with such information as it may possess as to the use thereof in the manufacture of plasterboard and gypsum wallboard.

19. Licensee has investigated and fully satisfied itself with respect to the inventions and improvements set forth in said patents and applications for letters patent and the use thereof in its own manufacture, and has executed this agreement without relying upon any representations which may have been made by Licensor with respect thereto. No representations have been made by Licensor not expressly stated in this contract which Licensee shall at any time have any right to rely upon as an inducement for its making this contract or for any result or results to be obtained by Licensee in its own plant by its use of the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in any of said patents or applications for letters patent.

20. The Licensor agrees at any time during the term hereof to extend to Licensee, upon its written request, an indivisible and non-exclusive license or privilege to use the said process or processes set forth and claimed in said Roos or Bayer applications in the manufacture in its said plants of any other gypsum product not specifically covered by this agreement and in which Li-9353 censor shall use the same in its own manufacture and to sell the same, upon the payment to Licensor of one per cent (1%) of the selling price of Licensee of all of said other gypsum product, whether or not embodying the said process in making the same, manufactured and sold by Licensee and upon the same terms as set forth herein and subject to all of the conditions hereof, in which event in the agreement for the same there shall be substituted for the words "plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard" the name of such other product or products. An agreement containing all of said terms and conditions shall be reduced to writing and signed by both parties before the same shall become effective.

21. From the date this contract shall become effective the same shall supersede all prior license agreements at any time made between the parties hereto relating to the subject-matter hereof or relating to any of the patents or applications for letters patent referred to in this agreement; Provided, However, that Licensor shall not be barred or prevented from recovering any claim which may have accrued under any such prior license agreements prior to the time this contract shall become effective, including all payments, royalties or license fees agreed to be paid thereunder by Licensee up to the date this agreement shall go into effect.

22. This license and all of the covenants and agreements hereof shall become effective upon the date Licensor shall receive a conveyance and assignment of said Haggerty and Hite patents to it, pursuant to authority granted by the United States District Court to the receivers of the Universal Gypsum & Lime Co., a Delaware corporation, and to said company, to sell and assign said Haggerty and Hite patents to Licensor, and from the effective date thereof this license and all of the covenants and agreements hereof shall be binding upon and inure to the benefit

LICENSE AGREEMENT

This agreement made this 10th day of February, at 12:00 P. N. A. D. 1937, by and between the United States Gypsum Company, an Illinois corporation, of Chicago, Illinois, hereinafter referred to as "Licensor", and S. M. Gloyd of Oklahoma City, Oklahoma, doing business as and in the name of Texas Cement Plaster Co., hereinafter referred to as "Licensee"; witnesseth, that

Whereas, Licensor is the owner of certain letters patent and applications for letters patent of the United States covering an improved gypsum wallboard and method or process of making the same, together with machines and appliances for the manufacture of such inventions which,

with certain other patents, are more specifically set forth in Exhibit A attached hereto and made a part hereof; and

Whereas, gypsum wallboard or plasterboard manufactured by Licensee is made by the use of the machines or according to the processes or embodying the claims of some or all of said patents and applications for letters patent set forth in said Exhibit A, and Licensee desires to obtain a license from Licensor to make, use and sell the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in all of said patents and applications for letters patent set forth in said Exhibit A throughout the full term thereof; and

Whereas, Licensor has agreed to grant said license upon the terms and conditions hereinafter stated;

9362 hereto do hereby agree as follows, to-wit:

1. Licensor agrees promptly to disclose to Licensee all information and formulae which it now has or may obtain relating to the process of making a cellular product through the formation of a tenacious foam and mixing the foam with a cementitious material, as set forth and claimed in Roos Letters Patent No. 2,017,022, in so far as the same is or may be applied to gypsum, and including all information and formulae for the manufacture of gypsum plasterboard and gypsum wallboard embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said Roos patent together with a description of the machines or appliances which it now has for making the same. It will assist Licensee to make its plant ready for practicing said process in the manufacture of plasterboard and gypsum wallboard by furnishing without cost to Licensee the advice and instruction of Licensor's experts and information with respect to the purchase and cost of said machines and appliances.

2. Licensor has agreed to and does hereby give and grant unto Licensee an indivisible and non-exclusive right, license and privilege of using the process or processes and making and using the machines and/or inventions set forth and claimed in any and all of said patents and/or applications for letters patent set forth in Exhibit A attached hereto in the manufacture of gypsum plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard at the plants or factories now owned and/or operated by Licensee, or at any other plant or factory hereafter owned and/or operated or controlled by Licensee, and of manufacturing at any such place or places, selling and using in the United States of America and the territories and possessions thereof gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured at any such 9363 place or places and embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said patents and/or applications for letters patent described in said Exhibit A, for the full term of said letters patent or of any letters patent which may be granted for or upon any of said applications, including any extensions and/or reissues thereof.

It is expressly understood and agreed that the indivisible and non-exclusive right, license and privilege aforesaid is granted upon condition that Licensor shall have and it hereby reserves the right to determine and fix at any time and to change from time to time during the existence of said patents or patents which may be issued upon any of said applications and so long as said license shall continue, the minimum price or prices at which Licensee shall sell any plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured by Licensee by use of any of the machines or appliances covered by any of said letters patent or letters patent which may be issued upon any of said applications and which shall embody the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in any of said patents or letters patent which may be issued upon any of said applications, and in case Licensor shall exercise the right so reserved, it shall first serve written notice of its intention so to do upon Licensee, accompanied by a statement of the minimum price or prices at which Licensee shall sell said gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard, and thereafter shall give to Licensee written or telegraphic notice of any change in such price or prices, and Licensee expressly covenants and agrees that Licensee will not, so long as this agreement shall continue in force and effect and after receipt of such notice given in accordance with the terms and conditions hereof, directly or indirectly, sell or offer for sale any gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured by Licensee by use of any of the machines or appliances covered by any of said patents or patents which may 9364 be issued upon any of said applications and which shall embody the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in any of said patents or patents which may be issued upon any of said applications, at a price or prices less than that stated by Licensor in said notice or in any such written or telegraphic notice of a change in such price or prices.

Said minimum price shall not be more than that price at which Licensor determines to sell plasterboard or gypsum wallboard embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said patents to its own like trade in the same market.

3. Licensee agrees to pay to Licensor for said disclosures, information and assistance, the agreements of Licensor herein contained, and for the right, license and privilege of using the processes and making and using the machines and/or inventions in the manufacture of plasterboard and gypsum wallboard covered by said patents and applications for letters patent described in said Exhibit A, and for the privilege of manufacturing, using and/or selling plasterboard and gypsum wallboard embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said patents and applications for letters patent, an amount (hereinafter for convenience referred to as a license fee or royalty) equivalent to two per cent (2%) of the selling price of Licensee of all plasterboard and gypsum wallboard of every kind, whether or not made by the use of said machines and/or embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said letters patent or applications for letters patent, manufactured and sold by Licensee between the date hereof and July 8, 1941, the date of the expiration of patent number 1,500,452 mentioned in said Exhibit A, and thereafter an amount equivalent to one per cent (1%) of the selling price of Licensee of all such plasterboard and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by Licensee between July 8, 1941, 9365. and the date of the last to expire of said Roos patent number 2,017,022 and any patent or patents which may be issued upon said Roos applications mentioned in said Exhibit A. The amount of one per cent (1%) of said selling price included in said royalties or license fees is the amount agreed to be paid by Licensee for the use of said Haggerty patent.

Licensee's selling price shall mean the delivered selling price of Licensee, less freight paid by the customer and less regular cash discounts allowed by Licensee.

4. It is further agreed that so long as the license provided for in paragraph 2 hereof shall remain in force between the parties hereto, or in case the license granted under paragraph 2 hereof shall expire before the expiration of the patents specifically described in this paragraph, and the said license granted under paragraph 2 shall continue in force between the parties hereto for the full term of the last to expire of any of said patents described in said Exhibit A, or of any patent or patents granted for or upon any application described in said Exhibit A, then until the expiration of the patents specifically described in this paragraph, Licensor does hereby give and grant unto the Licensee an indivisible and non-exclusive right, license and privilege of making and using the inventions set forth and claimed in those certain patents known as the Birdsey Plasterboard Bundle Patent number 1,696,877, dated December 25, 1928, Utzman Patent number 1,724,740, dated August 13, 1929, Birdsey Patent number 1,730,113, dated October 1, 1929, and Birdsey Patent number 1,946,056, dated February 6, 1934, including any extensions and/or reissues thereof, at the plants or factories now owned or operated by Licensee or at any other plant or factory hereafter owned and/or operated and controlled by Licensee, and of selling or using 9366 bundles of plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard put up or bundled by Licensee at any such place or places according to the claims set forth and claimed in the said patents and applications for letters patent in this paragraph described, upon the terms and conditions hereinafter stated.

Licensee agrees to pay to Licensor for the right, license and privilege of making, using or selling the inventions set forth and claimed in said patents and applications in the next preceding paragraph described, in addition to the sums hereinabove set forth an amount (hereinafter referred to as a license fee or royalty) equivalent to ten cents (10¢) per one thousand (1,000) square feet of plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard which is sold by Licensee in bundles of any kind, whether or not the bundles shall be made according to the claims set forth and claimed in said patents, which said license fee or royalty shall be payable at the times and in accordance with the terms of paragraph 6 hereof. The term "bundle" shall not include unbundled material wired or strapped for purpose of transportation or unbundled material shipped for export or coastwise trade in fiber, wooden or other crates.

5. It is express understood and agreed that the license herein granted shall be personal to the Licensee, and that the same or any right therein or thereunder shall not be sold or assigned or transferred without the written consent of Licensor, or transferred by operation of law; provided, however, that the same may be assigned by Licensee to any company acquiring all of Licensee's plasterboard and wallboard assets and business, on condition that Licensee shall first obtain an agreement in writing from any such assignee agreeing to assume all of the obligations of Licensee under this agreement and to be bound by all of the terms and conditions hereof and shall deliver such agreement to Licensor. Licensee agrees not to sell, 9367 transfer or convey all of Licensee's plasterboard and/or wallboard business, or the assets used in connection therewith, without requiring the purchaser or purchasers thereof to assume, in writing, all of the obligations of Licensee hereunder, and to agree to be bound by all of the terms and conditions of this contract, and deliver such agreement to Licensor.

6. Licensee agrees to keep separate, full and accurate books of account and records showing the exact quantity of all plasterboard and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by Licensee, as well as a separate record of all plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard sold by Licensee in bundles, and agrees that on or before the twentieth day of each calendar month Licensee will render unto Licensor true written returns verified under oath by an officer or other agent of Licensee, setting forth the quantity of all plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by Licensee during the preceding calendar month and the quantity thereof put up and sold by Licensee in bundles, together with the price or prices at which the same was sold and is to be accounted for hereunder, such written returns to be delivered to Licensor at its office in Chicago, Illinois; and Licensee agrees to pay to Licensor on or before the 20th day of each calendar month at the office of Licensor at Chicago, Illinois, the hereinbefore stipulated royalties or license fees which may then be due under this agreement on account of all said plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by Licensee and put up and sold by Licensee in bundles during the next preceding calendar month.

hours, to inspect the books of account and records
9368 of Licensee referred to in the next preceding paragraph hereof, including all records of every kind showing the quantity of said plasterboard and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by Licensee and the quantity thereof put up and sold by Licensee in bundles and the price or prices at which the same was sold, and to make copies thereof and memoranda therefrom; provided, however, that if at the time of any such examination Licensee shall request it in writing, then such examination shall be made by a certified public account agreed upon between the parties hereto, in which event the expense thereof shall be borne equally by both parties. If the parties at any such time shall not agree upon the certified public accountant to make such examination, then Licensor shall name three certified public accounts of good standing not directly or indirectly employed by it or in any other way connected with it, and if Licensee shall not accept any one of them, then Licensor shall have the right to make such examination itself.

8. Licensee agrees that all plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by Licensee embodying the claims of any of said patents and/or applications for letters patent or patents which may be issued thereupon, shall be distinctly marked with the word "Patented" and/or "Patent applied for," as the case may be, together with the numbers of any of said patents or applications specified by Licensor, the claims of which may be embodied in said plasterboard or gypsum wallboard, and in connection with said marking Licensee will further mark said board with the words "Licensed under the above letters patent" and/or "Licensed under pending applications for letters patent" as the case may be, which marking shall be plainly visible. Licensee further agrees that all bundles put up and sold by Licensee embodying the claims of any 9369 of said patents numbers 1,696,877, 1,724,740, 1,730,113 and 1,946,056 shall be similarly marked together with the numbers of said bundle patents.

9. Having regard for the fact that there are or may be certain manufacturers of plaster or gypsum products, jobbers or other wholesale distributors of such products, who do not or may not manufacture gypsum wallboard or plasterboard but who desire or may desire to have gypsum wallboard or plasterboard manufactured for them, it is understood and agreed that Licensee may manufacture for jobbers (being those who do not manufacture but buy and sell plasterboard or gypsum wallboard in straight cars or in mixed cars with other building material and who do not sell at retail), at the prices so fixed by Licensor as aforesaid, gypsum wallboard or plasterboard embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said letters patent, and may, with the written consent of Licensor, manufacture for any such other manufacturer or other wholesale distributor, gypsum wallboard or plasterboard embodying the said inventions and improvements; provided, however, that the said license fee or royalty to be paid to Licensor as hereinbefore provided shall be based upon all gypsum wallboard and plasterboard manufactured for and sold and invoiced to such other manufacturer, jobber or wholesale distributor and upon the regular selling price of Licensee of such plasterboard or gypsum wallboard to its regular dealer trade at the time of such sale and invoice, and shall not be based upon the price at which plasterboard or gypsum wallboard is sold and invoiced by Licensee to such other manufacturer, jobber or wholesale distributor. Nothing hereinbefore contained in this agreement shall be construed to give Licensee the right to manufacture gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in any of said 9370 letters patent or in any letters patent after the same shall have been granted for or upon any of said applications for said other manufacturers or wholesale distributors and to sell the same, without the written consent of Licensor.

10. Licensee covenants and agrees that all of said gypsum plasterboard and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by Licensee embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in any of said letters patent or patents issued upon any of said applications and commonly known in the trade as "seconds" shall be plainly invoiced as "seconds" and shall be plainly marked with a visible red stamp or label firmly fixed on each of said boards showing the word "seconds" in letters at least three inches in height.

or upon said applications, forming the subject-matter of said license so long as said license shall remain in full force and effect, and agrees that Licensee will not at any time during the existence of said license, directly or indirectly, by himself, through or together with another or others, contest the validity of either or any of said letters patent or the title thereto of Licensor.

12. In the event that either party shall at any time neglect, fail or refuse to keep or perform any of the conditions or agreements herein to be kept by it and performed, then the other party, at its election, may serve upon the party in default written notice of intention to terminate this license, which notice shall specify the alleged neglect, failure or refusal, and if within thirty
9371 (30) days from the date of delivery of said notice the party in default shall not cure the default specified in said notice, then the other party may cancel and terminate this agreement by notifying the party in default in writing of its election so to do, without the necessity of any court action; provided, however, that neither party shall be relieved thereby from any liability accrued at the time of such termination; and provided further, that if the party upon whom said notice is served shall deny that it is in default in whole or in part, as specified therein, then the party serving such notice shall not be privileged to cancel this contract on account of the alleged default specified therein, provided the party upon whom said notice shall have been served shall within said thirty (30) day period perform the agreements and submit the question to arbitration, as in this paragraph hereinafter set forth. In case of any such denial the party upon whom the notice shall have been served shall within said thirty (30) day period state in writing to the other party wherein and in what respect it denies the default specified in said notice and shall at the same time make good any default specified therein which it does not deny and appoint in writing one person as arbiter to arbitrate the question of whether or not it is in default in respect to that which it shall have denied as aforesaid, it being understood, however, that if the question shall be with respect to the amount of royalties or license fees to be paid hereunder, then the Licensee shall first pay or offer to pay the amount of such license fees or royalties which it then admits is due and payable in accordance with the terms hereof, and the acceptance thereof by the Licensor shall not operate as a waiver of any of its rights hereunder or of any claim it may have made in any notice served by it upon Licensee. The party so serving said notice shall, after the other party shall have made good any default specified 9372 in said notice which it did not deny in writing as aforesaid, including the payment of royalties or license fees, if any, admitted by it to be due and payable hereunder, and within ten (10) days from the date of the appointment of said first arbiter in accordance with the terms hereof, appoint in writing another person as arbiter, and the two persons so appointed shall within ten (10) days or as soon as possible thereafter, appoint in writing a third person as arbiter. The three persons so appointed shall, within thirty (30) days from the date of the appointment of said last mentioned arbiter, or as soon as possible thereafter, decide whether or not the party upon whom said notice has been served is in default hereunder with respect to anything contained in said notice. The decision of a majority of the three arbiters so appointed shall constitute a final settlement of the said question and be binding and conclusive upon both the Licensor and the Licensee, and if it shall have been determined by a majority of the said arbiters that the party upon whom said notice was served is in default with respect to anything contained in said notice and the party so found to have been in default shall fail or refuse to comply with the terms of the award or finding made by said arbiters within thirty (30) days from the date such award or finding shall have been made, the party serving said notice may at its election terminate and cancel this agreement in writing. In the event of default hereunder by either party and notice of such default is served by the other party as herein provided, and after service of such notice the party in default shall cure the same as hereinbefore provided the same shall constitute a nullification of said notice to the same effect as if said notice had not been served.

In case at any time the Licensee shall be adjudged 9373 a bankrupt, then the license hereunder shall immediately be and become canceled and terminated, but the Licensor shall not thereby be prevented from collecting all license fees or royalties accrued hereunder at the time of such termination. The waiver of any breach by either party shall not be interpreted as constituting a waiver of any further breach or breaches. Either party may proceed by action to specifically enforce this contract or any of the terms, conditions and covenants thereof by injunction or in such other manner as may be provided by law.

13. Any notice to be given under the terms hereof may be served by the Licensor or the Licensee by mailing the same to the other party hereto, postage prepaid and registered, addressed to any of its officers at its last known principal office, and the deposit of any such notice in the United States mails, postage prepaid and so addressed, shall constitute service of notice hereunder. Any telegraphic notice given under paragraph 2 hereof shall be confirmed in writing in the ordinary course of business.

14. It is understood and agreed that if at any time during the term hereof the Licensee shall, in the judgment of the Licensor, suffer substantial detriment by reason of any infringement on the part of any person or persons of any of said letters patent or of any patent that may be granted upon said applications, under which this license is granted, the Licensor will afford the Licensee such reasonable protection as in the judgment of the Licensor shall be necessary or proper.

If a court of last resort upon final appeal or review shall decree invalid all the claims of said Roos patent No. 2,017,022 and patents issued upon said Roos applications, or Licensee shall be permanently enjoined from 9374 manufacturing plasterboard and gypsum wallboard, the body or core of which is made according to the process set forth and claimed in said Roos patents in such manner that they cannot practice in any way any of the inventions set forth in the said Roos patents, and such injunction shall be made final by a court of last resort upon final appeal or review, then from the time the court of last resort upon final appeal or review shall decree that all the claims of said Roos patents are invalid, or make such injunction permanent and final, the license fees or royalties to be paid by Licensee hereunder shall be reduced by one per cent (1%) of said selling price, or if a court of last resort upon final appeal or review shall decree that all the claims of said Haggerty patent are invalid or Licensee shall be permanently enjoined from manufacturing plasterboard and gypsum wallboard embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said Haggerty patent in such manner that they cannot practice in any way any of the inventions set forth in said patents, and such injunction shall be made final by a court of last resort upon final appeal or review, then from the time the court of last resort upon final appeal or review shall decree all claims of said Haggerty patent invalid or make said injunction permanent and final, the said license fees or royalties agreed to be paid by Licensee for said Haggerty patent shall cease and determine. If, in accordance with the provisions of this paragraph, the royalties for said Roos patents and said Haggerty patent shall be reduced so that no further license fees or royalties are payable under paragraph 3 hereof, then this license agreement shall thereupon become canceled and terminated.

15. In case Licensor shall, subsequent to the date hereof, grant to any other person any license under said patents or applications for letters patent set forth in 9375 said Exhibit A and paragraph 4 hereof for the manufacture, sale or use of gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard or bundles thereof, embodying the claims or inventions set forth and claimed in said patents or said applications, or shall grant any right under any such license, upon terms more favorable than those granted hereunder to this Licensee, then it will grant to this Licensee a license on the same terms or extend to it the same right granted to any such other person. This paragraph shall not apply to any license granted on or prior to the effective date hereof, nor shall the same apply to the terms of settlement of any claim of Licensor or provisions with respect to the payment thereof, contained in any such license.

16. The terms "gypsum plasterboard," "gypsum wallboard" and "plasterboard" shall be understood to mean all board made of gypsum, by whatever name called, having the characteristics of gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard, irrespective of the purpose for which the same may be sold or used, and shall include gypsum laths and all other gypsum boards.

17. If Licensor shall at any time during the existence of this agreement make or obtain any improvement for the formation of the bubble described in the process set forth in said Roos Patent No. 2,017,022 or method of its introduction in the core of plasterboard or gypsum wallboard, and which improvement is covered by the claims of said Roos patent, and shall itself use the same in its own manufacture, then so long as Licensee shall continue to pay the license fees or royalties hereinbefore stipulated the right, license or privilege herein contained shall be extended to and include the use of said improvement in the manufacture by Licensee of gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard, subject to all of the terms and conditions 9376 herein contained, except only that Licensee shall not be required to pay any additional sum, royalty or license fee therefor. It is further understood that if a patent or patents shall be granted or issued for or upon said improvement, then all of the provisions of this agreement, as well as the provision of paragraph 2 hereof reserving the right in Licensor to determine and fix at any time and to change from time to time the minimum price or prices at which Licensee shall sell any gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured by Licensee and embodying the claims of said patents, shall apply to the improvement set forth and claimed in any patent or patents granted or issued for or upon said improvement. Licensor will promptly notify Licensee of the general adoption by it of any such improvement in its own manufacture, together with such information as it may possess as to the use thereof in the manufacture of plasterboard and gypsum wallboard.

18. Licensee has investigated and fully satisfied himself with respect to the inventions and improvements set forth in said patents and applications for letters patent and the use thereof in his own manufacture, and has executed this agreement without relying upon any representations which may have been made by Licensor with respect thereto. No representations have been made by Licensor not expressly stated in this contract which Licensee shall at any time have any right to rely upon as an inducement for his making this contract or for any result or results to be obtained by Licensee in his own plant by his use of the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in any of said patents or applications for letters patent.

9377 19. The Licensor agrees at any time during the term hereof to extend to Licensee, upon his written request, an indivisible and non-exclusive license or privilege to use the said process or processes set forth and claimed in said Roos Patent No. 2,017,022 in the manufacture in his said plants of any other gypsum product not specifically covered by this agreement and in which Licensor shall use the same in its own manufacture and to sell the same, upon the payment to Licensor of one per cent (1%) of the selling price of Licensee of all of said other gypsum product, whether or not embodying the said process in making the same, manufactured and sold by Licensee and upon the same terms as set forth herein and subject to all of the conditions hereof, in which event in the agreement for the same there shall be substituted for the words "plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard" the name of such other product or products. An agreement containing all of said terms and conditions shall be reduced to writing and signed by both parties before the same shall become effective.

20. From the date this contract shall become effective the same shall supersede all prior license agreements at any time made between the parties hereto relating to the subject matter hereof or relating to any of the patents or applications for letters patent referred to in this agreement.

21. This license and all of the covenants and agreements hereof shall be binding upon and inure to the benefit of the successors and assigns of the Licensor, and the heirs, administrators, executors and assigns of the Licensee, but nothing in this paragraph shall be con-
9378 strued to permit an assignment hereof by Licensee, except as hereinabove specifically provided.

In witness whereof the Licensor has caused these presents to be signed by its president, attested by its secretary, and its corporate seal hereunto affixed, and the Licensee has signed and sealed these presents, all the day and year first above written.

LICENSE AGREEMENT

This agreement, executed in duplicate this 17th day of October, 1929, by and between the United States Gypsum Company, an Illinois corporation, of Chicago, Illinois, hereinafter referred to as Licensor, and National Gypsum Company, a Delaware corporation having its principal office at Buffalo, New York, hereinafter referred to as Licensee, witnesseth:

Whereas, Licensor is the owner of certain letters patent and applications for letters patent of the United States covering an improved gypsum wallboard and method or process of making the same, together with machines and appliances for the manufacture of such inventions, which with certain other patents are more specifically set forth in Exhibit A attached hereto and made a part hereof; and

Whereas, Licensor was the owner of all of the right, title and interest in and under Letters Patent of the United States, number 1,029,328 and number 1,034,746, known as the Utzman patents, the last of which expired August 6, 1929, which said Utzman Patents were adjudicated by the United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division, and by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit, and were decreed by said courts as valid and having been infringed by the defendants named in said suits; and

Whereas, the Birdsey Patent number 1,358,508, mentioned in said Exhibit A, was adjudicated by the United States District Court for the Northern District of Ohio, and said court decreed that said Birdsey Patent was 9385 valid and infringed by the defendant in said cause by reason of its having made, used and sold plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard with edges of the character disclosed in said patent, and said District Court ordered a perpetual injunction and accounting against defendant, which cause is now pending on appeal before the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit; and

Whereas, Licensor has a substantial claim against Licensee for damages and profits because and on account of an alleged infringement of said patents, and Licensor agreed to grant a license to Licensee under said patents

(not including the Roos or Bayer applications and the Haggerty or Hite patents referred to in said Exhibit A) to February 10, 1937, and to settle the said claim in consideration of the payment by the Licensee to Licensor of five per cent (5%) of Licensee's selling price of all plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it until August 6, 1929, and one and one-half per cent (1½%) of such selling price from August 6, 1929, to February 10, 1937, plus three and one-half per cent (3½%) of such selling price from August 6, 1929, until said three and one-half per cent (3½%) of such selling price aggregated the fixed sum of One Hundred Seventy Eight Thousand Two Hundred Thirteen Dollars and Six Cents ($178,213.06); and

Whereas, Licensor is the owner of that certain application for United States letters patent filed by Carlisle K. Roos, entitled "Cementitious Material," now pending in the United States Patent Office and covering the process of making a cellular product, which comprises forming a tenacious foam and mixing the foam with a cementitious material, and of certain other applications filed by said Roos covering specific employment of said invention, 9386 and Licensor has heretofore acquired the able and exclusive rights in the United States of America (when gypsum is used as the main binding material) in that certain application for United States letters patent described in said Exhibit A filed by Erik Christian Bayer, entitled "Methods of Manufacturing Porous Builing Materials," and relating to a process broadly similar to that of said first mentioned Roos application, which said Roos and Bayer applications are described and set forth in said Exhibit A; and

Whereas, Licensor has agreed to purchase that certain Haggerty patent number 1,500,452 dated July 8, 1924, and that certain Hite Patent number 1,230,297 dated June 19, 1917, subject to approval of the United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division thereof, and other United States District Courts in receivership proceedings therein pending against the present owner of said patents, both of which said patents are set forth in said Exhibit A; and

Whereas, Licensee desires to include in its manufacture the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in the said Roos and Bayer applications and said Haggerty and Hite patents referred to in said Exhibit A, and to obtain a license from Licensor to make, use and sell the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in all of said patents and applications for letters patent described in said Exhibit A throughout the full term thereof, and Licensor has agreed to grant such a license to Licensee upon the terms and conditions hereinafter stated;

Now, therefore, in consideration of the sum of One Dollar and other good and valuable considerations, the receipt whereof is hereby acknowledged from each party to the other party, and in consideration of the mutual covenants and agreements hereinafter contained, the parties hereto do hereby agree as follows, to-wit:

1. Licensor agrees promptly to disclose to Licensee all information and formulae which it now has or may obtain relating to the process of making a cellular product through the formation of a tenacious foam and mixing the 9387 foam with a cementitious material, as set forth and claimed in said applications for letters patent filed by Carlisle K. Roos and Erik Christian Bayer, in so far as the same is or may be applied to gypsum, and including all information and formulae for the manufacture of gypsum plasterboard and gypsum wallboard embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said Roos and Bayer applications, together with a description of the machines or appliances which it now has for making the same. It will assist Licensee to make its plant ready for practicing said process in the manufacture of plasterboard and gypsum wallboard by furnishing without cost to Licensee the advice and instruction of Licensor's experts and information with respect to the purchase and cost of said machines and appliances.

2. Licensor has agreed to and does hereby give and grant unto Licensee an indivisible and non-exclusive right, license and privilege of using the process or processes and making and using the machines and/or inventions set forth and claimed in any and all of said patents and/or applications for letters patent set forth in Exhibit A attached hereto in the manufacture of gypsum plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard at the plants or factories now owned and/or operated by Licensee, or at any other plant or factory hereafter owned and/or operated or controlled by it or any subsidiary, associated or affiliated company, and of manufacturing at any such place or places, selling and using in the United States of America and the territories and possessions thereof gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured at any such place or places and embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said patents and/or applications for let-9388. ters patent described in said Exhibit A, for the full term of said letters patent or of any letters patent which may be granted for or upon any of said applications, including any extensions and/or reissues thereof.

It is expressly understood and agreed that the indivisible and non-exclusive right, license and privilege aforesaid is granted upon condition that the Licensor shall have and it hereby reserves the right to determine and fix at any time and to change from time to time during the existence of said patents and so long as said license shall continue, the minimum price or prices at which Licensee shall sell any plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured by Licensee by use of any of the machines or appliances covered by any of said letters patent and which shall embody the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in any of said patents which are presently issued, or any of said plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured by second parties and which shall embody the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in either patent number 1,500,452 or patent number 1,230-297, or commencing with the date when a patent shall have been granted or issued for or upon any of the said Roos or Bayer inventions and/or applications any of said plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured by Licensee, the body or core of which is made according to the process set forth and claimed in any patent granted for or upon any of said Roos or Bayer inventions and/or applications, and in case Licensor shall exercise the right so reserved, it shall first serve written notice of its intention so to do upon Licensee, accompanied with a statement of the minimum price or prices at which Licensee shall sell said gypsum plasterboard or 9389 gypsum wallboard, and thereafter shall give to Licensee written or telegraphic notice of any change in such price or prices, and Licensee expressly covenants and agrees that it will not, so long as this agreement shall continue in force and effect and after receipt of such notice given in accordance with the terms and conditions hereof, directly or indirectly, sell or offer for sale any gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured by it by use of any of the machines or appliances covered by any of said patents and which during the existence thereof shall embody the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in any of said patents which are presently issued, or any gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured by second parties and which during the existence thereof shall embody the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in either patent number 1,500,452 or patent number 1,230,297, or any gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured by Licensee after a patent shall have issued upon any of the said Roos or Bayer inventions and/or applications and during the existence thereof, the body or core of which is made according to the process set forth and claimed in any patent granted for or upon any of said inventions and/or applications, at a price or prices less than that stated by Licensor in said notice or in any such written or telegraphic notice of a change in such price or prices.

Said minimum price shall not be more than that price at which Licensor determines to sell plasterboard or gypsum wallboard embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said patents to its own like trade in the same market.

9390 3. Licensee agrees to pay to Licensor in settlement and discharge of said claim and for said disclosures, information and assistance and the agreements of Licensor herein contained, and for the right, license and privilege of using the processes and making and using the machines and/or inventions in the manufacture of plasterboard and gypsum wallboard covered by said patents and applications for letters patent described in said Exhibit A, and for the privilege of manufacturing, using and/or selling plasterboard and gypsum wallboard embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said patents and applications for letters patent, an amount (hereinafter for convenience referred to as a license fee or royalty) equivalent to three and one-half per cent (3½%) of the selling price of Licensee of all plasterboard and gypsum wallboard of every kind, whether or not made by the use of said machines and/or embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said letters patent or applications for letters patent, manufactured and sold by Licensee between the date hereof and February 10, 1937, the date of the expiration of patent number 1,330,413 mentioned in said Exhibit A, and thereafter an amount equivalent to two per cent (2%) of the selling price of Licensee of all such plasterboard and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it between February 10, 1937, and July 8, 1941, the date of the expiration of said patent number 1,500,452, and thereafter an amount equivalent to one per cent (1%) of the selling price of Licensee of all such plasterboard and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it between July 8, 1941, and the date of the expiration of the last to expire of any patent granted or issued for or upon any of the said Roos or Bayer applications; Provided, However, that if no patent shall

Licensee's selling price shall mean the delivered selling price of Licensee, less freight paid by the customer and less regular cash discounts allowed by Licensee.

In addition to the amounts hereinabove agreed to be paid by Licensee, Licensee, in further consideration

9392 of said license and in settlement of said claim, shall pay to Licensor an amount hereinafter referred to as a license fee or royalty equivalent to one and one-half per cent (1½%) of the selling price of Licensee of all such plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it after the date hereof, and until said one and one-half per cent (1½%) of said selling price shall have aggregated the sum of $173,644.95, being the full amount of said fixed sum which is unpaid up to date hereof. It is understood and agreed that if prior to the expiration of said license granted in paragraph 2 hereof Licensee shall not have paid to Licensor said additional sum of $173,644.95, over and above said other license fees or royalties, then Licensee shall from the date of the expiration of said license pay to Licensor five per cent (5%) of the selling price of Licensee of all plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it until said sum of $173,644.95 shall have been fully paid and satisfied.

It is expressly understood and agreed that this contract is executed without prejudice to Licensor to assert its said claim against Licensee for infringement of its said patents in case for any reason this contract shall not remain in force until February 10, 1937, and Licensee shall not pay to Licensor all of said royalties or license fees agreed to be paid by it up to said last mentioned date, and in addition thereto said one and one-half per cent (1½%) of said selling price until said fixed sum shall have been fully paid in accordance with the terms hereof, and it is further agreed that the claim of Licensor against Licensee for said infringement is not settled or discharged by the execution of this instrument but shall only be settled and discharged by the full performance of this contract by Licensee up to February 10, 1937, and the payment to Licensor of all of said royalties or license fees up 9393 to said last mentioned date, including said one and one-half per cent (1½%) of said selling price until said fixed sum shall have been fully paid. In case of the termination of this contract at any time prior to February 10, 1937, for any reason, or in the event of the failure of Licensee to make full payment to Licensor of all of said royalties or license fees up to said last mentioned date, including said one and one-half per cent (1½%) of said selling price until said fixed sum is fully paid in the manner herein specified, Licensor shall have the same right which it originally had against Licensee before the execution of this agreement or the execution of any license agreement between Licensee and Licensor with respect to any of said patents, to recover of and from Licensee the full amount of its said claim for damages for infringement of its said patents, and nothing herein contained shall prevent the recovery by Licensor of all of its damages for such infringement against Licensee according to the full measure of damages allowed in such cases the same as if this contract or any other license contract made between Licensor and Licensee had never been made, less only such sums as shall have been paid by Licensee to Licensor since the date, hereof, on account of said additional one and one-half per cent (1½%) of said selling price in reduction of said fixed sum of $173,644.95, in either of which events Licensee shall pay to Licensor the balance of said fixed sum then remaining unpaid in part payment of its said claim for damages, it being understood that in no event shall the recovery from Licensee in such case be less than the amount of said fixed sum then remaining unpaid. Upon the payment to Licensor of all of said royalties or license fees up to February 10, 19^7, plus said additional sum of $173,644.95 at the time 9394 and in the manner herein specified, then the said claim of Licensor against Licensee for infringement of its said patents shall thereupon be and become fully settled, discharged and satisfied.

4. It is further agreed that so long as the license provided for in paragraph 2 hereof shall remain in force between the parties hereto, or in case the license granted under paragraph 2 hereof shall expire before the expiration of the patents specifically described in this paragraph, and the said license granted under paragraph 2 shall continue in force between the parties hereto for the full term of the last to expire of any of said patents described in said Exhibit A, or of any patent or patents granted for or upon any applications described in said Exhibit A, then until the expiration of the patents specifically described in this paragraph, Licensor does hereby give and grant unto the Licensee an indivisible and non-exclusive right, license and privilege of making and using the inventions set forth and claimed in those certain patents known as the Birdsey Plasterboard Bundle Patent number 1,696,877, dated December 25, 1928, Utzman Patent number 1,724,740 dated August 13, 1929, Birdsey Patent number 1,730,113 dated October 1, 1929, and applications for letters patent serial numbers 329,581 filed December 31, 1928, and 296,354 filed July 30, 1928, and any patent which may be granted for or upon said applications, including any extensions and/or reissues thereof, at the plants or factories now owned or operated by Licensee or at any other plant or factory hereafter owned and/or operated and controlled by Licensee or any subsidiary, associated or affiliated company of Licensee, and of selling or using bundles of plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard put up or bundled by Licensee at any such place or places according to the claims set forth and claimed in the said patents and applications for letters patent in this paragraph described, upon the terms and conditions hereinafter stated.

Licensee agrees to pay to Licensor for the right, license and privilege of making, using or selling the inventions set forth and claimed in said patents and applications 9395 in the next preceding paragraph described, in addition to the sums hereinabove set forth, an amount (hereinafter referred to as a license fee or royalty) equivalent to ten cents (10¢) per one thousand (1,000) square feet of plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard which is sold by Licensee in bundles of any kind, whether or not the bundles shall be made according to the claims set forth and claimed in said patents, which said license fee or royalty shall be payable at the times and in accordance with the terms of paragraph 6 hereof. The term "bundle" shall not include unbundled material wired or strapped for purpose of transportation or unbundled material shipped for export or coastwise trade in fiber, wooden or other crates.

5. It is expressly understood and agreed that the license herein granted shall be personal to the Licensee, and that the same or any right herein or thereunder shall not be sold or assigned or transferred without the written consent of Licensor, or transferred by operation of law: Provided, However, that the same may be assigned by Licensee to any company acquiring all the assets and business or all of the capital stock of Licensee, on condition that Licensee shall first obtain an agreement in writing from any such assignee agreeing to assume all of the obligations of Licensee under this agreement and to be bound by all of the terms and conditions hereof and shall deliver such agreement to Licensor. Licensee agrees not to sell all of its assets and business or all of its capital stock or to transfer and convey its plasterboard and/or wallboard business, or its assets used in connection therewith, without requiring the purchaser or purchasers thereof to assume, in writing, all of the obligations of Licensee hereunder, including the asumption of the claim which Licensor has against Licensee for damages for infringement of its said patents and the agreements in settlement and discharge thereof, as in this contract contained, and to agree to be bound by all of the terms and conditions of this 9396 contract, and deliver such agreement to Licensor.

It is expressly understood that Licensee shall not discontinue its business of manufacturing and selling plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard until Licensor shall have received the full amount of said license fees or royalties agreed to be paid by Licensee hereunder for the use of all of said patents until February 10, 1937, plus the full payment of said fixed sum of $173,644.95 in the manner and upon the payments as hereinabove set forth.

6. Licensee agrees to keep separate, full and accurate books of account and records showing the exact quantity of all plasterboard and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it, as well as a separate record of all plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard sold by it in bundles, and agrees that on or before the twentieth day of each calendar month it will render unto Licensor true written returns verified under oath by an officer or other agent of Licensee, setting forth the quantity of all plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it during the preceding calendar month and the quantity thereof put up and sold by it in bundles, together with the price or prices at which the same was sold and is to be accounted for hereunder, such written returns to be delivered to Licensor at its office in Chicago, Illinois, and Licensee agrees to pay to Licensor on or before the 20th day of each calendar month at the office of Licensor at Chicago, Illinois, the hereinbefore stipulated royalties or license fees which may then be due under this agreement on account of all said plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it and put up and sold by it in bundles during the next preceding calendar month.

7. Licensor, or its duly authorized representative,
9397 shall have the right at all reasonable times during business hours to inspect the books of account and records of Licensee referred to in the next preceding paragraph hereof, including all records of every kind showing the quantity of said plasterboard and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it and the quantity thereof put up and sold by it in bundles and the price or prices at which the same was sold, and to make copies thereof and memoranda therefrom; Provided, However, that if at the time of any such examination Licensee shall request it in writing, then such examination shall be made by a certified public accountant agreed upon between the parties hereto, in which event the expense thereof shall be borne equally by both parties. If the parties at any such time shall not agree upon the certified public accountant to make such examination, then Licensor shall name three certified public accountants of good standing not directly or indirectly employed by it or in any other way connected with it, and if Licensee shall not accept any one of them, then Licensor shall have the right to make such examination itself.

8. Licensee agrees that all plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it embodying the claims of any of said patents and/or applications for letters patent shall be distinctly marked with the words "Patented" and/or "Patent applied for," as the case may be, together with the numbers of any of said patents or applications specified by Licensor, the claims of which may be embodied in said plasterboard or gypsum wallboard, and in connection with said marking Licensee will further mark said board with the words "Licensed under the above letters patent" and/or "Licensed under pending applications for letters patent," as the case may be, which marking shall be plainly visible. Licensee further agrees that all bundles put up and sold by it embodying the 9398 claims of any of said patents numbers 1,696,877, 1,724,740 and 1,730,113 and/or any of said applications serial numbers 329,581 and 296,354 shall be similarly marked together with the numbers of said bundle patents and/or applications.

9. Having regard for the fact that there are or may be certain manufacturers of plaster or gypsum products, jobbers or other wholesale distributors of such products,

who do not or may not manufacture gypsum wallboard or plasterboard but who desire or may desire to have gypsum wallboard or plasterboard manufactured for them, it is understood and agreed that Licensee may manufacture for jobbers (being those who do not manufacture but buy and sell plasterboard or gypsum wallboard in straight cars or in mixed cars with other building material and who do not sell at retail) gypsum wallboard or plasterboard embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said letters patent or in any letters patent after the same shall have been issued, granted for or upon any of the said applications and may with the written consent of first party manufacture for any such other manufacturer or other wholesale distributor, gypsum wallboard or plasterboard embodying the said inventions and improvements; Provided, However, that the said license fee or royalty to be paid to Licensor as hereinbefore provided shall be based upon all gypsum wallboard and plasterboard manufactured for and sold and invoiced to such other manufacturer, jobber or wholesale distributor and upon the regular selling price of Licensee of such plasterboard or gypsum wallboard to its regular dealer trade at the time of such sale and invoice, and shall not be based upon the price at which plasterboard or gypsum wallboard is sold and invoiced by Licensee to such other manufacturer, jobber or wholesale distributor Nothing hereinbefore contained in this agreement shall be construed to give Licensee the right to manufacture gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and 9399 claimed in any of said letters patent or in any letters patent after the same shall have been granted for or upon any of said applications for said other manufacturers or wholesale distributors and to sell the same, without the written consent of Licensor.

10. Licensee covenants and agrees that all of said gypsum plasterboard and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in any of said letters patent or patents issued upon any of said applications and commonly known in the trade as "seconds" shall be plainly invoiced as "Seconds" and shall be plainly marked with a visible red stamp or label firmly fixed on each of said boards showing the word "Seconds" in letters at least three inches in height.

9400 gerty patent, or the earlier termination of the license by reason of the default of the Licensor hereunder, directly or indirectly, by itself, through or together with another or others, contest the validity of said Haggerty patent or the title thereto of Licensor, or question in any way the prima facie scope of any of the claims of said Haggerty patent.

12. In the event that either party shall at any time neglect, fail or refuse to keep or perform any of the conditions or agreements herein to be kept by it and performed, then the other party, at its election, may serve upon the party in default written notice of intention to terminate this license, which notice shall specify the alleged neglect, failure or refusal, and if within thirty (30) days from the date of delivery of said notice the party in default shall not cure the default specified in said notice, then the other party may cancel and terminate this agreement by notifying the party in default in writing of its election so to do, without the necessity of any court action; Provided, However, that neither party shall be relieved thereby from any liability accrued at the time of such termination; and Provided Further, that if the party upon whom said notice is served shall deny that it is in default in whole or in part, as specified therein, then the party serving such notice shall not be privileged to cancel this contract on account of the alleged default specified therein, provided the party upon whom said notice shall have been served shall within said thirty (30) day period perform the agreements and submit the question to arbitration, as in this paragraph hereinafter set forth. In case of any such denial the party upon whom the notice shall have been served shall within said thirty (30) day period state in writing to the other party wherein and in what respect it denies the default specified in said notice and shall at the same time make 9401 good any default specified therein which it does not deny and appoint in writing one person as arbiter to arbitrate the question of whether or not it is in default in respect to that which it shall have denied as aforesaid, it being understood, however, that if the question shall be with respect to the amount of royalties or license fees to be paid hereunder, then the Licensee shall first pay or offer to pay the amount of such license fees or royalties which it then admits is due and payable in accordance with the terms hereof, and the acceptance thereof by the Licensor shall not operate as a waiver of any of its rights hereunder or of any claim it may have made in any notice served by it upon Licensee. The party so serving said notice shall, after the other party shall have made good any default specified in said notice which it did not deny in writing as aforesaid, including the payment of royalties or license fees, if any, admitted by it to be due and payable hereunder, and within ten (10) days from the date of the appointment of said first arbiter in accordance with the terms hereof, appoint in writing another person as arbiter, and the two persons so appointed shall within ten (10) days or as soon as possible thereafter appoint in writing a third person as arbiter. The three persons so appointed shall, within thirty (30) days from the date of the appointment of said last mentioned arbiter, or as soon as possible thereafter, decide whether or not the party upon whom said notice has been served is in default hereunder with respect to anything contained in said notice. The decision of a majority of the three arbiters so appointed shall constitute a final settlement of the said question and be binding and conclusive upon both the Licensor and the Licensee, and if it shall have been determined by a majority of the said arbiters that the party upon whom said notice was served is in default with respect to anything contained in said notice and the party so found to have been in de-

9402 fault shall fail or refuse to comply with the terms of the award or finding made by said arbiters within thirty (30) days from the date such award or finding shall have been made, the party serving said notice may at its election terminate and cancel this agreement in writing. In the event of default hereunder by either party and notice of such default is served by the other party as herein provided, and after service of such notice the party in default shall cure the same as hereinbefore provided the same shall constitute a nullification of said notice to the same effect as if said notice had not been served. In case at any time the Licensee shall be adjudged a bankrupt, then the license hereunder shall immediately be and become canceled and terminated, but the Licensor shall not thereby be prevented from collecting all license fees or royalties accrued hereunder at the time of such termination. The waiver of any breach by either party shall not be interpreted as constituting a waiver of any further breach or breaches. Either party may proceed by action to specifically enforce this contract or any of the terms, conditions and covenants thereof by injunction or in such other manner as may be provided by law.

13. Any notice to be given under the terms hereof may be served by the Licensor or the Licensee by mailing the same to the other party hereto, postage prepaid and registered, addressed to any of its officers at its last known principal office, and the deposit of any such notice in the United States mails, postage prepaid and so addressed, shall constitute service of notice hereunder. Any telegraphic notice given under paragraph 2 hereof shall be confirmed in writing in the ordinary course of business.

14. It is understood and agreed that if at any time during the term hereof the Licensee shall, in the judgment of the Licensor, suffer substantial detriment by 9403 reason of any infringement on the part of any person or persons of any of said letters patent or of any patent that may be granted upon said applications, under which this license is granted, the Licensor will afford the Licensee such reasonable protection as in the judgment of the Licensor shall be necessary or proper. If a court of last resort upon final appeal or review shall decree all the claims of the patents granted for or upon said Roos and Bayer applications invalid or Licensee shall be permanently enjoined from manufacturing plasterboard and gypsum wallboard, the body or core of which is made according to the process set forth and claimed in said Roos and Bayer applications in such manner that they cannot practice in any way any of the inventions set forth in the said applications, and such injunction shall be made final by a court of last resort upon final appeal or review, then from the time the court of last resort upon final appeal or review shall decree that all the claims of the patents granted or issued for or upon said Roos and Bayer applications are invalid or make such injunction permanent and final, the license fees or royalties to be paid by Licensee hereunder shall be reduced by one per cent (1%) of said selling price, or if a court of last resort upon final appeal or review shall decree that all the claims of said Haggerty and Hite patents are invalid or Licensee shall be permanently enjoined from manufacturing plasterboard and gypsum wallboard embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said Haggerty and Hite patents in such manner that they cannot practice in any way any of the inventions set forth in said patents, and such injunction shall be made final by a court of last resort upon final appeal or review, then from the time the court of last resort upon final appeal or review shall decree all claims of said Haggerty and Hite patents invalid or make said injunction permanent and final, the said license fees or royalties agreed to be paid by Licensee for said 9404 Haggerty and Hite patents shall cease and determine.

15. In case Licensor shall, subsequent to the effective date hereof, grant to any other person except Abel Davis and Eugene Holland, receivers of the Universal Gypsum & Lime Co. or their successors or to the said Universal Gypsum & Lime Co., any license under said patents or applications for letters patent set forth in said Exhibit A and paragraph 4 hereof for the manufacture, sale or use of gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard or bundles thereof, embodying the claims or inventions set forth and claimed in said patents or said applications, or shall grant any right under any such license, upon terms more favorable than those granted hereunder to this Licensee, then it will grant to this Licensee a license on the same terms or extend to it the same right granted to any such other person. This paragraph shall not apply to any license granted on or prior to the effective date hereof, nor shall the same apply to the terms of settlement of any claim of Licensor or provisions with respect to the payment thereof, contained in any such license.

16. The terms "gypsum plasterboard," "gypsum wallboard" and "plasterboard" shall be understood to mean all board made of gypsum, by whatever name called, having the characteristics of gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard, irrespective of the purpose for which the same may be sold or used, and shall include gypsum laths and all other gypsum boards.

17. If at any time after the expiration of two (2) years from January 1, 1930, or such earlier date that Licensee shall make its plant ready to practice the process set forth and claimed in said Roos and Bayer applications in the manufacture of gypsum wallboard or plasterboard, there shall have been invented or come into use any process which shall make the said process of forming a 9405 cellular product as set forth and claimed in said Roos and Bayer applications obsolete or shall displace the same, and the Licensor shall in its own manufacture permanently and wholly abandon the use of the subject-matter of the claims of said Roos and Bayer applications, it shall notify Licensee in writing thereof, and Licensee may then, upon thirty (30) days' written notice to Licensor, cancel and terminate this license in so far as the same applies to said Roos and Bayer applications or to the patent or patents granted or issued therefor or thereupon, and from the date of such cancellation the royalties or license fees to be paid by Licensee hereunder shall be reduced by one per cent (1%) of its said selling price; Provided, However, that if Licensor shall not in such event permanently and wholly abandon the use of said process but shall only partially abandon the same, then to the extent or degree and for the term that Licensor shall abandon the same in its own manufacture Licensee shall be relieved from the payment of license fees or royalties to the same extent, that is to say, if Licensor shall in such event manufacture and sell any board the core of which is made of gypsum of a particular size, kind or make, or for a particular purpose or use, without the use of said process embodied therein, then if Licensee shall manufacture and sell the same board of the same particular size, kind or make and for the same purpose or use, without the use of said process embodied therein, then Licensee shall not be required to pay royalties or license fees upon such particular board for the term that Licensor shall manufacture and sell the same. "License fees" and "royalties" for the purpose of this paragraph shall mean one per cent (1%) of said selling price. The use by Licensor of any improvement which Licensee has the right to use as set forth in paragraph 18 hereof, or the manufacture of plasterboard or gypsum wallboard without the use of said process for sale only in foreign countries 9406 where Licensor has no patented rights in said process, shall not constitute an abandonment of said process or a partial abandonment thereof within the meaning of this paragraph.

18. If Licensor shall at any time during the existence of this agreement make or obtain any improvement for the formation of the bubble described in the process set forth in said Roos and Bayer applications and/or method of its introduction in the core of plasterboard or gypsum wallboard, and which improvement is covered by the claims of said Roos and Bayer applications, and shall itself use the same in its own manufacture, then so long as Licensee shall continue to pay the license fees or royalties hereinbefore stipulated the right, license or privilege herein contained shall be extended to and include the use of said improvement in the manufacture by Licensee of gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard, subject to all of the terms and conditions herein contained, except only that Licensee shall not be required to pay any additional sum, royalty or license fee therefor. It is further understood that if a patent or patents shall be granted or issued for or upon said improvement, then all of the provisions of this agreement, as well as the provision of paragraph 2 hereof reserving the right in Licensor to determine and fix at any time and to change from time to time the minimum price or prices at which Licensee shall sell any gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured by Licensee and embodying the claims of said patents, shall apply to the improvement set forth and claimed in any patent or patents granted or issued for or upon said improvement. Licensor will promptly notify Licensee of the general adoption by it of any such improvement in its own manufacture, together with such information as it may possess as to the use thereof in the manufacture of plasterboard and gypsum wallboard.

9407 19. Licensee has investigated and fully satisfied itself with respect to the inventions and improvements set forth in said patents and applications for letters patent and the use thereof in its own manufacture, and has executed this agreement without relying upon any representations which may have been made by Licensor with respect thereto. No representations have been made by Licensor not expressly stated in this contract which Licensee shall at any time have any right to rely upon as an inducement for its making this contract or for any result or results to be obtained by Licensee in its own plant by its use of the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in any of said patents or applications for letters patent.

20. The Licensor agrees at any time during the term hereof to extend to Licensee, upon its written request, an indivisible and non-exclusive license or privilege to use the said process or processes set forth and claimed in said Roos or Bayer applications in the manufacture in its said plants of any other gypsum product not specifically covered by this agreement and in which Licensor shall use the same in its own manufacture and to sell the same, upon the payment to Licensor of one per cent (1%) of the selling price of Licensee of all of said other gypsum product, whether or not embodying the said process in making the same, manufactured and sold by Licensee and upon the same terms as set forth herein and subject to all of the conditions hereof, in which event in the agreement for the same there shall be substituted for the words "plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard" the name of such other product or products. An agreement containing all of said terms and conditions shall be reduced to writing and signed by both parties before the same shall become effective.

21. From the date this contract shall become effective the same shall supersede all prior license agree-
9408 ments at any time made between the parties hereto relating to the subject-matter hereof or relating to any of the patents or applications for letters patent referred to in this agreement; Provided, However, that Licensor shall not be barred or prevented from recovering any claim which may have accrued under any such prior license agreements prior to the time this contract shall become effective, including all payments, royalties or license fees agreed to be paid thereunder by Licensee up to the date this agreement shall go into effect.

22. This license and all of the covenants and agreements hereof shall become effective upon the date Licensor shall receive a conveyance and assignment of said Haggerty and Hite patents to it, pursuant to authority granted by the United States District Court to the receivers of the Universal Gypsum & Lime Co., a Delaware corporation, and to said company, to sell and assign said Haggerty and Hite patents to Licensor, and from the effective date therof this license and all of the covenants and agreements hereof shall be binding upon and inure to the benefit of the successors and assigns of the parties hereto, but nothing in this paragraph shall be contsrued to permit an assignment hereof by Licensee, except as hereinabove specifically provided.

LICENSE AGREEMENT

This Agreement, executed in duplicate this 15th day of October, 1929, by and between the United States Gypsum Company, an Illinois corporation, of Chicago, Illinois, hereinafter referred to as Licensor, and Certain-Teed Products Corporation, a Maryland corporation, having its principal office at New York, New York, hereinafter referred to as Licensee, witnesseth:

Whereas, Licensor is the owner of certain letters patent and applications for letters patent of the United States covering an improved gypsum wallboard and method or process of making the same, together with machines and appliances for the manufacture of such inventions, which with certain other patents are more specifically set forth in Exhibit A attached hereto and made a part hereof; and

Whereas, Licensor was the owner of all of the right, title and interest in and under letters patent of the United States, number 1,029,328 and number 1,034,746, known as the Utzman patents, the last of which expired August 6, 1929, which said Utzman Patents were adjudicated by the United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division, and by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit, and were decreed by said courts as valid and having been infringed by the defendants named in said suits; and

Whereas, Birdsey Patent number 1,358,508, mentioned in said Exhibit A, was adjudicated by the United States District Court for the Northern District of Ohio, and said court decreed that said Birdsey Patent was valid and infringed by the defendant in said cause by reason of its having made, used and sold plasterboard and/or 9414 gypsum wall board with edges of the character disclosed in said patent and said District Court ordered a perpetual injunction and accounting against defendant, which cause is now pending on appeal before the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit; and

Whereas, the Beaver Products Company, Inc., formerly infringed said Utzman Patents and subsequent thereto agreed to settle the claim which Licensor had against it for damages by taking a license from Licensor under said patents, and agreeing to pay in settlement of said claim and for said license a sum equivalent to five (5) per cent of said Licensee's selling price of all plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it from the date of said license until August 6, 1929, and one and one-half (1½%) per cent of such selling price from August 6, 1929, to February 10, 1937; and

Whereas, on April 1, 1928, Licensee acquired substantially all of the plants, property and assets of the Beaver Products Company, Inc., and assumed all of its general obligations, and thereafter the said Beaver Products Company, Inc., ceased to do any business and failed to make any further payments under said license, and Licensor asserted a claim against Licensee for a sum equivalent to five per cent (5%) of Licensee's selling price of all plasterboard and gypsum wallboard of every kind manufactured at plants formerly owned by the Beaver Products Company, Inc. and sold by Licensee subsequent to April 1, 1928, and Licensee recognized such claim and agreed to pay the same, and it was agreed between Licensor and Licensee that the former would grant a license to the latter under said patents and settle said claim in consideration of the payment to Licensor of five per cent (5%) of Licensee's selling price of all plasterboard and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it between May 22, 1929, the date of said agreement, and August 6, 1929, and one and one-half per cent (1½%) of such selling price from August 6, 1929, to February 10, 1937, plus three and 9415 one-half per cent (3½%) of such selling price from August 6, 1929, until said three and one-half per cent (3½%) of such selling price aggregated the fixed sum of Sixty Four Thousand Four Hundred Sixty Seven Dollars and Twelve Cents ($64,467.12); and

Whereas, Licensor is the owner of that certain application for United States letters patent filed by Carlisle K. Roos, entitled "Cementitious Material," now pending in the United States Patent Office and covering the process of making a cellular product, which comprises forming a tenacious foam and mixing the foam with a cementitious material, and of certain other applications filed by said

Roos covering specific employment of said invention, and Licensor has heretofore acquired the sole and exclusive rights in the United States of America (when gypsum is used as the main binding material) in that certain application for United States letters patent described in said Exhibit A filed by Erik Christian Bayer, entitled "Methods of Manufacturing Porous Building Materials," and relating to a process broadly similar to that of said first mentioned Roos application, which said Roos and Bayer applications are described and set forth in said Exhibit A; and

Whereas, Licensor has agreed to purchase that certain Haggerty patent number 1,500,452 dated July 8, 1924, and that certain Hite patent number 1,230,297 dated June 19, 1917, subject to approval of the United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division thereof, and other United States District Courts in receivership proceedings therein pending against the present owner of said patents, both of which said patents are set forth in said Exhibit A; and

Whereas, Licensee desires to include in its manufacture the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in the Haggerty and Hite patents and the Roos and Bayer applications referred to in said Exhibit A, and to 9416 obtain a license from Licensor to make, use and sell the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in all of said patents and applications for letters patent throughout the full term thereof, and Licensor has agreed to grant such a license to Licensee upon the terms and conditions hereinafter stated;

Now, therefore, in consideration of the sum of One Dollar and other good and valuable considerations, the receipt whereof is hereby acknowledged from each party to the other party, and in consideration of the mutual covenants and agreements hereinafter contained, the parties hereto do hereby agree as follows, to-wit:

1. Licensor agrees promptly to disclose to Licensee all information and formulae which it now has or may obtain relating to the process of making a cellular product through the formation of a tenacious foam and mixing the foam with a cementitous material, as set forth and claimed in said applications for letters patent filed by Carlisle K. Roos and Erik Christian Bayer, in so far as the same is or may be applied to gypsum, and including all information and formulae for the manufacture of gypsum plasterboard and gypsum wallboard embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said Roos and Bayer applications, together with a description of the machines or appliances which it now has for making the same. It will assist Licensee to make its plant ready for practicing said process in the manufacture of plasterboard and gypsum wallboard by furnishing without cost to Licensee the advice and instruction of Licensor's experts and information with respect to the purchase and cost of said machines and appliances.

2. Licensor has agreed to and does hereby give and grant unto Licensee an indivisible and non-exclusive right, license and privilege of using the process or processes and making and using the machines and/or inventions set forth and claimed in any and all of said patents and/or applications for letters patent set forth in Exhibit A attached hereto in the manufacture of gypsum plas-
9417 terboard and/or gypsum wallboard at the plants or factories now owned and/or operated by Licensee, or at any other plant or factory hereafter owned and/or operated or controlled by it or any subsidiary, associated or affiliated company, and of manufacturing at any such place or places, selling and using in the United States of America and the territories and possessions thereof gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured at any such place or places and embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said patents and/or applications for letters patent described in said Exhibit A, for the full term of said letters patent or of any letters patent which may be granted for or upon any of said applications, including any extensions and/or reissues thereof.

It is expressly understood and agreed that the indivisible and non-exclusive right, license and privilege aforesaid is granted upon condition that the Licensor shall have and it hereby reserves the right to determine and fix at any time and to change from time to time during the existence of said patents and so long as said license shall continue, the minimum price or prices at which Licensee shall sell any plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured by Licensee by use of any of the machines or appliances covered by any of said letters patent and which shall embody the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in any of said patents which are presently issued, or any of said plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured by second parties and which shall embody the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in either patent number 1,500,452 or patent number 1,230,297, or commencing with the date when a patent shall have been granted or issued for or upon any of the said Roos or Bayer inventions and/or applications any of said plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured by Licensee, the body or core of which is made according to the process set forth and claimed in any patent granted for or upon any of said Roos or Bayer inventions and/or applications, and in case Licensor shall exercise the right so reserved, it shall first serve written notice of its intention so to do upon Licensee, accompanied with a statement of the minimum price or prices at which Licensee shall sell said gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard, and thereafter shall give to Licensee written or telegraphic notice of any change in such price or prices, and Licensee expressly covenants and agrees that it will not, so long as this agreement shall continue in force and effect and after receipt of such notice given in accordance with the terms and conditions hereof, directly or indirectly, sell or offer for sale any gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured by it by use of any of the machines or appliances covered by any of said patents and which during the existence thereof shall embody the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in any of said patents which are presently issued, or any gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured by second parties and which during the existence thereof shall embody the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in either patent number 1,500,452 or patent number 1,230,297, or any gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured by Licensee after a patent shall have been issued upon any of the said Roos or Bayer inventions and/or applications and during the existence thereof, the body or core of which is made according to the process set forth and claimed in any patent granted for or upon any of said inventions and/or applications, at a price or prices less than that stated by Licensor in said notice or in any such written or telegraphic notice of a change in such price or prices.

Said minimum price shall not be more than that price at which Licensor determines to sell plasterboard or gypsum

wallboard embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said patents to its own like trade in the same market.

9419 3. Licensee agrees to pay to Licensor in settlement and discharge of said claim and for said disclosures, information and assistance and the agreements of Licensor herein contained, and for the right, license and privilege of using the processes and making and using the machines and/or inventions in the manufacture of plasterboard and gypsum wallboard covered by said patents and applications for letters patent described in said Exhibit A, and for the privilege of manufacturing, using and/or selling plasterboard and gypsum wallboard embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said patents and applications for letters patent, an amount (hereinafter for convenience referred to as a license fee or royalty) equivalent to three and one-half per cent (3½%) of the selling price of Licensee of all plasterboard and gypsum wallboard of every kind, whether or not made by the use of said machines and/or embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said letters patent or applications for letters patent, manufactured and sold by Licensee between the date hereof and February 10, 1937, the date of the expiration of patent number 1,330,413 mentioned in said Exhibit A, and thereafter an amount equivalent to two per cent (2%) of the selling price of Licensee of all such plasterboard and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it between February 10, 1937, and July 8, 1941, the date of the expiration of said patent number 1,500,452, and thereafter an amount equivalent to one per cent (1%) of the selling price of Licensee of all such plasterboard and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it between July 8, 1941, and the date of the expiration of the last to expire of any patent granted or issued for or upon any of the said Roos or Bayer applications; Provided, However, that if no patent shall have been granted or issued for or upon any
9420 of said Roos or Bayer applications covering said process referred to in paragraph 1 hereof, within two (2) years from the date hereof, then commencing with the end of said two (2) year period the said license fees or royalties agreed to be paid by Licensee shall be reduced by one per cent (1%) of Licensee's said selling price until such patent shall have been granted or issued for or upon any of said Roos and Bayer applications, at which time

Licensee shall again commence to pay the full amount of said license fees or royalties until the date of the expiration of the last to expire of any such patent or patents. If at the time of the execution of this contract Licensee's plant shall not be equipped to practice the process set forth and claimed in said Roos or Bayer applications in the manufacture of plasterboard or gypsum wallboard, then Licensee shall pay as such license fees or royalties two and one-half per cent (2½%) of said selling price between the date hereof and January 1, 1930, or such earlier date as Licensee shall make its plant ready to practice said process in the manufacture of said board, and the payment of three and one-half per cent (3½%) of said selling price and said period of two (2) years in this paragraph mentioned shall commence on January 1, 1930, or such earlier date as Licensee shall have made its plant ready as aforesaid. The amount of one per cent (1%) of said selling price included in said royalties or license fees is the amount agreed to be paid by Licensee for the use of said Haggerty and Hite patents.

Licensee's selling price shall mean the delivered selling price of Licensee, less freight paid by the customer and less regular cash discounts allowed by Licensee.

In addition to the amounts hereinabove agreed to be paid by Licensee, Licensee, in further consideration of said license and in settlement of said claim, shall 9421 pay to Licensor an amount equivalent to one and one-half per cent (1½%) of the selling price of Licensee of all such plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it after the date hereof and until said one and one-half per cent (1½%) of said selling price shall have aggregated $60,200.29, being the full amount of said fixed sum which is unpaid up to the date hereof. It is understood and agreed that if prior to the expiration of the license granted in paragraph 2 hereof Licensee shall not have paid to Licensor said additional sum of $60,200.29 over and above said other license fees or royalties, then from the date of the expiration of said license, Licensee shall pay to Licensor five per cent (5%) of the selling price of Licensee of all plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it until said sum of $60,200.29 shall have been fully paid.

It is expressly understood and agreed that this contract is executed without prejudice to Licensor to assert its said claim against Licensee in case for any reason this agreement shall not remain in force until February 10, 1937, and

Licensee shall not pay to Licensor up to said date one and one-half per cent (1½%) of its said selling price over and above said two per cent (2%) of its said selling price paid for the right to use the said Haggerty and Hite inventions and the process set forth and claimed in said Roos and Bayer applications, plus said additional one and one-half per cent (1½%) of said selling price until the full amount of said fixed sum shall have been paid, and it is further agreed that the said claim of Licensor against Licensee is not settled or discharged by the execution of this instrument but shall only be settled and discharged by the payment by Licensee to Licensor of said one and 9422 one-half per cent (1½%) of its said selling price up to February 10, 1937, over and above said two per cent (2%) of its said selling price, plus the full amount of said sum of $60,200.29, in the manner and upon the payments as hereinabove set forth. In case of the termination of this contract at any time prior to the expiration thereof, or in the event of the failure of Licensee to make full payment to Licensor of all of said amounts in this paragraph mentioned, Licensor shall have, in addition to all its other rights under this agreement, the right to recover of and from Licensee the full amount of said sum of $60,200.29, which said sum Licensee forever recognizes and admits and agrees to pay, less only such sums as shall have been paid by Licensee to Licensor since the date hereof on account of said additional one and one-half per cent (1½%) of said selling price as hereinabove provided. Upon the payment to Licensor of said one and one-half per cent (1½%) of said selling price up to February 10, 1937, over and above said two per cent (2%) of said selling price, plus the full payment of said sum of $60,200.29, in the manner and upon the payments as hereinabove set forth, then the said claim of Licensor against Licensee shall thereupon be and become fully settled, discharged and satisfied.

4. It is further agreed that so long as the license provided for in paragraph 2 hereof shall remain in force between the parties hereto, or in case the license granted under paragraph 2 hereof shall expire before the expiration of the patents specifically described in this paragraph, and the said license granted under paragraph 2 shall continue in force between the parties hereto for the full term of the last to expire of any of said patents described in said Exhibit A, or of any patent or patents granted

cifically described in this paragraph, Licensor does hereby give and grant unto Licensee an indivisible and non-exclusive right, license and privilege of making and using the inventions set forth and claimed in those certain patents known as the Birdsey Plasterboard Bundle Patent number 1,696,877, dated December 25, 1928, Utzman Patent number 1,724,740, dated August 13, 1929, Birdsey Patent number 1,730,113 dated October 1, 1929, and applications for letters patent serial numbers 329,581 filed December 31, 1928, and 296,354 filed July 30, 1928, and any patents which may be granted for or upon said applications, including any extensions and/or reissues thereof, at the plants or factories now owned or operated by Licensee or at any other plant or factory hereafter owned and/or operated and controlled by Licensee or any subsidiary, associated or affiliated company of Licensee, and of selling or using bundles of plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard put up or bundled by Licensee at any such place or places according to the claims set forth and claimed in the said patents and applications for letters patent in this paragraph described, upon the terms and conditions hereinafter stated.

Licensee agrees to pay to Licensor for the right, license and privilege of making, using or selling the inventions set forth and claimed in said patents and applications in the next preceding paragraph described, in addition to the sums hereinabove set forth, an amount (hereinafter referred to as a license fee or royalty) equivalent to ten cents (10¢) per one thousand (1,000) square feet of plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard which is sold by Licensee in bundles of any kind, whether or not the bundles shall be made according to the claims set forth and claimed in said patents, which said license fee or royalty shall be payable at the times and in accordance with the terms of paragraph 6 hereof. The term "bundle" shall not include unbundled material wired or strapped for purpose of transportation or unbundled material shipped for export or coastwise trade in fiber, wooden or other crates.

5. It is expressly understood and agreed that the 9424 license herein granted shall be personal to the Licensee, and that the same or any right herein or thereunder shall not be sold or assigned or transferred without the written consent of Licensor, or transferred by operation of law; Provided, However, that the same may be assigned by Licensee to any company acquiring all the assets and business or capital stock of Licensee, on condition that Licensee shall first obtain an agreement in writing from any such assignee agreeing to assume all of the obligations of Licensee under this agreement and to be bound by all of the terms and conditions hereof and shall deliver such agreement to Licensor. Licensee agrees not to sell all of its assets and business or capital stock, or to transfer and convey its plasterboard and/or wallboard business or its assets used in connection therewith, without requiring the purchaser or purchasers thereof to assume, in writing, all of the obligations of Licensee hereunder, and to agree to be bound by the terms and conditions hereof, and deliver such agreement to Licensor.

It is expressly understood that the Licensee shall not discontinue its business of manufacturing and selling plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard until the Licensor shall have received the full payment of said one and one-half per cent (1½%) of said selling price up to February 10, 1937, over and above said two per cent (2%) of said selling price, plus the full payment of said sum of $60,200.29, in the manner and upon the payments as hereinabove set forth.

6. Licensee agrees to keep separate full and accurate books of account and records showing the exact quantity of all plasterboard and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it, as well as a separate record of all plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard sold by it in bundles, and agrees that on or before the twentieth day of each calendar month it will render unto Licensor true written
9425 returns verified under oath by an officer or other agent of Licensee, setting forth the quantity of all plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it during the preceding calendar month and the quantity thereof put up and sold by it in bundles, together with the price or prices at which the same was sold and is to be accounted for hereunder, such written returns to be delivered to Licensor at its office in Chicago, Illinois, and Licensee agrees to pay to Licensor on or before the 20th day of each calendar month at the office of Licensor at Chicago, Illinois, the hereinbefore stipulated royalties or license fees which may then be due under this agreement on account of all said plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it and put up and sold by it in bundles during the next preceding calendar month.

7. Licensor, or its duly authorized representative, shall have the right at all reasonable times during business hours to inspect the books of account and records of Licensee referred to in the next preceding paragraph hereof, including all records of every kind showing the quantity of said plasterboard and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it and the quantity thereof put up and sold by it in bundles and the price or prices at which the same was sold, and to make copies thereof and memoranda therefrom; Provided, However, that if at the time of any such examination Licensee shall request it in writing, then such examination shall be made by a certified public accountant agreed upon between the parties hereto, in which event the expense thereof shall be borne equally by both parties. If the parties at any such time shall not agree upon the certified public accountant to make such examination, then Licensor shall name three certified public accountants of good standing not directly or indirectly employed by it or in any other way connected with it, and if Licensee 9426 shall not accept any one of them, then Licensor shall have the right to make such examination itself.

8. Licensee agrees that all plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it embodying the claims of any of said patents and/or applications for letters patent shall be distinctly marked with the word "Patented" and/or "Patent Applied For," as the case may be, together with the numbers of any of said patents or applications specified by Licensor, the claims of which may be embodied in said plasterboard or gypsum wallboard, and in connection with said marking Licensee will further mark said board with the words "Licensed Under the Above Letters Patent" and/or "Licensed Under Pending Applications for Letters Patent," as the case may be, which marking shall be plainly visible. Licensee further agrees that all bundles put up and sold by it embodying the claims of any of said patents numbers 1,696,877, 1,724,740 and 1,730,113 and/or any of said applications serial numbers 329,581 and 296,354 shall be similarly marked together with the numbers of said bundle patents and/or applications.

9. Having regard for the fact that there are or may be certain manufacturers of plasters or gypsum products, jobbers or other wholesale distributors of such products, who do not or may not manufacture gypsum wallboard or plasterboard but who desire or may desire to have gypsum wallboard or plasterboard manufactured for them, it is understood and agreed that Licensee may manufacture for jobbers (being those who do not manufacture but buy and sell plasterboard or gypsum wallboard in straight cars or in mixed cars with other building material and who do not sell at retail) gypsum wallboard or plasterboard embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said letters patent or in any letters patent 9427 after the same shall have been issued, granted for or upon any of the said applications and may with the written consent of first party manufacture for any such other manufacturer or other wholesale distributor, gypsum wallboard or plasterboard embodying the said inventions and improvements; Provided, However, that the said license fee or royalty to be paid to Licensor as hereinbefore provided shall be based upon all gypsum wallboard and plasterboard manufactured for and sold and invoiced to such other manufacturer, jobber or wholesale distributor and upon the regular selling price of Licensee of such plasterboard or gypsum wallboard to its regular dealer trade at the time of such sale and invoice, and shall not be based upon the price at which plasterboard or gypsum wallboard is sold and invoiced by Licensee to such other manufacturer, jobber or wholesale distributor. Nothing hereinbefore contained in this agreement shall be construed to give Licensee the right to manufacture gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in any of said letters patent or in any letters patent after the same shall have been granted for or upon any of said applications for said other manufacturers or wholesale distributors and to sell the same, without the written consent of Licensor.

10. Licensee covenants and agrees that all of said gypsum plasterboard and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in any of said letters patent or patents issued upon any of said applications and commonly known in the trade as "Seconds" shall be plainly invoiced as "Seconds" and shall be plainly marked with a visible red stamp or label firmly fixed on each of said boards showing the word "Seconds" in letters at least three inches 9428 in height.

11. As one of the considerations for the indivisible and non-exclusive license herein and hereby granted, Licensee hereby acknowledges the validity of said letters patent or of any letters patent which may be granted or issued for or upon said applications, forming the subject-matter of said license so long as said license shall remain in full force and effect, and agrees that it will not at any time during the existence of said license, directly or indirectly, by itself, through or together with another or others, contest the validity of either or any of said letters patent or the title thereto of Licensor.

12. In the event that either party shall at any time neglect, fail or refuse to keep or perform any of the conditions or agreements herein to be kept by it and performed, then the other party, at its election, may serve upon the party in default written notice of intention to terminate this license, which notice shall specify the alleged neglect, failure or refusal, and if within thirty (30) days from the date of delivery of said notice the party in default shall not cure the default specified in said notice, then the other party may cancel and terminate this agreement by notifying the party in default in writing of its election so to do, without the necessity of any court action; Provided, However, that neither party shall be relieved thereby from any liability accrued at the time of such termination; and Provided Further, that if the party upon whom said notice is served shall deny that it is in default in whole or in part, as specified therein, then the party serving such notice shall not be privileged to cancel this contract an account of the alleged default specified therein, provided the party upon whom said notice shall have been served shall 9429 within said thirty (30) day period perform the agreements and submit the question to arbitration, as in this paragraph hereinafter set forth. In case of any such denial the party upon whom the notice shall have been served shall within said thirty (30) day period state in writing to the other party wherein and in what respect it denies the default specified in said notice and shall at the same time make good any default specified therein which it does not deny and appoint in writing one person as arbifer to arbitrate the question of whether or not it is in default in respect to that which it shall have denied as aforesaid, it being understood, however, that if the question shall be with respect to the amount of royalties or license fees to be paid hereunder, then the Licensee shall first pay or offer to pay the amount of such license fees or royalties which it then admits is due and payable in accordance with the terms hereof, and the acceptance thereof by the

Licensor shall not operate as a waiver of any of its rights hereunder or of any claim it may have made in any notice served by it upon Licensee. The party so serving said notice shall, after the other party shall have made good any default specified in said notice which it did not deny in writing as aforesaid, including the payment of royalties or license fees, if any, admitted by it to be due and payable hereunder, and within ten (10) days from the date of the appointment of said first arbiter in accordance with the terms hereof, appoint in writing another person as arbiter, and the two persons so appointed shall within ten (10) days or as soon as possible thereafter appoint in writing a third person as arbiter. The three persons so appointed shall, within thirty (30) days from the date of the appointment of said last mentioned arbiter, or as soon as possible thereafter, decide whether or not the party upon 9430 whom said notice has been served is in default hereunder with respect to anything contained in said notice. The decision of a majority of the three arbiters so appointed shall constitute a final settlement of the said question and be binding and conclusive upon both the Licensor and the Licensee, and if it shall have been determined by a majority of the said arbiters that the party upon whom said notice was served is in default with respect to anything contained in said notice and the party so found to have been in default shall fail or refuse to comply with the terms of the award or finding made by said arbiters within thirty (30) days from the date such award or finding shall have been made, the party serving said notice may at its election terminate and cancel this agreement in writing. In the event of default hereunder by either party and notice of such default is served by the other party as herein provided, and after service of such notice the party in default shall cure the same as hereinbefore provided the same shall constitute a nullification of said notice to the same effect as if said notice had not been served. In case at any time the Licensee shall be adjudged a bankrupt, then the license hereunder shall immediately be and become canceled and terminated, but the Licensor shall not thereby be prevented from collecting all license fees or royalties accrued hereunder at the time of such termination. The waiver of any breach by either party shall not be interpreted as constituting a waiver of any further breach or breaches. Either party may proceed by action to specifically enforce this contract or any of the terms, conditions and covenants thereof by injunction or in such other manner as may be provided by law.

13. Any notice to be given under the terms hereof may be served by the Licensor or the Licensee by mailing the same to the other party hereto, postage prepaid and registered, addressed to any of its officers at its last 9431 known principal office, and the deposit of any such notice in the United States mails, postage prepaid and so addressed, shall constitute service of notice hereunder. Any telegraphic notice given under paragraph 2 hereof shall be confirmed in writing in the ordinary course of business.

14. It is understood and agreed that if at any time during the term hereof the Licensee shall, in the judgment of the Licensor, suffer substantial detriment by reason of any infringement on the part of any person or persons of any of said letters patent or of any patent that may be granted upon said applications, under which this license is granted, the Licensor will afford the Licensee such reasonable protection as in the judgment of the Licensor shall be necessary or proper.

If a court of last resort upon final appeal or review shall decree all the claims of the patents granted for or upon said Roos and Bayer applications invalid or Licensee shall be permanently enjoined from manufacturing plasterboard and gypsum wallboard, the body or core of which is made according to the process set forth and claimed in said Roos and Bayer applications in such manner that they cannot practice in any way any of the inventions set forth in the said applications, and such injunction shall be made final by a court of last resort upon final appeal or review, then from the time the court of last resort upon final appeal or review shall decree that all the claims of the patents granted or issued for or upon said Roos and Bayer applications are invalid, or make such injunction permanent and final, the license fees or royalties to be paid by Licensee hereunder shall be reduced by one per cent (1%) of said selling price, or if a court of last resort upon final appeal or review shall decree that all the claims of said Hag-9432 gerty and Hite patents are invalid or Licensee shall be permanently enjoined from manufacturing plasterboard and gypsum wallboard embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said Haggerty and Hite patents in such manner that they cannot practice in any way any of the inventions set forth in said patents, and such injunction shall be made final by a court of last resort upon final appeal or review, then from the time the court of last resort upon final appeal or review shall decree all claims of said Haggerty and Hite patents invalid or make said injunction permanent and final, the said license fees or royalties agreed to be paid by Licensee for said Haggerty and Hite patents shall cease and determine.

15. In case Licensor shall, subsequent to the effective date hereof, grant to any other person except Abel Davis and Eugene Holland, receivers of the Universal Gypsum & Lime Co. or their successors or to the said Universal Gypsum & Lime Co., any license under said patents or applications for letters patent set forth in said Exhibit A and paragraph 4 hereof for the manufacture, sale or use of gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard or bundles thereof, embodying the claims or inventions set forth and claimed in said patents or applications, or shall grant any right under any such license, upon terms more favorable than those granted hereunder to this Licensee, then it will grant to this Licensee a license on the same terms or extend to it the same right granted to any such other person. This paragraph shall not apply to any license granted on or prior to the effective date hereof, nor shall the same apply to the terms of settlement of any claim of Licensor or provisions with respect to the payment thereof, contained in any such license.

9433 wallboard" and "plasterboard" shall be understood to mean all board made of gypsum, by whatever name called, having the characteristics of gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard, irrespective of the purpose for which the same may be sold or used, and shall include gypsum laths and all other gypsum boards.

17. If at any time after the expiration of two (2) years from January 1, 1930, or such earlier date that Licensee shall make its plant ready to practice the process set forth and claimed in said Roos and Bayer applications in the manufacture of gypsum wallboard or plasterboard, there shall have been invented or come into use any process which shall make the said process of forming a cellular product as set forth and claimed in said Roos and Bayer applications obsolete or shall displace the same, and the Licensor shall in its own manufacture permanently and wholly abandon the use of the subject-matter of the claims of said Roos and Bayer applications, it shall notify Licensee in writing thereof, and Licensee may then, upon thirty (30) days' written notice to Licensor, cancel and terminate this license in so far as the same applies to said

Roos and Bayer applications or to the patent or patents granted or issued therefor or thereupon, and from the date of such cancellation the royalties or license fees to be paid by Licensee hereunder shall be reduced by one per cent (1%) of its said selling price; Provided, However, that if Licensor shall not in such event permanently and wholly abandon the use of said process but shall only partially abandon the same, then to the extent or degree and for the term that Licensor shall abandon the same in its own manufacture Licensee shall be relieved from the payment of license fees or royalties to the same extent, that is to say, if Licensor shall in such event manufacture and sell any board the core of which is made of gypsum of 9434 a particular size, kind or make, or for a particular purpose or use, without the use of said process embodied therein, then if Licensee shall manufacture and sell the same board of the same particular size, kind or make and for the same purpose or use, without the use of said process embodied therein, then Licensee shall not be required to pay royalties or license fees upon such particular board for the term that Licensor shall manufacture and sell the same. "License fees" and "royalties" for the purpose of this paragraph shall mean one per cent (1%) of said selling price. The use by Licensor of any improvement which Licensee has the right to use as set forth in paragraph 18 hereof, or the manufacture of plasterboard or gypsum wallboard without the use of said process for sale only in foreign countries where Licensor has no patented rights in said process, shall not constitute an abandonment of said process or a partial abandonment thereof within the meaning of this paragraph.

18. If Licensor shall at any time during the existence of this agreement make or obtain any improvement for the formation of the bubble described in the process set forth in said Roos and Bayer applications and/or method of its introduction in the core of plasterboard or gypsum wallboard, and which improvement is covered by the claims of said Roos and Bayer applications, and shall itself use the same in its own manufacture, then so long as Licensee shall continue to pay the license fees or royalties hereinbefore stipulated the right, license or privilege herein contained shall be extended to and include the use of said improvement in the manufacture by Licensee of gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard, subject to all of the terms and conditions herein contained, except only that Licensee shall not be required to pay any additional sum, royalty or license fee therefor. It is further understood that if a patent or patents shall be granted or issued for or 9435 upon said improvement, then all of the provisions of this agreement, as well as the provision of paragraph 2 hereof reserving the right in Licensor to determine and fix at any time and to change from time to time the minimum price or prices at which Licensee shall sell any gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured by Licensee and embodying the claims of said patents, shall apply to the improvement set forth and claimed in any patent or patents granted or issued for or upon said improvement. Licensor will promptly notify Licensee of the general adoption by it of any such improvement in its own manufacture, together with such information as it may possess as to the use thereof in the manufacture of plasterboard and gypsum wallboard.

19. Licensee has investigated and fully satisfied itself with respect to the inventions and improvements set forth in said patents and applications for letters patent and the use thereof in its own manufacture, and has executed this agreement without relying upon any representations which may have been made by Licensor with respect thereto. No representations have been made by Licensor not expressly stated in this contract which Licensee shall at any time have any right to rely upon as an inducement for its making this contract or for any result or results to be obtained by Licensee in its own plant by its use of the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in any of said patents or applications for letters patent.

20. The Licensor agrees at any time during the term hereof to extend to Licensee, upon its written request, an indivisible and non-exclusive license or privilege to use the said process or processes set forth and claimed in said Roos or Bayer applications in the manufacture in its said plants of any other gypsum product not specifically 9436 covered by this agreement and in which Licensor shall use the same in its own manufacture and to sell the same, upon the payment to Licensor of one per cent (1%) of the selling price of Licensee of all of said other gypsum product, whether or not embodying the said process in making the same, manufactured and sold by Licensee and upon the same terms as set forth herein and subject to all of the conditions hereof, in which event in the agreement for the same there shall be substituted for the words "plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard" the name of such other product or products. An agreement containing all of said terms and conditions shall be reduced to writing and signed by both parties before the same shall become effective.

21. From the date this contract shall become effective the same shall supersede all prior license agreements at any time made between the parties hereto relating to the subject-matter hereof or relating to any of the patents or applications for letters patent referred to in this agreement; Provided, However, that Licensor shall not be barred or prevented from recovering any claim which may have accrued under any such prior license agreements prior to the time this contract shall become effective, including all payments, royalties or license fees agreed to be paid thereunder by Licensee up to the date this agreement shall go into effect.

22. This license and all of the covenants and agreements hereof shall become effective upon the date Licensor shall receive a conveyance and assignment of said Haggerty and Hite patents to it, pursuant to authority granted by the United States District Court to the receivers of the Universal Gypsum & Lime Co., a Delaware corporation, and to said company, to sell and assign said Haggerty and Hite patents to Licensor, and from the effective date thereof this license and all of the covenants and 9437 agreements hereof shall be binding upon and inure to the benefit of the successors and assigns of the parties hereto, but nothing in this paragraph shall be construed to permit an assignment hereof by Licensee, except as hereinabove specifically provided.

LICENSE AGREEMENT

This agreement made this 18th day of October, A. D. 1929, by and between the United States Gypsum Company, an Illinois corporation, of Chicago, Illinois, hereinafter referred to as Licensor, and Ebsary Gypsum Co., Inc. a New York corporation, of Newark, New Jersey, hereinafter referred to as Licensee, Witnesseth, that

Whereas, Licensor was the owner of all of the right, title and interest in and under letters patent of the United States number 1,029,328 and number 1,034,746 known as the Utzman Patents, the last of which expired August 6, 1929, which said Utzman Patents were adjudicated by the United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division, and by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit, and were decreed by said courts as valid and having been infringed by the defendants named in said suits; and

Whereas, Birdsey Patent number 1,358,508, mentioned in said Exhibit A, was decreed by the United States District Court for the Northern District of Ohio as valid and infringed by the defendant in said cause by reason of 9443 its having made, used and sold plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard with edges of the character disclosed in said patent, and said District Court ordered a perpetual injunction and accounting against defendant, which cause is now pending on appeal before the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit; and

Whereas, Licensor is the owner of a new process disclosed in that certain application for United States letters patent filed by Carlisle K. Roos, entitled "Cementitious Material," now pending in the United States Patent Office and covering the process of making a cellular product, which comprises forming a tenacious foam and mixing the foam with a cementitious material, and of certain other applications filed by said Roos covering specific employment of said invention, and Licensor has heretofore acquired the sole and exclusive rights in the United States of America (when gypsum is used as the main binding material) in that certain application for United States letters patent described in Exhibit A filed by Erik Christian Bayer, entitled "Methods of Manufacturing Porous Building Materials," and relating to a process broadly similar to that of said first mentioned Roos application, which said Roos and Bayer applications are described and set forth in said Exhibit A; and

Whereas, Licensor has agreed to purchase that certain Haggerty Patent number 1,500,452, dated July 8, 1924, and that certain Hite Patent number 1,230,297, dated June 19, 1917, both mentioned in said Exhibit A, subject to approval of the United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division thereof, and other United States district courts in receivership proceedings
9444 therein pending against the present owner of said patents; and

Whereas, gypsum wallboard or plasterboard manufactured by Licensee is made by the use of the machines or according to the processes or embodying the claims of some or all of said patents and applications for letters patent set forth in said Exhibit A, and Licensee desires to include in its manufacture the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said Roos and Bayer applications and said Haggerty and Hite patents, and to obtain a license from Licensor to make, use and sell the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in all of said patents and applications for letters patent set forth in said Exhibit A throughout the full term thereof; and

Whereas, Licensor has agreed to grant said license and to make certain disclosures as to the said Roos and Bayer applications referred to in said Exhibit A, upon the terms and conditions hereinafter stated;

Now, therefore, in consideration of the sum of One Dollar and other good and valuable considerations, the receipt whereof is hereby acknowledged from each party to the other party, and in consideration of the mutual covenants and agreements hereinafter contained, the parties hereto do hereby agree as follows, to-wit:

1. Licensor agrees promptly to disclose to Licensee all information and formulae which it now has or may obtain relating to the process of making a cellular product through the formation of a tenacious foam and mixing the foam with a cementitious material, as set forth and claimed in said applications for letters patent filed by Carlisle K. Roos and Erik Christian Bayer, in so far as the same is or may be applied to gypsum, and including all information and formulae for the manufacture of gypsum
9445 plasterboard and gypsum wallboard embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said Roos and Bayer applications, together with a description of the machines or appliances which it now has for making the same. It will assist Licensee to make its plant ready for practicing said process in the manufacture of plasterboard and gypsum wallboard by furnishing without cost to Licensee the advice and instruction of Licensor's experts and information with respect to the purchase and cost of said machines and appliances.

2. Licensor has agreed to and does hereby give and grant unto Licensee an indivisible and non-exclusive right, license and privilege of using the process or processes and making and using the machines and/or inventions set forth and claimed in any and all of said patents and/or applications for letters patent set forth in Exhibit A attached hereto in the manufacture of gypsum plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard at the plants or factories now owned and/or operated by Licensee, or at any other plant or factory hereafter owned and/or operated or controlled by it or any subsidiary, associated or affiliated company, and of manufacturing at any such place or places, selling and using in the United States of America and the territories and possessions thereof gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured at any such place or places and embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said patents and/or applications for letters patent described in said Exhibit A, for the full term of said

9446 letters patent or of any letters patent which may be granted for or upon any of said applications, including any extensions and/or reissues thereof.

It is expressly understood and agreed that the indivisible and non-exclusive right, license and privilege aforesaid is granted upon condition that the Licensor shall have and it hereby reserves the right to determine and fix at any time and to change from time to time during the existence of said patents and so long as said license shall continue, the minimum price or prices at which Licensee shall sell any plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured by Licensee by use of any of the machines or appliances covered by any of said letters patent and which shall embody the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in any of said patents which are presently issued, or any of said plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured by second parties and which shall embody the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in either patent number 1,500,452 or patent number 1,230,297, or commencing with the date when a patent shall have been granted or issued for or upon any of the said Roos or Bayer inventions and/or applications any of said plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured by Licensee, the body or core of which is made according to the process set forth and claimed in any patent granted for or upon any of said Roos or Bayer inventions and/or applications, and in case Licensor shall exercise the right so reserved, it shall first serve written notice of its intention so to do upon Licensee, accompanied with a statement of the minimum price or prices at which Licensee shall sell said gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard, and thereafter shall give to Licensee writ-
9447 ten or telegraphic notice of any change in such price or prices, and Licensee expressly covenants and agrees that it will not, so long as this agreement shall continue in force and effect and after receipt of such notice given in accordance with the terms and conditions hereof, directly or indirectly, sell or offer for sale any gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured by it by use of any of the machines or appliances covered by any of said patents and which during the existence thereof shall embody the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in any of said patents which are presently issued, or any gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured by second parties and which during the existence thereof shall embody the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in either patent number 1,500,452 or patent number 1,230,297, or any gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured by Licensee after a patent shall have issued upon any of the said Roos or Bayer inventions and/or applications and during the existence thereof, the body or core of which is made according to the process set forth and claimed in any patent granted for or upon any of said inventions and/or applications, at a price or prices less than that stated by Licensor in said notice or in any such written or telegraphic notice of a change in such price or prices.

Said minimum price shall not be more than that price at which Licensor determines to sell plasterboard or gypsum wallboard embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said patents to its own like trade in the same market.

9448 3. Licensee agrees to pay to Licensor for said disclosures, information and assistance and the agreements of Licensor herein contained, and for the right, license and privilege of using the processes and making and using the machines and/or inventions in the manufacture of plasterboard and gypsum wallboard covered by said patents and applications for letters patent described in said Exhibit A, and for the privilege of manufacturing, using and/or selling plasterboard and gypsum wallboard embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said patents and applications for letters patent, an amount (hereinafter for convenience referred to as a license fee or royalty) equivalent to three and one-half per cent (3½%) of the selling price of Licensee of all plasterboard and gypsum wallboard of every kind, whether or not made by the use of said machines and/or embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said letters patent or applications for letters patent, manufactured and sold by Licensee between the date hereof and February 10, 1937, the date of the expiration of patent number 1,330,413 mentioned in said Exhibit A, and thereafter an amount equivalent to two per cent (2%) of the selling price of Licensee of all such plasterboard and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it between February 10, 1937, and July 8, 1941, the date of the expiration of said patent number 1,500,452, and thereafter an amount equivalent to one per cent (1%) of the selling price of Licensee of all such plasterboard and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it between July 8, 1941, and the date of the expiration of the last to expire of any patent granted or issued for or upon any of the said Roos or Bayer applications; Provided, However, that if no patent shall 9449 have been granted or issued for or upon any of said Roos or Bayer applications covering said process referred to in paragraph 1 hereof, within two (2) years from the date hereof, then commencing with the end of said two (2) year period the said license fees or royalties agreed to be paid by Licensee shall be reduced by one per cent (1%) of Licensee's said selling price until such patent shall have been granted or issued for or upon any of said Roos and Bayer applications, at which time Licensee shall again commence to pay the full amount of said license fees or royalties until the date of the expiration of the last to expire of any such patent or patents. If at the time of the execution of this contract Licensee's plant shall not be equipped to practice the process set forth and claimed in said Roos or Bayer applications in the manufacture of plasterboard or gypsum wallboard, then Licensee shall pay as such license fees or royalties two and one-half per cent (2½%) of said selling price between the date hereof and January 1, 1930, or such earlier date as Licensee shall make its plant ready to practice said process in the manufacture of said board, and the payment of three and one-half per cent (3½%) of said selling price and said period of two (2) years in this paragraph mentioned shall commence on January 1, 1930, or such earlier date as Licensee shall have made its plant ready as aforesaid. The amount of one per cent (1%) of said selling price included in said royalties or license fees is the amount agreed to be paid by Licensee for the use of said Haggerty and Hite patents.

Licensee's selling price shall mean the delivered selling price of Licensee, less freight paid by the customer and less regular cash discounts allowed by Licensee.

9450 between the parties hereto, or in case the license granted under paragraph 2 hereof shall expire before the expiration of the patents specifically described in this paragraph, and the said license granted under paragraph 2 shall continue in force between the parties hereto for the full term of the last to expire of any of said patents described in said Exhibit A, or of any patent or patents granted for or upon any application described in said Exhibit A, then until the expiration of the patents specifically described in this paragraph, Licensor does hereby give and grant unto the Licensee an indivisible and non-exclusive right, license and privilege of making and using the inventions set forth and claimed in those certain patents known as the Birdsey Plaster-Board Bundle Patent number 1,696,877, dated December 25, 1928, Utzman Patent number 1,724,740 dated August 13, 1929, Birdsey Patent number 1,730,113 dated October 1, 1929, and applications for letters patent serial numbers 329,581 filed December 31, 1928, and 296,354 filed July 30, 1928, and any patent which may be granted for or upon said applications, including any extensions and/or reissues thereof, at the plants or factories now owned or operated by Licensee or at any other plant or factory hereafter owned and/or operated and controlled by Licensee or any subsidiary, associated or affiliated company of Licensee, and of selling or using bundles of plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard put up or bundled by Licensee at any such place or places according to the claims set forth and claimed in the said patents and applications for letters patent in this paragraph described, upon the terms and conditions hereinafter stated.

Licensee agrees to pay to Licensor for the right, license and privilege of making, using or selling the inventions set forth and claimed in said patents and applications in the next preceding paragraph described, in addition to the sums hereinabove set forth, an amount (hereinafter referred to as a license fee or royalty) equivalent to ten cents (10¢) per one thousand (1,000) square feet of plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard which is sold by Licensee
9451 in bundles of any kind, whether or not the bundles shall be made according to the claims set forth and claimed in said patents, which said license fee or royalty shall be payable at the times and in accordance with the terms of paragraph 6 hereof. The term "bundle" shall not include unbundled material wired or strapped for purpose of transportation or unbundled material shipped for export or coastwise trade in fiber, wooden or other crates.

5. It is expressly understood and agreed that the license herein granted shall be personal to the Licensee, and that the same or any right herein or thereunder shall not be sold or assigned or transferred without the written consent of Licensor, or transferred by operation of law; Provided,

However, that the same may be assigned by Licensee to any company acquiring all the assets and business or all of the capital stock of Licensee, on condition that Licensee shall first obtain an agreement in writing from any such assignee agreeing to assume all of the obligations of Licensee under this agreement and to be bound by all of the terms and conditions hereof and shall deliver such agreement to Licensor. Licensee agrees not to sell all of its assets and business or all of its capital stock or to transfer and convey its plasterboard and/or wallboard business, or its assets used in connection therewith, without requiring the purchaser or purchasers thereof to assume, in writing, all of the obligations of Licensee hereunder, and to agree to be bound by all of the terms and conditions of this contract, and deliver such agreement to Licensor.

6. Licensee agrees to keep separate full and accurate books of accounts and records showing the exact 9452 quantity of all plasterboard and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it, as well as a separate record of all plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard sold by it in bundles, and agrees that on or before the twentieth day of each calendar month it will render unto Licensor true written returns verified under oath by an officer or other agent of Licensee, setting forth the quantity of all plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it during the preceding calendar month and the quantity thereof put up and sold by it in bundles, together with the price or prices at which the same was sold and is to be accounted for hereunder, such written returns to be delivered to Licensor at its office in Chicago, Illinois, and Licensee agrees to pay to Licensor on or before the 20th day of each calendar month at the office of Licensor at Chicago, Illinois, the hereinbefore stipulated royalties or license fees which may then be due under this agreement on account of all said plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it and put up and sold by it in bundles during the next preceding calendar month.

7. Licensor, or its duly authorized representative, shall have the right at all reasonable times during business hours to inspect the books of account and records of Licensee referred to in the next preceding paragraph hereof, including all records of every kind showing the quantity of said plasterboard and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it and the quantity thereof put up and sold by it in bundles and the price or prices at which the same was sold, and to make copies thereof and memoranda therefrom; Provided, However, that if at the time of any such examination Licensee shall request it in writing, then such examination shall be made by a certified public accountant agreed upon between the parties hereto, in which event the expense thereof shall be borne equally by both parties. If 9453 the parties at any such time shall not agree upon the certified public accountant to make such examination, then Licensor shall name three certified public accountants of good standing not directly or indirectly employed by it or in any other way connected with it, and if Licensee shall not accept any one of them, then Licensor shall have the right to make such examination itself.

8. Licensee agrees that all plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it embodying the claims of any of said patents and/or applications for letters patent shall be distinctly marked with the word "Patented" and/or "Patent Applied for," as the case may be, together with the numbers of any of said patents or applications specified by Licensor, the claims of which may be embodied in said plasterboard or gypsum wallboard, and in connection with said marking Licensee will further mark said board with the words "Licensed Under the Above Letters Patent" and/or "Licensed Under Pending Applications for Letters Patent," as the case may be, which marking shall be plainly visible. Licensee further agrees that all bundles put up and sold by it embodying the claims of any of said patents numbers 1,696,877, 1,724,740 and 1,730,113 and/or any of said applications serial numbers 329,581 and 296,354 shall be similarly marked together with the numbers of said bundle patents and/or applications.

set forth and claimed in said letters patent or in any letters patent after the same shall have been issued, granted for or upon any of the said applications and may with the written consent of first party manufacture for any such other manufacturer or other wholesale distributor, gypsum wallboard or plasterboard embodying the said inventions and improvements; Provided, However, that the said license fee or royalty to be paid to Licensor as hereinbefore provided shall be based upon all gypsum wallboard and plasterboard manufactured for and sold and invoiced to such other manufacturer, jobber or wholesale distributor and upon the regular selling price of Licensee of such plasterboard or gypsum wallboard to its regular dealer trade at the time of such sale and invoice, and shall not be based upon the price at which plasterboard or gypsum wallboard is sold and invoiced by Licensee to such other manufacturer, jobber or wholesale distributor. Nothing hereinbefore contained in this agreement shall be construed to give Licensee the right to manufacture gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in any of said letters patent or in any letters patent after the same shall have been granted for or upon any of said applications for said other manufacturers or wholesale distributors and to sell the same, without the written consent of Licensor.

10. Licensee covenants and agrees that all of said gypsum plasterboard and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in any of said Letters patent or patents issued upon any of said applications and commonly known in the trade as "seconds" shall be plainly invoiced as 9455 "seconds" and shall be plainly marked with a visible red stamp or label firmly fixed on each of said boards showing the word "seconds" in letters at least three inches in height.

11. As one of the considerations for the indivisible and non-exclusive license herein and hereby granted, Licensee hereby acknowledges the validity of said letters patent or of any letters patent which may be granted or issued for or upon said applications, forming the subject-matter of said license so long as said license shall remain in full force and effect, and agrees that it will not at any time during the existence of said license, directly or indirectly, by itself, through or together with another or others, contest the validity of either or any of said letters patent or the title thereto of Licensor.

12. In the event that either party shall at any time neglect, fail or refuse to keep or perform any of the conditions or agreements herein to be kept by it and performed, then the other party, at its election, may serve upon the party in default written notice of intention to terminate this license, which notice shall specify the alleged neglect, failure or refusal, and if within thirty (30) days from the date of delivery of said notice the party in default shall not cure the default specified in said notice, then the other party may cancel and terminate this agreement by notifying the party in default in writing of its election so to do, without the necessity of any court action; Provided, However, that neither party shall be relieved thereby from any liability accrued at the time of such termination; and Provided Further, that if the party upon whom said notice is served shall deny that it is in default in whole or in part, as 9456 specified therein, then the party serving such notice shall not be privileged to cancel this contract on account of the alleged default specified therein, provided the party upon whom said notice shall have been served shall within said thirty (30) day period perform the agreements and submit the question to arbitration, as in this paragraph hereinafter set forth. In case of any such denial the party upon whom the notice shall have been served shall within said thirty (30) day period state in writing to the other party wherein and in what respect it denies the default specified in said notice and shall at the same time make good any default specified therein which it does not deny and appoint in writing one person as arbiter to arbitrate the question of whether or not it is in default in respect to that which it shall have denied as aforesaid, it being understood, however, that if the question shall be with respect to the amount of royalties or license fees to be paid hereunder, then the Licensee shall first pay or offer to pay the amount of such license fees or royalties which it then admits is due and payable in accordance with the terms hereof, and the acceptance thereof by the Licensor shall not operate as a waiver of any of its rights hereunder or of any claim it may have made in any notice served by it upon Licensee. The party so serving said notice shall, after the other party shall have made good any default specified in said notice which it did not deny in writing as aforesaid, including the payment of royalties or license fees, if any, admitted by it to be due and payable hereunder, and within ten (10) days from the date of the appointment of said first arbiter in accordance with the terms hereof, appoint in writing another person as arbiter, and the two persons so appointed shall within ten (10) days or as soon as possible thereafter appoint in writing a third person as arbiter. The three persons so appointed shall, within thirty (30) days from the date of the appointment of said last mentioned arbiter, or as soon as possible thereafter, decide whether or not the party upon whom said notice has been 9457 served is in default hereunder with respect to anything contained in said notice. The decision of a majority of the three arbiters so appointed shall constitute a final settlement of the said question and be binding and conclusive upon both the Licensor and the Licensee, and if it shall have been determined by a majority of the said arbiters that the party upon whom said notice was served is in default with respect to anything contained in said notice and the party so found to have been in default shall fail or refuse to comply with the terms of the award or finding made by said arbiters within thirty (30) days from the date such award or finding shall have been made, the party serving said notice may at its election terminate and cancel this agreement in writing. In the event of default hereunder by either party and notice of such default is served by the other party as herein provided, and after service of such notice the party in default shall cure the same as hereinbefore provided the same shall constitute a nullification of said notice to the same effect as if said notice had not been served. In case at any time the Licensee shall be adjudged a bankrupt, then the license hereunder shall immediately be and become canceled and terminated, but the Licensor shall not thereby be prevented from collecting all license fees or royalties accrued hereunder at the time of such termination. The waiver of any breach by either party shall not be interpreted as constituting a waiver of any further breach or breaches. Either party may proceed by action to specifically enforce this contract or any of the terms, conditions and covenants thereof by injunction or in such other manner as may be provided by law.

13. Any notice to be given under the terms hereof may be served by the Licensor or the Licensee by mailing the same to the other party hereto, postage prepaid and registered, addressed to any of its officers at its last 9458 known principal office, and the deposit of any such notice in the United States mails, postage prepaid and so addressed, shall constitute service of notice hereunder. Any telegraphic notice given under paragraph 2 hereof shall be confirmed in writing in the ordinary course of business.

14. It Is Understood and Agreed that if at any time during the term hereof the Licensee shall, in the judgment of the Licensor, suffer substantial detriment by reason of any infringement on the part of any person or persons of any of said letters patent or of any patent that may be granted upon said applications, under which this license is granted, the Licensor will afford the Licensee such reasonable protection as in the judgment of the Licensor shall be necessary or proper.

If a court of last resort upon final appeal or review shall decree all the claims of the patents granted for or upon said Roos and Bayer applications invalid or Licensee shall be permanently enjoined from manufacturing plasterboard and gypsum wallboard, the body or core of which is made according to the process set forth and claimed in said Roos and Bayer applications in such manner that they cannot practice in any way any of the inventions set forth in the said applications, and such injunction shall be made final by a court of last resort upon final appeal or review, then from the time the court of last resort upon final appeal or review shall decree that all the claims of the patents granted or issued for or upon said Roos and Bayer applications are invalid, or make such injunction permanent and final, the license fees or royalties to be paid by Licensee hereunder shall be reduced by one per cent (1%) of said selling price, or if a court of last resort upon final appeal or review shall decree that all the claims of said Haggerty and Hite patents
9459 are invalid or Licensee shall be permanently enjoined from manufacturing plasterboard and gypsum wallboard embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said Haggerty and Hite patents in such manner that they cannot practice in any way any of the inventions set forth in said patents, and such injunction shall be made final by a court of last resort upon final appeal or review, then from the time the court of last resort upon final appeal or review shall decree all claims of said

Haggerty and Hite patents invalid or make said injunction permanent and final, the said license fees or royalties agreed to be paid by Licensee for said Haggerty and Hite patents shall cease and determine.

15. In case Licensor shall, subsequent to the effective date hereof, grant to any other person except Abel Davis and Eugene Holland, receivers of the Universal Gypsum & Lime Co. or their successors or to the said Universal Gypsum & Lime Co., any license under said patents or applications for letters patent set forth in said Exhibit A and paragraph 4 hereof for the manufacture, sale or use of gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard or bundles thereof, embodying the claims or inventions set forth and claimed in said patents or said applications, or shall grant any right under any such license, upon terms more favorable than those granted hereunder to this Licensee, then it will grant to this Licensee a license on the same terms or extend to it the same right granted to any such other person. This paragraph shall not apply to any license granted on or prior to the effective date hereof, nor shall the same apply to the terms of settlement of any claim of Licensor or provisions with respect to the payment thereof, contained in any such license.

9460. 16. The terms "gypsum plasterboard," "gypsum wallboard" and "plasterboard" shall be understood to mean all board made of gypsum, by whatever name called, having the characteristics of gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard, irrespective of the purpose for which the same may be sold or used, and shall include gypsum laths and all other gypsum boards.

17. If at any time after the expiration of two (2) years from January 1, 1930, or such earlier date that Licensee shall make its plant ready to practice the process set forth and claimed in said Roos and Bayer applications in the manufacture of gypsum wallboard or plasterboard, there shall have been invented or come into use any process which shall make the said process of forming a cellular product as set forth and claimed in said Roos and Bayer applications obsolete or shall displace the same, and the Licensor shall in its own manufacture permanently and wholly abandon the use of the subject-matter of the claims of said Roos and Bayer applications, it shall notify Licensee in writing thereof, and Licensee may then, upon thirty (30) days' written notice to Licensor, cancel and terminate this license in so far as the same applies to said Roos and Bayer applications or to the patent or patents granted or issued therefor or thereupon, and from the date of such cancellation the royalties or license fees to be paid by Licensee hereunder shall be reduced by one per cent (1%) of its said selling price; Provided, However, that if Licensor shall not in such event permanently and wholly abandon the use of said process but shall only partially abandon the same, then to the extent or degree and for the term that Licensor shall abandon the same in its own manufacture Licensee shall be relieved from the payment of license fees or royalties to the same extent, that is to say, if Licensor shall in such event manufacture and sell any board the core of which is made of gypsum of a 9461 particular size, kind or make, or for a particular purpose or use, without the use of said process embodied therein, then if Licensee shall manufacture and sell the same board of the same particular size, kind or make for the same purpose or use, without the use of said process embodied therein, then Licensee shall not be required to pay royalties or license fees upon such particular board for the term that Licensor shall manufacture and sell the same. "License fees" and "royalties" for the purpose of this paragraph shall mean one per cent (1%) of said selling price. The use by Licensor of any improvement which Licensee has the right to use as set forth in paragraph 18 hereof, or the manufacture of plasterboard or gypsum wallboard without the use of said process for sale only in foreign countries where Licensor has no patented rights in said process, shall not constitute an abandonment of said process or a partial abandonment thereof within the meaning of this paragraph.

18. If Licensor shall at any time during the existence of this agreement make or obtain any improvement for the formation of the bubble described in process set forth in said Roos and Bayer applications and/or method of its introduction in the core of plasterboard or gypsum wallboard, and which improvement is covered by the claims of said Roos and Bayer applications, and shall itself use the same in its own manufacture, then so long as Licensee shall continue to pay the license fees or royalties hereinbefore stipulated the right, license or privilege herein contained shall be extended to and include the use of said improvement in the manufacture by Licensee of gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard, subject to all of the terms and conditions herein contained, except only that Licensee shall not be required to pay any additional sum, royalty or license fee therefor. It is further understood that if a. patent or patents shall be 9462 granted or issued for or upon said improvement, then all of the provisions of this agreement, as well as the provision of paragraph 2 hereof reserving the right in Licensor to determine and fix at any time and to change from time to time the minimum price or prices at which Licensee shall sell any gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured by Licensee and embodying the claims of said patents, shall apply to improvement set forth and claimed in any patent or patents granted or issued for or upon said improvement. Licensor will promptly notify Licensee of the general adoption by it of any such improvement in its own manufacture, together with such information as it may possess as to the use thereof in the manufacture of plasterboard and gypsum wallboard.

19. Licensee has investigated and fully satisfied itself with respect to the inventions and improvements set forth in said patents and applications for letters patent and the use thereof in its own manufacture, and has executed this agreement without relying upon any representations which may have been made by Licensor with respect thereto. No representations have been made by Licensor not expressly stated in this contract which Licensee shall at any time have any right to rely upon as an inducement for its making this contract or for any result or results to be obtained by Licensee in its own plant by its use of the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in any of said patents or applications for letters patent.

20. The Licensor agrees at any time during the term hereof to extend to Licensee, upon its written request, an indivisible and non-exclusive license or privilege to use the said process or processes set forth and claimed in said Roos or Bayer applications in the manufacture in its said plants of any other gypsum product not specifically covered by this agreement and in which Licen-
9463 sor shall use the same in its own manufacture and to sell the same, upon the payment to Licensor of one per cent (1%) of the selling price of Licensee of all said other gypsum product, whether or not embodying the said process in making the same, manufactured and sold by Licensee and upon the same terms as set forth herein and subject to all of the conditions hereof, in which event in the agreement for the same there shall be substituted for the words "plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard" the name of such other product or products. An agreement containing all of said terms and conditions shall be reduced to writing and signed by both parties before the same shall become effective.

LICENSE AGREEMENT

This agreement, executed in duplicate this 8th day of October, 1929, by and between the United States Gypsum Company, an Illinois corporation, of Chicago, Illinois, hereinafter referred to as a Licensor, and Niagara Gypsum Company, a New York corporation of Oakfield, New York, hereinafter referred to as Licensee, Witnesseth:

Whereas, Licensor is the owner of certain letters patent and applications for letters patent of the United States covering an improved gypsum wallboard and method or process of making the same, together with machines and appliances for the manufacture of such inventions, which with certain other patents are more specifically set forth in Exhibit A attached hereto and made a part hereof; and

Whereas, Licensor was the owner of all of the right, title and interest in and under Letters Patent of the United States, number 1,029,328 and number 1,034,746, known as the Utzman patents, the last of which expired August 6, 1929, which said Utzman Patents were adjudicated by the United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division, and by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit, and were decreed by said courts as valid and having been infringed by the defendants named in said suits; and

Whereas, the Birdsey Patent number 1,358,508, mentioned in said Exhibit A, was adjudicated by the United States District Court for the Northern District of Ohio, and said court decreed that said Birdsey Patent was valid
9470 and infringed by the defendant in said cause by reason of its having made, used and sold plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard with edges of the character disclosed in said patent, and said District Court ordered a perpetual injunction and accounting against defendant, which cause is now pending on appeal before the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit; and

Whereas, Licensor has a substantial claim against Licensee for damages and profits because and on account of an alleged infringement of said patents, and Licensor agreed to grant a license to Licensee under said patents (not including the Roos or Bayer applications and the Haggerty or Hite patents referred to in said Exhibit A) to February 10, 1937, and to settle the same claim in consideration of the payment by the Licensee to Licensor of five per cent (5%) of Licensee's selling price of all plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it until August 6, 1929, and one and one-half per cent (1½%) of such selling price from August 6, 1929, to February 10, 1937, plus three and one-half per cent (3½%) of such selling price from August 6, 1929, until said three and one-half per cent (3½%) of such selling price aggregated the fixed sum of Twenty-seven Thousand Nine Hundred Nineteen Dollars ($27,919.00); and

Whereas, Licensor is the owner of that certain application for United States letters patent filed by Carlisle K. Roos, entitled "Cementitious Material," now pending in the United States Patent Office and covering the process of making a cellular product, which comprises forming a tenacious foam and mixing the foam with a cementitious material, and of certain other applications filed by said
9471 Roos covering specific employment of said invention, and Licensor has heretofore acquired the sole and exclusive rights in the United States of America (when gypsum is used as the main binding material) in that certain application for United States letters patent described in said Exhibit A filed by Erik Christian Bayer, entitled "Methods of Manufacturing Porous Building Materials," and relating to a process broadly similar to that of said first mentioned Roos application, which said Roos and Bayer applications are described and set forth in said Exhibit A; and

Whereas, Licensor has agreed to purchase that certain Haggerty patent number 1,500,452 dated July 8, 1924, and that certain Hite Patent number 1,230,297 dated June 19, 1917, subject to approval of the United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division thereof, and other United States District Courts in receivership proceedings therein pending against the present owner of said patents, both of which said patents are set forth in said Exhibit A; and

Whereas, Licensee desires to include in its manufacture the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in the said Roos and Bayer applications and said Haggerty and Hite patents referred to in said Exhibit A, and to obtain a license from Licensor to make, use and sell the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in all of said patents and applications for letters patent described in said Exhibit A throughout the full term thereof, and Licensor has agreed to grant such a license to Licensee upon the terms and conditions hereinafter stated;

9472 1. Licensor agrees promptly to disclose to Licensee all information and formulae which it now has or may obtain relating to the process of making a cellular product through the formation of a tenacious foam and mixing the foam with a cementitious material, as set forth and claimed in said applications for letters patent filed by Carlisle K. Roos and Erik Christian Bayer, in so far as the same is or may be applied to gypsum, and including all information and formulae for the manufacture of gypsum plasterboard and gypsum wallboard embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said Roos and Bayer applications, together with a description of the machines or appliances which it now has for making the same. It will assist Licensee to make its plant ready for practicing said process in the manufacture of plasterboard and gypsum wallboard by furnishing without cost to Licensee the advice and instruction of Licensor's experts and information with respect to the purchase and cost of said machines and appliances.

2. Licensor has agreed to and does hereby give and grant unto Licensee an indivisible and non-exclusive right, license and privilege of using the process or processes and making and using the machines and/or inventions set forth and claimed in any and all of said patents and/or applications for letters patent set forth in Exhibit A attached hereto in the manufacture of gypsum plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard at the plants or factories now owned and/or operated by Licensee, or at any other plant or factory hereafter owned and/or operated or controlled by it or any subsidiary, associated or affiliated company, and of manufacturing at any such place or places, selling and using in the United States of America and the territories and 9473 possessions thereof gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured at any such place or places and embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said patents and/or applications for letters patent described in said Exhibit A, for the full term of said letters patent or of any letters patent which may be granted for or upon any of said applications, including any extensions and/or reissues thereof.

It is expressly understood and agreed that the indivisible and non-exclusive right, license and privilege aforesaid is granted upon condition that the Licensor shall have and it hereby reserves the right to determine and fix at any time and to change from time to time during the existence of said patents and so long as said license shall continue, the minimum price or prices at which Licensee shall sell any plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured by Licensee by use of any of the machines or appliances covered by any of said letters patent and which shall embody the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in any of said patents which are presently issued, or any of said plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured by second parties and which shall embody the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in either patent number 1,500,452 or patent number 1,230,297, or commencing with the date when a patent shall have been granted or issued for or upon any of the said Roos or Bayer inventions, and/or applications any of said plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured by Licensee, the body or core of which is made according to the process set forth and claimed in any patent granted for or upon any of said Roos or Bayer inventions and/or applications, and in case Licensor shall exercise the right so reserved, it shall first serve written notice of its intention so to do upon Licensee, ac-9474 companied with a statement of the minimum price or prices at which Licensee shall sell said gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard, and thereafter shall give to Licensee written or telegraphic notice of any change in such price or prices, and Licensee expressly covenants and agrees that it will not, so long as this agreement shall continue in force and effect, and after receipt of such notice given in accordance with the terms and conditions hereof, directly or indirectly, sell or offer for sale any gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured by it by use of any of the machines or appliances covered by any of said patents and which during the existence thereof shall embody the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in any of said patents which are presently issued, or any gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured by second parties and which during the existence thereof shall embody the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in either patent number 1,500,452 or patent number 1,230,297, or any gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured by Licensee after a patent shall have issued upon any of the said Roos or Bayer inventions and/or applications and during the existence thereof, the body or core of which is made according to the process set forth and claimed in any patent granted for or upon any of said inventions and/or applications, at a price or prices less than that stated by Licensor in said notice or in any such written or telegraphic notice of a change in such price or prices.

Said minimum price shall not be more than that price at which Licensor determines to sell plasterboard or gypsum wallboard embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said patents to its own like trade in the same market.

9475 3. Licensee agrees to pay to Licensor in settlement and discharge of said claim and for said disclosures, information and assistance and the agreements of Licensor herein contained, and for the right, license and privilege of using the processes and making and using the machines and/or inventions in the manufacture of plasterboard and gypsum wallboard covered by said patents and applications for letters patent described in said Exhibit A, and for the privilege of manufacturing, using and/or selling plasterboard and gypsum wallboard embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said patents and applications for letters patent, an amount (hereinafter for convenience referred to as a license fee or royalty) equivalent to three and one-half per cent (3½%) of the selling price of Licensee of all plasterboard and gypsum wallboard of every kind, whether or not made by the use of said machines and/or embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said letters patent or applications for letters patent, manufactured and sold by Licensee between the date hereof and February 10, 1937, the date of the expiration of patent number 1,330,413 mentioned in said Exhibit A, and thereafter an amount equivalent to two per cent (2%) of the selling price of Licensee of all such plasterboard and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it between February 10, 1937, and July 8, 1941, the date of the expiration of said patent number 1,500,452, and thereafter an amount equivalent to one per cent (1%) of the selling price of Licensee of all such plasterboard and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it between July 8, 1941, and the date of the expiration of the last to expire of any patent granted or issued for or upon any of the said Roos or Bayer applications; Provided,

However, that if no patent shall have been granted or 9476 issued for or upon any of said Roos or Bayer applications covering said process referred to in paragraph 1 hereof, within two (2) years from the date hereof, then commencing with the end of said two (2) year period the said license fees or royalties agreed to be paid by Licensee shall be reduced by one per cent (1%) of Licensee's said selling price until such patent shall have been granted or issued for or upon any of said Roos and Bayer applications, at which time Licensee shall again commence to pay the full amount of said license fees or royalties until the date of the expiration of the last to expire of any such patent or patents. If at the time of the execution of this contract Licensee's plant shall not be equipped to practice the process set forth and claimed in said Roos or Bayer applications in the manufacture of plasterboard or gypsum wallboard, then Licensee shall pay as such license fees or royalties two and one-half per cent (2½%) of said selling price between the date hereof and January 1, 1930, or such earlier date as Licensee shall make its plant ready to practice said process in the manufacture of said board, and the payment of three and one-half per cent (3½%) of said selling price and said period of two (2) years in this paragraph mentioned shall commence on January 1, 1930, or such earlier date as Licensee shall have made its plant ready as aforesaid. The amount of one per cent (1%) of said selling price included in said royalties or license fees is the amount agreed to be paid by Licensee for the use of said Haggerty and Hite patents.

Licensee's selling price shall mean the delivered selling price of Licensee, less freight paid by the customer and less regular cash discounts allowed by Licensee.

In addition to the amounts hereinabove agreed to be paid by Licensee, Licensee, in further consideration of 9477 said license and in settlement of said claim, shall pay to Licensor an amount hereinafter referred to as a license fee or royalty equivalent to one and one-half per cent (1½%) of the selling price of Licensee of all such plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it after the date hereof, and until said one and one-half per cent (1½%) of said selling price shall have aggregated the sum of $27,650.85, being the full amount of said fixed sum which is unpaid up to date hereof. It is understood and agreed that if prior to the expiration of said license granted in paragraph 2 hereof Licensee shall not have paid to Licensor said additional sum of $27,650.85, over and above said other license fees or royalties, then Licensee shall from the date of the expiration of said license pay to Licensor five per cent (5%) of the selling price of Licensee of all plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it until said sum of $27,650.85 shall have been fully paid and satisfied.

It is expressly understood and agreed that this contract is executed without prejudice to Licensor to assert its said claim against Licensee for infringement of its said patents in case for any reason this contract shall not remain in force until February 10, 1937, and Licensee shall not pay to Licensor all of said royalties or license fees agreed to be paid by it up to said last mentioned date, and in addition thereto said one an one-half per cent (1½%) of said selling price until said fixed sum shall have been fully paid in accordance with the terms hereof, and it is further agreed that the claim of Licensor against Licensee for said infringement is not settled or discharged by the execution of this instrument but shall only be settled and discharged by the full performance of this contract by Licensee up to February 10, 1937, and the payment to Licensor of all of said royalties or license fees up to said last mentioned 9478 date, including said one and one-half per cent (1½%) of said selling price until said fixed sum shall have been fully paid. In case of the termination of this contract at any time prior to February 10, 1937, for any reason, or in the event of the failure of Licensee to make full payment to Licensor of all of said royalties or license fees up to said last mentioned date, including said one and one-half per cent (1½%) of said selling price until said fixed sum is fully paid in the manner herein specified, Licensor shall have the same right which it originally had against Licensee before the execution of this agreement or the execution of any license agreement between Licensee and Licensor with respect to any of said patents, to recover of and from Licensee the full amount of its said claim for damages for infringement of its said patents, and nothing herein contained shall prevent the recovery by Licensor of all of its damages for such infringement against Licensee according to the full measure of damages allowed in such cases the same as if this contract or any other license contract made between Licensor and Licensee had never been made, less only such sums as shall have been paid by Licensee to Licensor since the date hereof on account of said additional one and one-half per cent (1½%) of said selling price in reduction of said sum of $27,650.85, in either of which events Licensee shall pay to Licensor the balance of said fixed sum then remaining unpaid in part payment of its said claim for damages, it being understood that in no event shall the recovery from Licensee in such case be less than the amount of said fixed sum then remaining unpaid. Upon the payment to Licensor of all of said royalties or license fees up to February 10, 1937, plus said additional sum of $27,650.85, at the time and in the manner herein specified, then the said claim of Licensor against 9479 Licensee for infringement of its said patents shall thereupon be and become fully settled, discharged and satisfied.

4. It is further agreed that so long as the license provided for in paragraph 2 hereof shall remain in force between the parties hereto, or in case the license granted under paragraph 2 hereof shall expire before the expiration of the patents specifically described in this paragraph, and the said license granted under paragraph 2 shall continue in force between the parties hereto for the full term of the last to expire of any of said patents described in said Exhibit A, or of any patent or patents granted for or upon any application described in said Exhibit A, then until the expiration of the patents specifically described in this paragraph, Licensor does hereby give and grant unto the Licensee an indivisible and non-exclusive right, license and privilege of making and using the inventions set forth and claimed in those certain patents known as the Birdsey Plasterboard Bundle Patent number 1,696,877, dated December 25, 1928, Utzman Patent number 1,724,740, dated August 13, 1929, Birdsey patent number 1,730,113, dated October 1, 1929, and applications for letters patent serial numbers 329,581, filed December 31, 1928, and 296,354, filed July 30, 1928, and any patent which may be granted for or upon said applications, including any extensions and/or reissues thereof, at the plants or factories now owned or operated by Licensee or at any other plant or factory hereafter owned and/or operated and controlled by Licensee or any subsidiary, associated or affiliated company of Licensee, and of selling or using bundles of plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard put up or bundled by Licensee at any such place or places according to the claims set forth and claimed in the said patents and applications for letters patent in this paragraph described, upon the terms and conditions hereinafter stated.

Licensee agrees to pay to Licensor for the right, 9480 license and privilege of making, using or selling the inventions set forth and claimed in said patents and applications in the next preceding paragraph described, in addition to the sums hereinabove set forth, an amount (hereinafter referred to as a license fee or royalty) equivalent to ten cents (10¢) per one thousand (1,000) square feet of plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard which is sold by Licensee in bundles of any kind, whether or not the bundles shall be made according to the claims set forth and claimed in said patents, which said license fee or royalty shall be payable at the times and in accordance with the terms of paragraph 6 hereof. The term "bundle" shall not include unbundled material wired or strapped for purpose of transportation or unbundled material shipped for export or coastwise trade in fiber, wooden or other crates.

5. It is expressly understood and agreed that the license herein granted shall be personal to the Licensee, and that the same or any right herein or thereunder shall not be sold or assigned or transferred without the written consent of Licensor, or transferred by operation of law; Provided, However, that the same may be assigned by Licensee to any company acquiring all the assets and business or all of the capital stock of Licensee, on condition that Licensee shall first obtain an agreement in writing from any such assignee agreeing to assume all of the obligations of Licensee under this agreement and to be bound by all of the terms and conditions hereof and shall deliver such agreement to Licensor.

Licensee agrees not to sell all of its assets and business or all of its capital stock or to transfer and convey its plasterboard and/or wallboard business, or its assets used in connection therewith, without requiring the purchaser or purchasers thereof to assume, in writing, all of the obligations of Licensee hereunder, including the assumption of the claim which Licensor has against Licensee for damages for infringement of its said patents and the agree-9481 ments in settlement and discharge thereof, as in this contract contained, and to agree to be bound by all of the terms and conditions of this contract and deliver such agreement to Licensor.

It is expressly understood that Licensee shall not discontinue its business of manufacturing and selling plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard until Licensor shall have received the full amount of said license fees or royalties agreed to be paid by Licensee hereunder for the use of all of said patents until February 10, 1937, plus the full amount of said sum of $27,650.85 in the manner and upon the payments as hereinabove set forth.

6. Licensee agrees to keep separate, full and accurate books of account and records showing the exact quantity of all plasterboard and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it, as well as a separate record of all plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard sold by it in bundles, and agrees that on or before the twentieth day of each calendar month it will render unto Licensor true written returns, verified under oath by an officer or other agent of Licensee, setting forth the quantity of all plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it during the preceding calendar month and the quantity thereof put up and sold by it in bundles, together with the price or prices at which the same was sold and is to be accounted for hereunder, such written returns to be delivered to Licensor at its office in Chicago, Illinois, and Licensee agrees to pay to licensor on or before the 20th day of each calendar month at the office of Licensor at Chicago, Illinois, the hereinbefore stipulated royalties or license fees which may then be due under this agreement on account of all said plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it and put up and sold by it in bundles during the next preceding calendar month.

paragraph hereof, including all records of every kind showing the quantity of said plasterboard and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it and the quantity therof put up and sold by it in bundles and the price or prices at which the same was sold, and to make copies thereof and memoranda therefrom; Provided, However, that if at the time of any such examination Licensee shall request it in writing, then such examination shall be made by a certified public accountant agreed upon between the parties hereto, in which event the expense thereof shall be borne equally by both parties. If the parties at any time shall not agree upon the certified public accountant to make such examination, then Licensor shall name three certified public accountants of good standing not directly or indirectly employed by it or in any other way connected with it, and if Licensee shall not accept any one of them, then Licensor shall have the right to make such examination itself.

8. Licensee agrees that all plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it embodying the claims of any of said patents and/or applications for letters patent shall be distinctly marked with the words "Patented" and/or "Patent applied for," as the case may be, together with the numbers of any of said patents or applications specified by Licensor, the claims of which may be embodied in said plasterboard or gypsum wallboard, and in connection with said marking Licensee will further mark said board with the words "Licensed under the above letters patent" and/or "Licensed under pending applications for letters patent," as the case may be, which 9483 marking shall be plainly visible. Licensee further agrees that all bundles put up and sold by it embodying the claims of any of said patents numbers 1,696,877, 1,724,740 and 1,730,113 and/or any of said applications serial numbers 329,581 and 296,354 shall be similarly marked together with the numbers of said bundle patents and/or applications.

9. Having regard for the fact that there are or may be certain manufacturers of plaster or gypsum products, jobbers or other wholesale distributors of such products, who do not or may not manufacture gypsum wallboard or plasterboard but who desire or may desire to have gypsum wallboard or plasterboard manufactured for them, it is understood and agreed that Licensee may manufacture for jobbers (being those who do not manufacture but buy and sell plasterboard or gypsum wallboard in straight cars or in mixed cars with other building material and who do not sell at retail) gypsum wallboard or plasterboard embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said letters patent or in any letters patent after the same shall have been issued, granted for or upon any of the said applications and may with the written consent of first party manufacture for any such other manufacturer or other wholesale distributor, gypsum wallboard or plasterboard embodying the said inventions and improvements; Provided, However, that the said license fee or royalty to be paid to Licensor as hereinbefore provided shall be based upon all gypsum wallboard and plasterboard manufactured for and sold and invoiced to such other manufacturer, jobber or wholesale distributor and upon the regular selling price of Licensee of such plasterboard or gypsum wallboard to its regular dealer trade at the time of such sale and invoice, and shall not be based upon the price at which plasterboard or gypsum wallboard is sold and invoiced by Licensee to such other manufacturer, jobber or wholesale distributor. Nothing hereinbefore 9484 contained in this agreement shall be construed to give Licensee the right to manufacture gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in any of said letters patent or in any letters patent after the same shall have been granted for or upon any of said applications for said other manufacturers or wholesale distributors and to sell the same, without the written consent of Licensor.

10. Licensee covenants and agrees that all of said gypsum plasterboard and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in any of said Letters Patent or Patents issued upon any of said applications and commonly known in the trade as "seconds" shall be plainly invoiced as "seconds" and shall be plainly marked with a visible red stamp or label firmly fixed on each of said boards showing the word "seconds" in letters at least three inches in height.

11. As one of the considerations for the indivisible and non-exclusive license herein and hereby granted, Licensee hereby acknowledges the validity of said letters patent or of any letters patent which may be granted or issued for or upon said applications, forming the subject-matter of said license so long as said license shall remain in full force and effect, and agrees that it will not at any time during the existence of said license, directly or indirectly, by itself, through or together with another or others, contest the validity of either or any of said letters patent or the title thereto of Licensor.

12. In the event that either party shall at any time neglect, fail or refuse to keep or perform any of the conditions or agreements herein to be kept by it and 9485 performed, then the other party, at its election, may serve upon the party in default written notice of intention to terminate this license, which notice shall specify the alleged neglect, failure or refusal, and if within thirty (30) days from the date of delivery of said notice the party in default shall not cure the default specified in said notice, then the other party may cancel and terminate this agreement by notifying the party in default in writing of its election so to do, without the necessity of any court action; Provided, However, that neither party shall be relieved thereby from any liability accrued at the time of such termination; and Provided Further, that if the party upon whom said notice is served shall deny that it is in default in whole or in part, as specified therein, then the party serving such notice shall not be privileged to cancel this contract on account of the alleged default specified therein, provided the party upon whom said notice shall have been served shall within said thirty (30) day period perform the agreements and submit the question to arbitration, as in this paragraph hereinafter set forth. In case of any such denial the party upon whom the notice shall have been served shall within said thirty (30) day period state in writing to the other party wherein and in what respect it denies the default specified in said notice and shall at the same time make good any default specified therein which it does not deny and appoint in writing one person as arbiter to arbitrate the question of whether or not it is in default in respect to that which it shall have denied as aforesaid, it being understood, however, that if the question shall be with respect to the amount of royalties or license fees to be paid hereunder, then the Licensee shall first pay or offer to pay the amount of such license fees or royalties which it then admits is due and payable in

waiver of any of its rights hereunder or of any claim it may have made in any notice served by it upon Licensee. The party so serving said notice shall, after the other party shall have made good any default specified in said notice which it did not deny in writing as aforesaid, including the payment of royalties or license fees, if any, admitted by it to be due and payable hereunder, and within ten (10) days from the date of the appointment of said first arbiter in accordance with the terms hereof, appoint in writing another person as arbiter, and the two persons so appointed shall within ten (10) days or as soon as possible thereafter appoint in writing a third person as arbiter. The three persons so appointed shall, within thirty (30) days from the date of the appointment of said last mentioned arbiter, or as soon as possible thereafter, decide whether or not the party upon whom said notice has been served is in default hereunder with respect to anything contained in said notice. The decision of a majority of the three arbiters so appointed shall constitute a final settlement of the said question and be binding and conclusive upon both the Licensor and the Licensee, and if it shall have been determined by a majority of the said arbiters that the party upon whom said notice was served is in default with respect to anything contained in said notice and the party so found to have been in default shall fail or refuse to comply with the terms of the award or finding made by said arbiters within thirty (30) days from the date such award or finding shall have been made, the party serving said notice may at its election terminate and cancel this agreement in writing. In the event of default hereunder by either party and notice of such default is served by the other party as herein provided; and after service of such notice the party 9487 in default shall cure the same as hereinbefore provided, the same shall constitute a nullification of said notice to the same effect as if said notice had not been served. In case at any time the Licensee shall be adjudged a bankrupt; then the License hereunder shall immediately be and become canceled and terminated, but the Licensor shall not thereby be prevented from collecting all license fees or royalties accrued hereunder at the time of such termination. The waiver of any breach by either party shall not be interpreted as constituting a waiver of any further breach or breaches. Either party may proceed by action to specifically enforce this contract or any of the terms, conditions and covenants thereof by injunction or in such other manner as may be provided by law.

13. Any notice to be given under the terms hereof may be served by the Licensor or the Licensee by mailing the same to the other party hereto, postage prepaid and registered, addressed to any of its officers at its last known principal office, and the deposit of any such notice in the United States mails, postage prepaid and so addressed, shall constitute service of notice hereunder. Any telegraphic notice given under paragraph 2 hereof shall be confirmed in writing in the ordinary course of business.

14. It is understood and agreed that if at any time during the term hereof the Licensee shall, in the judgment of the Licensor, suffer substantial detriment by reason of any infringement on the part of any person or persons of any of said letters patent or of any patent that may be granted upon said applications, under which this license is granted, the Licensor will afford the Licensee such reasonable protection as in the judgment of the Licensor shall be necessary or proper.

If a court of last resort upon final appeal or review
9488 shall decree all the claims of the patents granted for or upon said Roos and Bayer applications invalid or Licensee ~~shall~~ be permanently enjoined from manufacturing plasterboard and gypsum wallboard, the body or core of which is made according to the process set forth and claimed in said Roos and Bayer applications in such manner that they cannot practice in any way any of the inventions set forth in the said applications, and such injunction shall be made final by a court of last resort upon final appeal or review, then from the time the court of last resort upon final appeal or review shall decree that all the claims of the patents granted or issued for or upon said Roos and Bayer applications are invalid, or make such injunction permanent and final, the license fees or royalties to be paid by Licensee hereunder shall be reduced by one per cent (1%) of said selling price, or if a court of last resort upon final appeal or review shall decree that all the claims of said Haggerty and Hite patents are invalid or Licensee shall be permanently enjoined from manufacturing plasterboard and gypsum wallboard embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said Haggerty and Hite patents in such manner that they cannot practice in any way any of the inventions set forth in said patents, and such injunction shall be made final by a court of last resort upon final appeal or review, then from the time the court of last resort upon final appeal or review shall decree all claims of said Haggerty and Hite patents invalid or make said injunction permanent and final, the said license fees or royalties agreed to be paid by Licensee for said Haggerty and Hite patents shall cease and determine.

15. In case Licensor shall, subsequent to the effective date hereof, grant to any other person except Abel
9489 Davis and Eugene Holland, receivers of the Universal Gypsum & Lime Co. or their successors or to the said Universal Gypsum & Lime Co., any license under said patents or applications for letters patent set forth in said Exhibit A and paragraph 4 hereof for the manufacture, sale or use of gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard or bundles thereof, embodying the claims or inventions set forth and claimed in said patents or said applications, or shall grant any right under any such license, upon terms more favorable than those granted hereunder to this Licensee, then it will grant to this Licensee a license on the same terms or extend to it the same right granted to any such other person. This paragraph shall not apply to any license granted on or prior to the effective date hereof, nor shall the same apply to the terms of settlement of any claim of Licensor or provisions with respect to the payment thereof, contained in any such license.

16. The terms "gypsum plasterboard," "gypsum wallboard" and "plasterboard" shall be understood to mean all board made of gypsum, by whatever name called, having the characteristics of gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard, irrespective of the purpose for which the same may be sold or used, and shall include gypsum laths and all other gypsum boards.

17. If at any time after the expiration of two (2) years from January 1, 1930, or such earlier date that Licensee shall make its plant ready to practice the process set forth and claimed in said Roos and Bayer applications in the manufacture of gypsum wallboard or plasterboard, there shall have been invented or come into use any process which shall make the said process of forming a cellular product as set forth and claimed in said Roos and Bayer ap-9490 plications obsolete or shall displace the same, and the Licensor shall in its own manufacture permanently and wholly abandon the use of the subject-matter of the claims of said Roos and Bayer applications, it shall notify Licensee in writing thereof, and Licensee may then, upon thirty (30) days' written notice to Licensor, cancel and terminate this License in so far as the same applies to said Roos and Bayer applications or to the patent or patents granted or issued therefor or thereupon, and from the date of such cancellation the royalties or license fees to be paid by Licensee hereunder shall be reduced by one per cent (1%) of its said selling price; Provided, However, that if Licensor shall not in such event permanently and wholly abandon the use of said process but shall only partially abandon the same, then to the extent or degree and for the term that Licensor shall abandon the same in its own manufacture Licensee shall be relieved from the payment of license fees or royalties to the same extent, that is to say, if Licensor shall in such event manufacture and sell any board the core of which is made of gypsum of a particular size, kind or make, or for a particular purpose or use, without the use of said process embodied therein, then if Licensee shall manufacture and sell the same board of the same particular size, kind or make and for the same purpose or use, within the use of said process embodied therein, then Licensee shall not be required to pay royalties or license fees upon such particular board for the term that Licensor shall manufacture and sell the same. "License fees" and "royalties" for the purpose of this paragraph shall mean one per cent (1%) of said selling price. The use by Licensor of any improvement which Licensee has the right to use as set forth in paragraph 18 hereof, or the manufacture of plasterboard or gypsum wallboard without the use of said process for sale only in foreign countries where Licensor has no patented rights in said process, shall not constitute an abandonment of said process or a partial abandonment thereof within the meaning of this paragraph.

18. If Licensor shall at any time during the existence of this agreement make or obtain any improvement for the formation of the bubble described in the process set forth in said Roos and Bayer applications and/or method of its introduction in the core of plasterboard or gypsum wallboard, and which improvement is covered by the claims of said Roos and Bayer applications, and shall itself use the same in its own manufacture, then so long as Licensee shall continue to pay the license fees or royalties hereinbefore stipulated, the right, license or privilege herein contained shall be extended to and include the use of said improvement in the manufacture by Licensee of gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard, subject to all of the terms and conditions herein contained, except only that Licensee shall not be required to pay any additional sum, royalty or license fee therefor. It is further understood that if a patent or patents shall be granted or issued for or upon said improvement, then all of the provisions of this agreement, as well as the provision of paragraph 2 hereof reserving the right in Licensor to determine and fix at any time and to change from time to time the minimum price or prices at which Licensee shall sell any gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured by Licensee and embodying the claims of said patents, shall apply to the improvement set forth and claimed in any patent or patents granted or issued for or upon said improvement. Licensor 9492 will promptly notify Licensee of the general adoption by it of any such improvement in its own manufacture together with such information as it may possess as to the use thereof in the manufacture of plasterboard and gypsum wallboard.

19. Licensee has investigated and fully satisfied itself with respect to the inventions and improvements set forth in said patents and applications for letters patent and the use thereof in its own manufacture, and has executed this agreement without relying upon any representations which may have been made by Licensor with respect thereto. No representations have been made by Licensor not expressly stated in this contract which Licensee shall at any time have any right to rely upon as an inducement for its making this contract or for any result or results to be obtained by Licensee in its own plant by its use of the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in any of said patents or applications for letters patent.

20. The Licensor agrees at any time during the term hereof to extend to Licensee, upon its written request, an indivisible and non-exclusive license or privilege to use the said process or processes set forth and claimed in said Roos or Bayer applications in the manufacture in its said plants of any other gypsum product not specifically covered by this agreement and in which Licensor shall use the same in its own manufacture and to sell the same. upon the payment to Licensor of one per cent (1%) of the selling price of Licensee of all of said other gypsum product, whether or not embodying the said process in making the same, manufactured and sold by Licensee and upon the 9493 same terms as set forth herein and subject to all of the conditions hereof, in which event in the agreement for the same there shall be substituted for the words "plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard" the name of such other product or products. An agreement containing all of said terms and conditions shall be reduced to writing and signed by both parties before the same shall become effective.

21. From the date this contract shall become effective the same shall supersede all prior license agreements at any time made between the parties hereto relating to the subject-matter hereof or relating to any of the patents or applications for letters patent referred to in this agreement; Provided, However, that Licensor shall not be barred or prevented from recovering any claim which may have accrued under any such prior license agreements prior to the time this contract shall become effective, including all payments, royalties or license fees agreed to be paid thereunder by Licensee up to the date this agreement shall go into effect.

22. This license and all of the covenants and agreements hereof shall become effective upon the date Licensor shall receive a conveyance and assignment of said Haggerty and Hite patents to it, pursuant to authority granted by the United States District Court to the receivers of the Universal Gypsum & Lime Co., a Delaware corporation, and to said company, to sell and assign said Haggerty and Hite patents to Licensor, and from the effective date thereof this license and all of the covenants and agreements hereof shall be binding upon and inure to the benefit of the successors and assigns of the parties hereto, but nothing
9494 in this paragraph shall be construed to permit an assignment hereof by Licensee, except as hereinabove specifically provided.

LICENSE AGREEMENT

This agreement, executed in duplicate this 25th day of November, 1929, by and between the United States Gypsum Company, an Illinois corporation, of Chicago, Illinois, hereinafter referred to as Licensor, and The American Gypsum Company, an Ohio corporation of Port Clinton, Ohio, hereinafter referred to as Licensee, witnesseth:

Whereas, Licensor is the owner of certain letters patent and applications for letters patent of the United States covering an improved gypsum wallboard and method or process of making the same, together with machines and appliances for the manufacture of said inventions, including among them the Haggerty and Hite patents and the Roos and Bayer applications hereinafter referred to, all of which said patents and applications for letters patent are more specifically set forth in Exhibit A attached hereto and made a part hereof; and

Whereas, Licensor was the owner of all of the right, title and interest in and under Letters Patent of the United States, number 1,029,328 and number 1,034,746, known as the Utzman patents, the last of which expired August 6, 1929, which said Utzman Patents were adjudicated by the United States District Court for the Northern District of

Illinois, Eastern Division, and by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit, and were decreed by said courts as valid and having been infringed by the defendants named in said suits; and

Whereas, the Birdsey Patent number 1,358,508, mentioned in said Exhibit A, was adjudicated by the United States District Court for the Northern District of Ohio, 9500 and said court decreed that said Birdsey Patent was valid and infringed by the Licensee in said cause by reason of its having made, used and sold plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard with edges of the character disclosed in said patent, and said District Court ordered a perpetual injunction and accounting against defendant, which cause is now pending on appeal before the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit; and

Whereas, Licensor has a substantial claim against Licensee for damages and profits because and on account of said alleged infringement; and

Whereas, Licensor is the owner of that certain application for United States letters patent filed by Carlisle K. Roos, entitled "Cementitious Material," now pending in the United States Patent Office and covering the process of making a cellular product, which comprises forming a tenacious foam and mixing the foam with a cementitious material, and of certain other applications filed by said Roos covering specific employment of said inventions, and Licensor has heretofore acquired the sole and exclusive rights in the United States of America (when gypsum is used as the main binding material) in that certain application for United States letters patent described in said Exhibit A filed by Erik Christian Bayer, entitled "Methods of Manufacturing Porous Building Materials," and relating to a process broadly similar to that of said first mentioned Roos application, which said Roos and Bayer applications are described and set forth in said Exhibit A; and

Whereas, Licensee desires to include in its manufacture the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said Roos and Bayer applications and in those two certain patents known as the Haggerty and Hite patents referred to in said Exhibit A and to obtain a license from Licensor to make, use and sell the inventions and improve-9501 ments set forth and claimed in all of said patents and applications for letters patent described in said Exhibit A throughout the full term thereof and Licensor has agreed to grant such a license to Licensee upon the terms and conditions hereinafter stated;

Now, therefore, in consideration of the sum of One Dollar and other good and valuable considerations, the receipt whereof is hereby acknowledged from each party to the other party, and in consideration of the mutual covenants and agreements hereinafter contained, the parties hereto do hereby agree as follows, to-wit:

1. Licensor agrees promptly to disclose to Licensee all information and formulae which it now has or may obtain relating to the process of making a cellular product through the formation of a tenacious foam and mixing the foam with a cementitious material, as set forth and claimed in said applications for letters patent filed by Carlisle K. Roos and Erik Christian Bayer, in so far as the same is or may be applied to gypsum, and including all information and formulae for the manufacture of gypsum plasterboard and gypsum wallboard embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said Roos and Bayer applications, together with a description of the machines or appliances which it now has for making the same. It will assist Licensee to make its plant ready for practicing said process in the manufacture of plasterboard and gypsum wallboard by furnishing without cost to Licensee the advice and instruction of Licensor's experts and information with respect to the purchase and cost of said machines and appliances.

2. Licensor has agreed to and does hereby give and grant unto Licensee an indivisible and non-exclusive right, license and privilege of using the process or processes and making and using the machines and/or inventions set forth and claimed in any and all of said patents and/or applications for letters patent set forth in Exhibit A attached hereto
in the manufacture of gypsum plasterboard and/or 9502 gypsum wallboard at the plants or factories now owned and/or operated by Licensee, or at any other plant or factory hereafter owned and/or operated or controlled by it or any subsidiary, associated or affiliated company, and of manufacturing at any such place or places, selling and using in the United States of America and the territories and possessions thereof gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured at any such place or places and embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said patents and/or applications for letters patent described in said Exhibit A, for the full term of said letters patent or of any letters patent which may be granted for or upon any of said applications, including any extensions and/or reissues thereof.

It is expressly understood and agreed that the indivisible and non-exclusive right, license and privilege aforesaid is granted upon condition that the Licensor shall have and it hereby reserves the right to determine and fix at any time and to change from time to time during the existence of said patents and so long as said license shall continue, the minimum price or prices at which Licensee shall sell any plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured by Licensee by use of any of the machines or appliances covered by any of said letters patent and which shall embody the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in any of said patents which are presently issued, or any of said plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured by second parties and which shall embody the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in either patent number 1,500,452 or patent number 1,230,297, or commencing with the date when a patent shall have been granted or issued for or upon any of the said Roos or Bayer inventions and/or applications any of said plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured by Licensee, the body or 9503 core of which is made according to the process set forth and claimed in any patent granted for or upon any of said Roos or Bayer inventions and/or applications, and in case Licensor shall exercise the right so reserved, it shall first serve written notice of its intention so to do upon Licensee, accompanied with a statement of the minimum price or prices at which Licensee shall sell said gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard, and thereafter shall give to Licensee written or telegraphic notice of any change in such price or prices, and Licensee expressly covenants and agrees that it will not, so long as this agreement shall continue in force and effect and after receipt of such notice given in accordance with the terms and conditions hereof, directly or indirectly, sell or offer for sale any gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured by it by use of any of the machines or appliances covered by any of said patents and which during the existence thereof shall embody the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in any of said patents which are presently issued, or any gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured by second parties and which during the existence thereof shall embody the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in either patent number 1,500,452 or patent number 1,230,297, or any gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured by Licensee after a patent shall have issued upon any of the said Roos or Bayer inventions and/or applications and during the existence thereof, the body or core of which is made according to the process set forth and claimed in any patent granted for or upon any of said inventions and/or applications, at a price or prices less than that stated by Licensor in said 9504 notice or in any such written or telegraphic notice of a change in such price or prices.

Said minimum price shall not be more than that price at which Licensor determines to sell plasterboard or gypsum wallboard embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said patents to its own like trade in the same market.

3. Licensee agrees to pay to Licensor in settlement and discharge of said claim and for said disclosures, information and assistance and the agreements of Licensor herein contained, and for the right, license and privilege of using the processes and making and using the machines and/or inventions in the manufacture of plasterboard and gypsum wallboard covered by said patents and applications for letters patent described in said Exhibit A, and for the privilege of manufacturing, using and/or selling plasterboard and gypsum wallboard embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said patents and applications for letters patent, an amount (hereinafter for convenience referred to as a license fee or royalty) equivalent to three and one-half per cent (3½%) of the selling price of Licensee of all plasterboard and gypsum wallboard of every kind, whether or not made by the use of said machines and/or embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said letters patent or applications for letters patent, manufactured and sold by Licensee between the date hereof and February 10, 1937, the date of the expiration of patent number 1,330,413 mentioned in said Exhibit A, and thereafter an amount equivalent to two per cent (2%) of the selling price of Licensee of all such plasterboard and gypsum wallboard manufactured and 9505 sold by it between February 10, 1937, and July 8, 1941, the date of the expiration of said patent number 1,500,452, and thereafter an amount equivalent to one per cent (1%) of the selling price of Licensee of all such plasterboard and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it between July 8, 1941, and the date of the expiration of the last to expire of any patent granted or issued for or upon any of the said Roos or Bayer applications; Provided, However, that if no patent shall have been granted or issued for or upon any of said Roos or Bayer applications covering said process referred to in paragraph 1 hereof, within two (2) years from the date hereof, then commencing with the end of said two (2) year period the said license fees or royalties agreed to be paid by Licensee shall be reduced by one per cent (1%) of Licensee's said selling price until such patent shall have been granted or issued for or upon any of said Roos and Bayer applications, at which time Licensee shall again commence to pay the full amount of said license fees or royalties until the date of the expiration of the last to expire of any such patent or patents. If at the time of the execution of this contract Licensee's plant shall not be equipped to practice the process set forth and claimed in said Roos or Bayer applications in the manufacture of plasterboard or gypsum wallboard, then Licensee shall pay as such license fees or royalties two and one-half per cent (2½%) of said selling price between the date hereof and January 1, 1930, or such earlier date as Licensee shall make its plant ready to practice said process in the manufacture of said board, and the payment of three and one-half per cent (3½%) of said selling price and said period of two (2) years in this paragraph mentioned shall commence on January 1, 1930, or such 9506 earlier date as Licensee shall have made its plant ready as aforesaid. The amount of one per cent (1%) of said selling price included in said royalties or license fees in the amount agreed to be paid by Licensee for the use of said Haggerty and Hite patents.

Licensee's selling price shall mean the delivered selling price of Licensee, less freight paid by the customer and less regular cash discounts allowed by Licensee.

In addition to the amounts hereinbefore agreed to be paid by Licensee, Licensee, in further consideration of said license, and in settlement of said claim, shall pay to Licensor an amount hereinafter referred to as a license fee or royalty equivalent to one and one-half per cent (1½%) of the selling price of Licensee of all such plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it after the date hereof and until said one and one-half per cent (1½%) of said selling price shall have aggregated the fixed sum hereinafter in this paragraph set forth. It is understood and agreed that if prior to the expiration of said license granted in paragraph 2 hereof Licensee shall not have paid to Licensor the said fixed sum over and above said other license fees or royalties, then Licensee shall from the date of the expiration of said license pay to Licensor five per cent (5%) of the selling price of Licensee of all plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it until said fixed sum shall have been fully paid and satisfied. The fixed sum mentioned in this paragraph shall mean an amount of money to be determined as follows: Within thirty (30) days from the date hereof Licensor's auditor, or, if Licensee requests it, then a certified public accountant not otherwise employed by Licensor, shall make an audit of Licensee's books as to the quantity and 9507 prices of plasterboard and gypsum wallboard of all kinds sold by Licensee between the 29th day of July, 1926, and the date hereof, and shall make a certified report thereof. A sum equivalent to five per cent (5%) of Licensee's selling price of all plasterboard and gypsum wallboard of all kinds sold by Licensee between the 29th day of July, 1926, and the date hereof, as shown by said report of audit, shall be the principal sum, to which principal sum there shall be added the sum of Fifty Thousand Dollars ($50,000.00) as compensation for infringement of patents prior to July 29, 1926. The said principal sum plus said sum of Fifty Thousand Dollars ($50,000.00) shall be the amount herein referred to as said fixed sum and the term "fixed sum" wherever used herein shall mean the said principal sum plus said sum of Fifty Thousand Dollars ($50,000.00). If a certified public accountant is employed to make said audit, then the expense thereof shall be borne by Licensee.

It is expressly understood and agreed that this contract is executed without prejudice to Licensor to assert its said claim against Licensee for infringement of its said patents in case for any reason this contract shall not remain in force until February 10, 1937, and Licensee shall not pay to Licensor all of said royalties or license fees agreed to be paid by it up to said last mentioned date, and in addition thereto said one and one-half per cent (1½%) of said selling price until said fixed sum shall have been fully paid in accordance with the terms hereof, and it is further agreed that the claim of Licensor against Licensee for said infringement is not settled or discharged by the execution of this instrument but shall only be settled and discharged

by the full performance of this contract by Licensee up to February 10, 1937, and the payment to Licensor of all of said royalties or license fees up to said last mentioned date, including said additional one and one-half per cent
9508 (1½%) of said selling price until said fixed sum shall have been fully paid. In case of the termination of this contract at any time prior to February 10, 1937, for any reason, or in the event of the failure of Licensee to make full payment to Licensor of all of said royalties or license fees up to said last mentioned date, including said one and one-half per cent (1½%) of said selling price until said fixed sum is fully paid in the manner herein specified, Licensor shall have the same right which it originally had against Licensee before the execution of this agreement or the execution of any license agreement between Licensee and Licensor with respect to any of said patents, to recover of and from Licensee the full amount of its said claim for damages for infringement of its said patents, and nothing herein contained shall prevent the recovery by Licensor of all of its damages for such infringement against Licensee according to the full measure of damages allowed in such cases the same as if this contract had never been made, less only such sums as shall have been paid by Licensee to Licensor since the date hereof on account of said additional one and one-half per cent (1½%) of said selling price in reduction of said fixed sum, in either of which events Licensee shall pay to Licensor the balance of said fixed sum then remaining unpaid in part payment of its said claim for damages, it being understood that in no event shall the recovery from Licensee in such case be less than the amount of said fixed sum then remaining unpaid. Upon the payment to Licensor of all of said royalties or license fees up to February 10, 1937, plus said fixed sum at the time and in the manner herein specified, then the said claim of Licensor against Licensee for infringement of its said patents shall thereupon be and become fully settled, discharged and satisfied.

4. It is further agreed that so long as the license
9509 provided for in paragraph 2 hereof shall remain in force between the parties hereto, or in case the license granted under paragraph 2 hereof shall expire before the expiration of the patents specifically described in this paragraph, and the said license granted under paragraph 2 shall continue in force between the parties hereto for the full term of the last to expire of any of said patents described in said Exhibit A, or of any patent or patents granted for or upon any applications described in said Exhibit A, then until the expiration of the patents specifically described in this paragraph, Licensor does hereby give and grant unto the Licensee an indivisible and non-exclusive right, license and privilege of making and using the inventions set forth and claimed in those certain patents known as the Birdsey Plasterboard Bundle Patent number 1,696,877, dated December 25, 1928, Utzman Patent number 1,724,740 dated August 13, 1929, Birdsey Patent number 1,730,113 dated October 1, 1929, and applications for letters patent serial numbers 329,581 filed December 31, 1928, and 296,354 filed July 30, 1928, and any patent which may be granted for or upon said applications, including any extensions and/or reissues thereof, at the plants or factories now owned or operated by Licensee or at any other plant or factory hereafter owned and/or operated and controlled by Licensee or any subsidiary, associated or affiliated company of Licensee, and of selling or using bundles of plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard put up or bundled by Licensee at any such place or places according to the claims set forth and claimed in the said patents and applications for letters patent in this paragraph described, upon the terms and conditions hereinafter stated.

Licensee agrees to pay to Licensor for the right, license and privilege of making, using or selling the inventions set forth and claimed in said patents and applications in the next preceding paragraph described, in addition to the sums hereinabove set forth, an amount (hereinafter referred to as a license fee or royalty) equivalent to ten cents (10¢) per one thousand (1,000) square feet of plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard which is sold by Licensee in bundles of any kind, whether or not the bundles shall be made according to the claims set forth and claimed in said patents, which said license fee or royalty shall be payable at the times and in accordance with the terms of paragraph 6 hereof. The term "bundle" shall not include unbundled material wired or strapped for purpose of transportation or unbundled material shipped for export or coastwise trade in fiber, wooden or other crates.

5. It is expressly understood and agreed that the license herein granted shall be personal to the Licensee, and that the same or any right herein or thereunder shall not be sold or assigned or transferred without the written consent of Licensor, or transferred by operation of law; Provided, However, that the same may be assigned by Licensee to any company acquiring all the assets and business or all of the capital stock of Licensee, on condition that Licensee shall first obtain an agreement in writing from any such assignee agreeing to assume all of the obligations of Licensee under this agreement and to be bound by all of the terms and conditions hereof and shall deliver such agreement to Licensor. Licensee agrees not to sell all of its assets and business or all of its capital stock or to transfer and convey its plasterboard and/or wallboard business, or its assets used in connection therewith, without requiring the purchaser or purchasers thereof to assume, in writing, all of the obligations of Licensee hereunder, including the assumption of the claim which Licensor has against Licensee for damages for infringement of its said patents and the agreements in settlement and discharge thereof, as in this contract contained, and to agree to be bound 9511 . by all of the terms and conditions of this contract, and deliver such agreement to Licensor.

It is expressly understood that Licensee shall not discontinue its business of manufacturing and selling plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard until Licensor shall have received the full amount of said license fees or royalties agreed to be paid by Licensee hereunder for the use of all of said patents until February 10, 1937, plus the full payment of said fixed sum in the manner and upon the payments as hereinabove set forth.

6. Licensee agrees to keep separate, full and accurate books of account and records showing the exact quantity of all plasterboard and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it, as well as a separate record of all plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard sold by it in bundles, and agrees that on or before the twentieth day of each calendar month, it will render unto Licensor true written returns verified under oath by an officer or other agent of Licensee, setting forth the quantity of all plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it during the preceding calendar month and the quantity thereof put up and sold by it in bundles, together with the price or prices at which the same was sold and is to be accounted for hereunder, such written returns to be delivered to Licensor at its office in Chicago, Illinois, and Licensee agrees to pay to Licensor on or before the 20th day of each calendar month at the office of Licensor at Chicago, Illinois, the hereinbefore stipulated royalties or license fees which may then be due under this agreement on account of all said plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it and put up and sold by it in bundles during the next preceding calendar month.

7. Licensor, or its duly authorized representative, shall have the right at all reasonable times during business hours to inspect the books of account and records of Licensee referred to in the next preceding paragraph hereof, including all records of every kind showing the quantity of said plasterboard and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it and the quantity thereof put up and sold by it in bundles and the price or prices at which the same was sold, and to make copies thereof and memoranda therefrom; Provided, However, that if at the time of any such examination Licensee shall request it in writing, then such examination shall be made by a certified public accountant agreed upon between the parties hereto, in which event the expense thereof shall be borne equally by both parties. If the parties at any such time shall not agree upon the certified public accountant to make such examination, then Licensor shall name three certified public accountants of good standing not directly or indirectly employed by it or in any other way connected with it, and if Licensee shall not accept any one of them, then Licensor shall have the right to make such examination itself.

8. Licensee agrees that all plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it embodying the claims of any of said patents and/or applications for letters patent shall be distinctly marked with the words "Patented" and/or "Patent Applied for," as the case may be, together with the numbers of any of said patents or applications specified by Licensor, the claims of which may be embodied in said plasterboard or gypsum wallboard, and in connection with said marking Licensee will further mark said board with the words "Licensed Under the Above Letters Patent" and/or "Licensed Under Pending Applications for Letters Patent," as the case may be, which marking shall be plainly visible. Licensee further agrees that all bundles put up and sold by it embodying the claims of any of said patents numbers 1,696,877, 1,724,740 and 1,730,113 and/or any of said applications serial numbers 329,581 and 296,354 shall be similarly marked together with the numbers of said bundle patents and/or applications.

9514 and claimed in any of said letters patent or in any letters patent after the same shall have been granted for or upon of said applications for said other manufacturers or wholesale distributors and to sell the same, without the written consent of Licensor.

10. Licensee covenants and agrees that all of said gypsum plasterboard and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in any of said letters patent or patents issued upon any of said applications and commonly known in the trade as "Seconds" shall be plainly invoiced as "Seconds" and shall be plainly marked with a visible red stamp or label firmly fixed on each of said boards showing the word "Seconds" in letters at least three inches in height.

11. As one of the considerations for the indivisible and non-exclusive license herein and hereby granted, Licensee hereby acknowledges the validity of said letters patent or of any letters patent which may be granted or issued for or upon said applications, forming the subject-matter of said license so long as said license shall remain in full force and effect, and agrees that it will not at any time during the existence of said license, directly or indirectly, by itself, through or together with another or others, contest the validity of either or any of said letters patent or the title thereto of Licensor.

12. In the event that either party shall at any time neglect, fail or refuse to keep or perform any of the conditions or agreements herein to be kept by it and performed, then the other party, at its election, may serve upon the 9515 party in default written notice of intention to terminate this license, which notice shall specify the alleged neglect, failure or refusal, and if within thirty (30) days from the date of delivery of said notice the party in default shall not cure the default specified in said notice, then the other party may cancel and terminate this agreement by notifying the party in default in writing of its election so to do, without the necessity of any court action; Provided, however, that neither party shall be relieved thereby from any liability accrued at the time of such termination; and Provided Further, that if the party upon whom said notice is served shall deny that it is in default in whole or in part, as specified therein, then the party serving such notice shall not be privileged to cancel this contract on account of the alleged default specified therein, provided the party upon whom said notice shall have been served shall within said thirty (30) day period perform the agreements and submit the question to arbitration, as in this paragraph hereinafter set forth. In case of any such denial the party upon whom the notice shall have been served shall within said thirty (30) day period state in writing to the other party wherein and in what respect it denies the default specified in said notice and shall at the same time make good any default specified therein which it does not deny, and appoint in writing one person as arbiter to arbitrate the question of whether or not it is in default in respect to that which it shall have denied as aforesaid, it being understood, however, that if the question shall be with respect to the amount of royalties or license fees to be paid hereunder, then the Licensee shall

9516 fees or royalties which it then admits is due and payable in accordance with the terms hereof, and the acceptance thereof by the Licensor shall not operate as a waiver of any of its rights hereunder or of any claim it may have made in any notice served by it upon Licensee. The party so serving said notice shall, after the other party shall have made good any default specified in such notice which it did not deny in writing as aforesaid, including the payment of royalties or license fees, if any, admitted by it to be due and payable hereunder, and within ten (10) days from the date of the appointment of said first arbiter in accordance with the terms hereof, appoint in writing another person as arbiter, and the two persons so appointed shall within ten (10) days or as soon as possible thereafter appoint in writing a third person as arbiter. The three persons so appointed shall, within thirty (30) days from the date of the appointment of said last mentioned arbiter, or as soon as possible thereafter, decided whether or not the party upon whom said notice has been served is in default hereunder with respect to anything contained in said notice. The decision of a majority of the three arbiters so appointed shall constitute a final settlement of the said question and be binding and conclusive upon both the Licensor and the Licensee, and if it shall have been determined by a majority of the said arbiters that the party upon whom said notice was served is in default with respect to anything contained in said notice and the party
so found to have been in default shall fail or refuse 9517 to comply with the terms of the award or finding made by said arbiters within thirty (30) days from the date such award or finding shall have been made, the party serving said notice may at its election terminate and cancel this agreement in writing. In the event of default hereunder by either party and notice of such default is served by the other party as herein provided, and after service of such notice the party in default shall cure the same as hereinbefore provided the same shall constitute a nullification of said notice to the same effect as if said notice had not been served. In case at any time the Licensee shall be adjudged a bankrupt, the license hereunder shall immediately be and become canceled and terminated, but the Licensor shall not thereby be prevented from collecting all license fees or royalties accrued hereunder at the time of such termination. The waiver of any breach by either party shall not be interpreted as constituting a waiver of any further breach or breaches. Either party may proceed by action to specifically enforce this contract or any of the terms, conditions and covenants thereof by injunction or in such other manner as may be provided by law.

13. Any notice to be given under the terms hereof may be served by the Licensor or the Licensee by mailing the same to the other party hereto, postage prepaid and registered, addressed to any of its officers at its last known principal office, and the deposit of any such notice in the United States mails, postage prepaid and so addressed, shall constitute service of notice hereunder. Any telegraphic notice given under paragraph 2 hereof shall be confirmed in writing in the ordinary course of business.

14. It is understood and agreed that if at any time during the term hereof the Licensee shall, in the judgment of the Licensor, suffer substantial detriment by reason 9518 of any infringement on the part of any person or persons of any of said letters patent or of any patent that may be granted upon said applications, under which this license is granted, the Licensor will afford the Licensee such reasonable protection as in the judgment of the Licensor shall be necessary or proper.

If a court of last resort upon final appeal or review shall decree all the claims of the patents granted for or upon said Roos and Bayer applications invalid or Licensee shall be permanently enjoined from manufacturing plasterboard and gypsum wallboard, the body or core of which is made according to the process set forth and claimed in said Roos and Bayer applications in such manner that they cannot practice in any way any of the inventions set forth in the said applications, and such injunction shall be made final by a court of last resort upon final appeal or review, then from the time the court of last resort upon final appeal on review shall decree that all the claims of the patents granted or issued for or upon said Roos and Bayer applications are invalid or make such injunction permanent and final, the license fees or royalties to be paid by Licensee hereunder shall be reduced by one per cent (1%) of said selling price, or if a court of last resort upon final appeal or review shall decree that all the claims of said Haggerty and Hite patents are invalid or Licensee shall be permanently enjoined from manufacturing plasterboard and gypsum wallboard embodying the inventions and improvements

set forth and claimed in said Haggerty and Hite patents in such manner that they cannot practice in any way any of the inventions set forth in said patents, and such injunction shall be made final by a court of last resort upon final appeal or review, then from the time the court of last resort upon final appeal or review shall decree all claims of said Haggerty and Hite patents invalid or make said injunction permanent and final, the said license fees or royalties agreed to be paid by Licensee for said Haggerty 9519 and Hite patents shall cease and determine.

15. In case Licensor shall, subsequent to the effective date hereof, grant to any other person except Abel Davis and Eugene Holland, receivers of the Universal Gypsum & Lime Co. or their successors or to the said Universal Gypsum & Lime Co., any license under said patents or applications for letters patent set forth in said Exhibit A and paragraph 4 hereof for the manufacture, sale or use of gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard or bundles thereof, embodying the claims or inventions set forth and claimed in said patents or said applications, or shall grant any right under any such license, upon terms more favorable than those granted hereunder to this Licensee, then it will grant to this Licensee a license on the same terms or extend to it the same right granted to any such other person. This paragraph shall not apply to any license granted on or prior to the effective date hereof, nor shall the same apply to the terms of settlement of any claim of Licensor or provisions with respect to the payment thereof, contained in any such license.

16. The terms "gypsum plasterboard," "gypsum wallboard" and "plasterboard" shall be understood to mean all board made of gypsum, by whatever name called, having the characteristics of gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard, irrespective of the purpose for which the same may be sold or used, and shall include gypsum laths and all other gypsum boards.

17. If at any time after the expiration of two (2) years from January 1, 1930, or such earlier date that Licensee shall make its plant ready to practice the process set forth and claimed in said Roos and Bayer applications in the manufacture of gypsum wallboard or plasterboard, there shall have been invented or come into use any process which shall make the said process of forming a cellular product as set forth and claimed in said Roos and 9520 Bayer applications obsolete or shall displace the same, and the Licensor shall in its own manufacture permanently and wholly abandon the use of the subject-matter of the claims of said Roos and Bayer applications, it shall notify Licensee in writing thereof, and Licensee may then, upon thirty (30) days' written notice to Licensor, cancel and terminate this license in so far as the same applies to said Roos and Bayer applications or to the patent or patents granted or issued therefor or thereupon, and from the date of such cancellation the royalties or license fees to be paid by Licensee hereunder shall be reduced by one per cent (1%) of its said selling price; Provided, however, that if Licensor shall not in such event permanently and wholly abandon the use of said process but shall only partially abandon the same, then to the extent or degree and for the term that Licensor shall abandon the same in its own manufacture Licensee shall be relieved from the payment of license fees or royalties to the same exfent, that is to say, if Licensor shall in such event manufacture and sell any board the core of which is made of gypsum of a particular size, kind or make, or for a particular purpose or use, without the use of said process embodied therein, then if Licensee shall manufacture and sell the same board of the same particular size, kind or make and for the same purpose or use, without the use of said process embodied therein, then Licensee shall not be required to pay royalties or license fees upon such particular board for the term that Licensor shall manufacture and sell the same. "License fees" and "royalties" for the purpose of this paragraph shall mean one per cent (1%) of said selling price. The use by Licensor of any improvement which Licensee has the right to use as set forth in paragraph 18 hereof, or the manufacture of plasterboard or gypsum wallboard without the use of said process for sale only in foreign countries where Licensor has no

9521 patented rights in said process, shall not constitute an abandonment of said process or a partial abandonment thereof within the meaning of this paragraph.

18. If Licensor shall at any time during the existence of this agreement make or obtain any improvement for the formation of the bubble described in the process set forth in said Roos and Bayer applications and/or method of its introduction in the core of plasterboard or gypsum wallboard, and which improvement is covered by the claims of said Roos and Bayer applications, and shall itself use the same in its own manufacture, then so long as Licensee shall continue to pay the license fees or royalties hereinbefore stipulated the right, license or privilege herein contained shall be extended to and include the use of said improvement in the manufacture by Licensee of gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard, subject to all of the terms and conditions herein contained, except only that Licensee shall not be required to pay any additional sum, royalty or license fee therefor. It is further understood that if a patent or patents shall be granted or issued for or upon said improvement, then all of the provisions of this agreement, as well as the provision of paragraph 2 hereof reserving the right in Licensor to determine and fix at any time and to change from time to time the minimum price or prices at which Licensee shall sell any gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured by Licensee and embodying the claims of said patents, shall apply to the improvement set forth and claimed in any patent or patents granted or issued for or upon said improvement. Licensor will promptly notify Licensee of the general adoption by it of any such improvement in its own manufacture, together with such information as it may possess as to the use thereof in the manufacture of plasterboard and gypsum wallboard.

9522 19. Licensee has investigated and fully satisfied itself with respect to the inventions and improvements set forth in said patents and applications for letters patent and the use thereof in its own manufacture, and has executed this agreement without relying upon any representations which may have been made by Licensor with respect thereto. No representations have been made by Licensor not expressly stated in this contract which Licensee shall at any time have any right to rely upon as an inducement for its making this contract or for any result or results to be obtained by Licensee in its own plant by its use of the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in any of said patents or applications for letters patent.

20. The Licensor agrees at any time during the term hereof to extend to Licensee, upon its written request, an indivisible and non-exclusive license or privilege to use the said process or processes set forth and claimed in said Roos or Bayer applications in the manufacture in its said plants of any other gypsum product not specifically covered by this agreement and in which Licensor shall use the same in its own manufacture and to sell the same, upon the payment to Licensor of one per cent (1%) of the selling price of Licensee of all of said other gypsum product, whether or not embodying the said process in making the same, manufactured and sold by Licensee and upon the same terms as set forth herein and subject to all of the conditions hereof, in which event in the agreement for the same there shall be substituted for the words "plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard" the name of such other product or products. An agreement containing all of said terms and conditions shall be reduced to writing and signed by both parties before the same shall become effective.

21. This license and all of the covenants and agree-
9523 ments hereof shall be binding upon and inure to the benefit of the successors and assigns of the parties hereto, but nothing in this paragraph shall be construed to permit an assignment hereof by Licensee, except as hereinabove specifically provided.

Now, therefore, in consideration of the premises and the complete cancellation of all the capital stock of the Grantor (consisting of 4,000 shares of preferred stock of the par value of $100 each and 4,697 shares of common stock of the par value of $100 each) IT IS COVENANTED AND AGREED by and between the parties hereto as follows:

1. For value received the Grantor has sold, conveyed, assigned, transferred, set over and delivered, and by these presents does sell, convey, assign, transfer, set over and deliver, to the Grantee, all the assets, business, good will, effects and property of the Grantor, real, personal and mixed, tangible and intangible, of every kind, nature and description and wheresoever situate, including particularly but not exclusively any and all property of every kind, nature and description held in trust by or in the possession of any other person, persons or corporation whatsoever, for the benefit of the Grantor or in which the Grantor has any right, claim or interest of any kind, directly or indirectly, to be the absolute property forever of the Grantee, and including particularly but not exclusively all the right, title and interest of the Grantor in and to the license granted to the Grantor in and by the license agreement between United States Gypsum Company, an Illinois corporation, and the Grantor, dated November 25, 1929.

9529 2. The Grantor at any time and from time to time upon the request of the Grantee shall forthwith execute and deliver such instruments of assignment, transfer, conveyance, endorsement, direction or authorization, as will be sufficient, requisite or advisable to vest in the Grantee the full and complete absolute legal and equitable title in and to all assets, business, good will, effects and property sold and transferred or intended to be sold and transferred hereunder, it being understood, however, that this agreement shall be, and the same is hereby declared to be, in all respects sufficient to, and the same does hereby, sell, convey, transfer, assign and set over unto the Grantee, full, absolute and complete title in and to all assets, business, good will, effects and property of the Grantor; provided that nothing in this paragraph contained shall be deemed to prevent the dissolution of the Grantor at any time in accordance with the laws of the State of Ohio.

3. The Grantee hereby agrees to assume all the liabilities of the Grantor as shown on its balance sheet of even date herewith and hereby agrees to assume all of the obligations of the Grantor as Licensee under its above mentioned agreement with United States Gypsum Company, and hereby assumes the claim which said United States Gypsum Company has against the Grantor for damages for infringement of said United States Gypsum Company's patents and the agreements in settlement and discharge thereof as in said agreement contained, and agrees to be bound by all of the terms and conditions of said agreement between said United States Gypsum Company and the Grantor.

LICENSE AGREEMENT

This Agreement made this 23rd day of April, A. D. 1930, by and between the United States Gypsum Company, an Illinois corporation of Chicago, Illinois, hereinafter referred to as Licensor, and the Kelley Plasterboard Company, Inc., a New Jersey corporation of Delawanna, New Jersey, hereinafter referred to as Licensee, Witnesseth, That

Whereas, Licensor is the owner of certain letters patent and applications for letters patent of the United States covering an improved gypsum wallboard and method or process of making the same, together with machines and appliances for the manufacture of such inventions which, with certain other patents, are more specifically set forth in Exhibit A attached hereto and made a part hereof; and

Whereas, Licensor was the owner of all of the right, title and interest in and under letters patent of the United States number 1,029,328 and number 1,034,746 known as the Utzman Patents, the last of which expired August 6, 1929, which said Utzman Patents were adjudicated by the United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division, and by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit, and were decreed by said courts as valid and having been infringed by the defendants named in said suits; and

Whereas, Birdsey Patent number 1,358,508, mentioned in said Exhibit A, was decreed by the United States District Court for the Northern District of Ohio as valid and 9536 infringed by the defendant in said cause by reason of its having made, used and sold plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard with edges of the character disclosed in said patent, and said District Court ordered a perpetual injunction and accounting against defendant, which cause is now pending on appeal before the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit; and

Whereas, Licensor is the owner of a new process disclosed in that certain application for United States letters patent filed by Carlisle K. Roos, entitled "Cementitious Material," now pending in the United States Patent Office and covering the process of making a cellular product, which comprises forming a tenacious foam and mixing the foam with a cementitious material, and of certain other applications filed by said Roos covering specific employment of said invention, and Licensor has heretofore aquired the sole and exclusive rights in the United States of America (when gypsum is used as the main binding material) in that certain application for United States letters patent described in Exhibit A filed by Erik Christian Bayer, entitled "Methods of Manufacturing Porous Building Materials," and relating to a process broadly similar to that of said first mentioned Roos application, which said Roos and Bayer applications are described and set forth in said Exhibit A; and

Whereas, Licensee desires to manufacture gypsum wallboard or gypsum plasterboard by the use of the machines or according to the processes or embodying the claims of said patents and applications for letters patent set forth in said Exhibit A, including the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said Roos and Bayer applications and said Haggerty and Hite patents men-9537 tioned therein, and to obtain a license from Licensor to make, use and sell the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in all of said patents and applications for letters patent set forth in said Exhibit A throughout the full term thereof; and

Whereas, Licensor has agreed to grant a license to said Licensee and to make certain disclosures as to the said Roos and Bayer applications referred to in said Exhibit A upon the terms and conditions hereinafter stated;

Now, Therefore, in consideration of the sum of One Dollar and other good and valuable considerations, the receipt whereof is hereby acknowledged from each party to the other party, and in consideration of the mutual covenants and agreements hereinafter contained, the parties hereto do hereby agree as follows, to-wit:

1. Licensor agrees promptly to disclose to Licensee all information and formulae which it now has or may obtain relating to the process of making a cellular product through the formation of a tenacious foam and mixing the foam with a cementitious material, as set forth and claimed in said applications for letters patent filed by Carlisle K. Roos and Erik Christian Bayer, in so far as the same is or may be applied to gypsum, and including all information and formulae for the manufacture of gypsum plasterboard and gypusm wallboard embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said Roos and Bayer applications, together with a description of the machines or appliances which it now has for making the same. It will assist Licensee to make its plant ready for practicing said process in the manufacture of plasterboard and gypsum wallboard by furnishing without cost to 9538 Licensee the advice and instruction of Licensor's experts and information with respect to the purchase and cost of said machines and appliances.

2. Licensor has agreed to and does hereby give and grant unto Licensee an indivisible and non-exclusive right, license and privilege of using the process or processes and making and using the machines and/or inventions set forth and claimed in any and all of said patents and/or applications for letters patent set forth in Exhibit A attached hereto in the manufacture of gypsum plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard at the plants or factories now owned and/or operated by Licensee, or at any other plant or factory hereafter owned and/or operated or controlled by it or any subsidiary, associated, or affiliated company, and of manufacturing at any such place or places, selling and using the United States of America and the territories and possessions thereof gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured at any such place or places and embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said patents and/or applications for letters patent described in said Exhibit A, for the full term of said letters patent or of any letters patent which may be granted for or upon any of said applications, including any extensions and/or reissues thereof.

It Is Expressly Understood and Agreed that the indivisible and non-exclusive right, license and privilege aforesaid is granted upon condition that the Licensor shall have and it hereby reserves the right to determine and fix at any time and to change from time to time during the existence of said patents and so long as said license shall continue, the minimum price or prices at which Licensee shall sell any plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured by Licensee by use of any of the machines
9539 or appliances covered by any of said letters patent and which shall embody the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in any of said patents which are presently issued, or any of said plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured by second parties and which shall embody the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in either patent number 1,500,452 or patent number 1,230,297; or commencing with the date when a patent shall have been granted or issued for or upon any of the said Roos or Bayer inventions and/or applications any of said plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured by Licensee, the body or core of which is made according to the process set forth and claimed in any patent granted r or upon any of said Roos or Bayer inventions and/or applications, and in case Licensor shall exercise the right so reserved, it shall first serve written notice of its intention so to do upon Licensee, accompanied with a statement of the minimum price or prices at which Licensee shall sell said gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard, and thereafter shall give to Licensee written or telegraphic notice of any change in such price or prices, and Licensee expressly covenants and agrees that it will not, so long as

this agreement shall continue in force and effect and after receipt of such notice given in accordance with the terms and conditions hereof, directly or indirectly, sell or offer for sale any gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured by it by use of any of the machines or appliances covered by any of said patents and which during the existence thereof shall embody the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in any of said patents which are presently issued, or any gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured by said Licensee and which during the existence thereof shall embody the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in 9540 either patent number 1,500,452 or patent number 1,230,297, or any gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured by Licensee after a patent shall have issued upon any of the said Roos or Bayer inventions and/or applications and during the existence thereof, the body or core of which is made according to the process set forth and claimed in any patent granted for or upon any of said inventions and/or applications, at a price or prices less than that stated by Licensor in said notice or in any such written or telegraphic notice of a change in such price or prices.

Said minimum price shall not be more than that price at which Licensor determines to sell plasterboard or gypsum wallboard embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said patents to its own like trade in the same market.

3. Licensee agrees to pay to Licensor for said disclosures, information and assistance and the agreements of Licensor herein contained, and for the right, license and privilege of using the processes and making and using the machines and/or inventions in the manufacture of plasterboard and gypsum wallboard covered by said patents and applications for letters patent described in said Exhibit A, and for the privilege of manufacturing, using and/or selling plasterboard and gypsum wallboard embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said patents and applications for letters patent, an amount (hereinafter for convenience referred to as a license fee or royalty) equivalent to three and one-half per cent (3½%) of the selling price of Licensee of all plasterboard and gypsum wallboard of every kind, whether or not made by the use of said machines and/or embodying the inventions and improvements set 9541 forth and claimed in said letters patent or applications for letters patent, manufactured and sold by Licensee between the date hereof and February 10, 1937, the date of the expiration of patent number 1,330,413 mentioned in said Exhibit A, and thereafter an amount equivalent to two per cent (2%) of the selling price of Licensee of all such plasterboard and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it between February 10, 1937, and July 8, 1941, the date of the expiration of said patent number 1,500,453, and thereafter an amount equivalent to one per cent (1%) of the selling price of Licensee of all such plasterboard and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it between July 8, 1941, and the date of the expiration of the last to expire of any patent granted or issued for or upon any of the said Roos or Bayer applications; Provided, However, that if no patent shall have been granted or issued for or upon any of said Roos or Bayer applications covering said process referred to in paragraph 1 hereof, within two (2) years from the date hereof, then commencing with the end of said two (2) year period the said license fees or royalties agreed to be paid by Licensee shall be reduced by one per cent (1%) of Licensee's said selling price until such patent shall have been granted or issued for or upon any of said Roos and Bayer applications, at which time Licensee shall again commence to pay the full amount of said license fees or royalties until the date of the expiration of the last to expire of any such patent or patents. The amount of one per cent (1%) of said selling price included in said royalties or license fees is the amount agreed to be paid by Licensee for the use of said Haggerty and Hite patents.

Licensee's selling price shall mean the delivered selling price of Licensee, less freight paid by the customer and less regular cash discounts allowed by Licensee.

9542 4. It is further agreed that so long as the license provided for in paragraph 2 hereof shall remain in force between the parties hereto, or in case the license granted under paragraph 2 hereof shall expire before the expiration of the patents specifically described in this paragraph, and the said license granted under paragraph 2 shall continue in force between the parties hereto for the full term of the last to expire of any of said patents described in said Exhibit A, or of any patent or patents granted for or upon any application described in said

Exhibit A, then until the expiration of the patents specifically described in this paragraph, Licensor does hereby give and grant unto the Licensee an indivisible and non-exclusive right, license and privilege of making and using the inventions set forth and claimed in those certain patents known as the Birdsey Plasterboard Bundle Patent number 1,696,877, dated December 25, 1928, Utzman Patent number 1,724,740 dated August 13, 1929, Birdsey Patent number 1,730,113 dated October 1, 1929, and applications for letters patent serial numbers 329,581 filed December 31, 1928, and 296,354 filed July 30, 1928, and any patent which may be granted for or upon said applications, including any extensions and/or reissues thereof, at the plants or factories now owned or operated by Licensee or at any other plant or factory hereafter owned and/or operated and controlled by Licensee or any subsidiary, associated or affiliated company of Licensee, and of selling or using bundles of plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard put up or bundled by Licensee at any such place or places according to the claims set forth and claimed in the said patents and applications for letters patent in this paragraph described, upon the terms and conditions hereinafter stated.

Licensee agrees to pay to Licensor for the right, 9543 license and privilege of making, using or selling the inventions set forth and claimed in said patents and applications in the next preceding paragraph described, in addition to the sums hereinabove set forth an amount (hereinafter referred to as a license fee or royalty) equivalent to ten cents (10¢) per one thousand (1,000) square feet of plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard which is sold by Licensee in bundles of any kind, whether or not the bundles shall be made according to the claims set forth and claimed in said patents, which said license fee or royalty shall be payable at the times and in accordance with the terms of paragraph 6 hereof. The term "bundle" shall not include unbundled material wired or strapped for purpose of transportation or unbundled material shipped for export or coastwise trade in fiber, wooden or other crates.

5. It Is Expressly Understood and Agreed that the license herein granted shall be personal to the Licensee, and that the same or any right herein or thereunder shall not be sold or assigned or transferred without the written consent of Licensor, or transferred by operation of law:

Provided, However, that the same may be assigned by Licensee to any company acquiring all the assets and business or all of the capital stock of Licensee, on condition that Licensee shall first obtain an agreement in writing from any such assignee agreeing to assume all of the obligations of Licensee under this agreement and to be bound by all of the terms and conditions hereof and shall deliver such agreement to Licensor. Licensee agrees not to sell all of its assets and business or all of its capital stock or to transfer and convey its plasterboard and/or wallboard business, or its assets used in connection therewith, without requiring the purchaser or purchasers thereof to assume, in writing, all of the obligations of 9544 Licensee hereunder, and to agree to be bound by all of the terms and conditions of this contract, and deliver such agreement to Licensor.

6. Licensee agrees to keep separate full and accurate books of account and records showing the exact quantity of all plasterboard and gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it, as well as a separate record of all plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard sold by it in bundles, and agrees that on or before the twentieth day of each calendar month it will render unto Licensor true written returns verified under oath by an officer or other agent of Licensee, setting forth the quantity of all plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it during the preceding calendar month and the quantity thereof put up and sold by it in bundles, together with the price or prices at which the same was sold and is to be accounted for hereunder, such written returns to be delivered to Licensor at its office in Chicago, Illinois, and Licensee agrees to pay to Licensor on or before the 20th day of each calendar month at the office of Licensor at Chicago, Illinois, the hereinbefore stipulated royalties or license fees which may then be due under this agreement on account of all said plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it and put up and sold by it in bundles during the next preceding calendar month.

7. Licensor, or its duly authorized representative, shall have the right at all reasonable times during business hours to inspect the books of account and records of Licensee referred to in the next preceding paragraph hereof, including all records of every kind showing the quantity of said plasterboard and gypsum wallboard

manufactured and sold by it and the quantity thereof put up and sold by it in bundles and the price or prices at which the same was sold, and to make copies thereof and memoranda therefrom; Provided, However, that 9545 if at the time of any such examination Licensee shall request it in writing, then such examination shall be made by a certified public accountant agreed upon between the parties hereto, in which event the expense thereof shall be borne equally by both parties. If the parties at any such time shall not agree upon the certified public accountant to make such examination, then Licensor shall name three certified public accountants of good standing not directly or indirectly employed by it or in any other way connected with it, and if Licensee shall not accept any one of them, then Licensor shall have the right to make such examination itself.

8. Licensee agrees that all plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured and sold by it embodying the claims of any of said patents and/or applications for letters patent shall be distinctly marked with the word "Patented" and/or "Patent Applied for," as the case may be, together with the numbers of any of said patents or applications specified by Licensor, the claims of which may be embodied in said plasterboard or gypsum wallboard, and in connection with said marking Licensee will further mark said board with the words "Licensed Under the Above Letters Patent" and/or "Licensed Under Pending Applications for Letters Patent," as the case may be, which marking shall be plainly visible. Licensee further agrees that all bundles put up and sold by it embodying the claims of any of said patents numbers 1,696,877; 1,724,470 and 1,730,113 and/or any of said applications serial numbers 329,581 and 296,354 shall be similarly marked together with the numbers of said bundle patents and/or applications.

9546 board or plasterboard but who desire or may desire to have gypsum wallboard or plasterboard manufactured for them; It Is Understood and Agreed that Licensee may, with the written consent of Licensor, manufacture for jobbers (being those who do not manufacture but buy and sell plasterboard or gypsum wallboard in straight cars or in mixed cars with other building material and who do not sell at retail) gypsum wallboard or plasterboard embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said letters patent or in any letters patent after the same shall have been issued, granted for or upon any of the said applications and may, with the written consent of Licensor, manufacture for any such other manufacturer or other wholesale distributor, gypsum wallboard or plasterboard embodying the said inventions and improvements; Provided, However, that the said license fee or royalty to be paid to Licensor as hereinbefore provided shall be based upon all gypsum wallboard and plasterboard manufactured for and sold and invoiced to such other manufacturer, jobber or wholesale distributor and upon the regular selling price of Licensee of such plasterboard or gypsum wallboard to its regular dealer trade at the time of such sale and invoice; and shall not be based upon the price at which plasterboard or gypsum wallboard is sold and invoiced by Licensee to such other manufacturer, jobber or wholesale distributor. Nothing hereinbefore contained in this agreement shall be construed to give Licensee the right to manufacture gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in any of said letters patent or in any letters patent after the same shall have been granted for or upon any of said applications for any such jobber, manufacturer or wholesale distributor, or to sell the same, without the written consent of Licensor.

10. Licensee covenants and agrees that all of said gypsum plasterboard and gypsum wallboard manu-9547 factured and sold by it embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in any of said letters patent or patents issued upon any of said applications and commonly known in the trade as "Seconds" shall be plainly invoiced as "Seconds" and shall be plainly marked with a visible red stamp or label firmly fixed on each of said boards showing the word "Seconds" in letters at least three inches in height.

11. As one of the considerations for the indivisible and non-exclusive license herein and hereby granted, Licensee hereby acknowledges the validity of said letters patent or of any letters patent which may be granted or issued for or upon said applications, forming the subject-matter of said license so long as said license shall remain in full force and effect, and agrees that it will not at any time during the existence of said license, directly or indirectly, by itself, through or together with another or others, contest the validity of either or any of said letters patent or the title thereto of Licensor.

12. In the event that either party shall at any time neglect, fail or refuse to keep or perform any of the conditions or agreements herein to be kept by it and performed, then the other party, at its election, may serve upon the party in default written notice of intention to terminate this license, which notice shall specify the alleged neglect, failure or refusal, and if within thirty (30) days from the date of delivery of said notice the party in default shall not cure the default specified in said notice, then the other party may cancel and terminate this agreement by notifying the party in default in writing of its election so to do, without the necessity of any court action; Provided, However, that neither party shall be relieved thereby from any liability accrued at the time of such termination; and Provided, Further, that 9548 if the party upon whom said notice is served shall deny that it is in default in whole or in part, as specified therein, then the party serving such notice shall not be privileged to cancel this contract on account of the alleged default specified therein, provided the party upon whom said notice shall have been served shall within said thirty (30) day period perform the agreements and submit the question to arbitration, as in this paragraph hereinafter set forth. In case of any such denial the party upon whom the notice shall have been served shall within said thirty (30) day period state in writing to the other party wherein and in what respect it denies the default specified in said notice and shall at the same time make good any default specified therein which it does not deny and appoint in writing one person as arbiter to arbitrate the question of whether or not it is in default in respect to that which it shall have denied as aforesaid, it being understood, however, that if the question shall be with respect to the amount of royalties or license fees to be paid hereunder, then the Licensee shall first pay or offer to pay the amount of such license fees or royalties which it then admits is due and payable in accordance with the terms hereof, and the acceptance thereof by the Licensor shall not operate as a waiver of any of its rights hereunder or of any claim it may have made in any notice served by it upon Licensee. The party so serving said notice shall, after the other party shall have made good any default specified in said notice which it did not deny in writing as aforesaid, including the payment of royalties or license fees, if any, admitted by it to be due and payable hereunder, and within ten (10) days from the date of the appointment of said first arbiter in accordance with the terms hereof, appoint in writing another person as arbiter, and the two persons so 9549 appointed shall within ten (10) days or as soon as possible thereafter appoint in writing a third person as arbiter. The three persons so appointed shall, within thirty (30) days from the date of the appointment of said last mentioned arbiter, or as soon as possible thereafter, decide whether or not the party upon whom said notice has been served is in default hereunder with respect to anything contained in said notice. The decision of a majority of the three arbiters so appointed shall constitute a final settlement of the said question and be binding and conclusive upon both the Licensor and the Licensee, and if it shall have been determined by a majority of the said arbiters that the party upon whom said notice was served is in default with respect to anything contained in said notice and the party so found to have been in default shall fail or refuse to comply with the terms of the award or finding made by said arbiters within thirty (30) days from the date such award or finding shall have been made, the party serving said notice may at its election terminate and cancel this agreement in writing. In the event of default hereunder by either party and notice of such default is served by the other party as herein provided, and after service of such notice the party in default shall cure the same as hereinbefore provided the same shall constitute a nullification of said notice to the same effect as if said notice had not been served. In case at any time the Licensee shall be adjudged a bankrupt, then the license hereunder shall immediately be and become cancelled and terminated, but the Licensor shall not thereby be prevented from collecting all license fees or royalties accrued hereunder at the time of such termination. The waiver of any breach by either party shall not be interpreted as constituting a waiver of any further breach or conditions and covenants thereof by injunction or in such other manner as may be provided by law.

13. Any notice to be given under the terms hereof may be served by the Licensor or the Licensee by mailing the same to the other party hereto, postage prepaid and registered, addressed to any of its officers at its last known principal office, and the deposit of any such notice in the United States mails, postage prepaid and so addressed, shall constitute service of notice hereunder. Any telegraphic notice given under paragraph 2 hereof shall be confirmed in writing in the ordinary course of business.

14. It is understood and agreed that if at any time during the term hereof the Licensee shall, in the judgment of the Licensor, suffer substantial detriment by reason of any infringement on the part of any person or persons of any of said letters patent or of any patent that may be granted upon said applications, under which this license is granted, the Licensor will afford the Licensee such reasonable protection as in the judgment of the Licensor shall be necessary or proper.

If a court of last resort upon final appeal or review shall decree all the claims of the patents granted for or upon said Roos and Bayer applications invalid or Licensee shall be permanently enjoined from manufacturing plasterboard and gypsum wallboard, the body or core of which is made according to the process set forth and claimed in said Roos and Bayer applications in such manner that they cannot practice in any way any of the inventions set forth in the said applications, and such injunction shall be made final by a court of last re-9551 sort upon final appeal or review, then from the time the court of last resort upon final appeal or review shall decree that all the claims of the patents granted or issued for or upon said Roos and Bayer applications are invalid, or make such injunction permanent and final, the license fees or royalties to be paid by Licensee hereunder shall be reduced by one per cent (1%) of said selling price, or if a court of last resort upon final appeal or review shall decree that all the claims of said Haggerty and Hite patents are invalid or Licensee shall be permanently enjoined from manufacturing plasterboard and gypsum wallboard embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said Haggerty and Hite patents in such manner that they cannot practice in any way any of the inventions set forth in said patents, and such injunction shall be made final by a court of last resort upon final appeal or review, then from the time the court of last resort upon final appeal or review shall decree all claims of said Haggerty and Hite patents invalid or make said injunction permanent and final, the said license fees or royalties agreed to be paid by Licensee for said Haggerty and Hite patents shall cease and determine.

15. In case Licensor shall, subsequent to the effective date hereof, grant to any other person except Abel Davis and Eugene Holland, receivers of the Universal Gypsum & Lime Co. or their successors or to the said Universal Gypsum & Lime Co., any license under said patents or applications for letters patent set forth in said Exhibit A and paragraph 4 hereof for the manufacture, sale or use of gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard or bundles thereof, embodying the claims or inventions set forth and claimed in said patents or said applications, or shall grant any right under any such license, 9552 upon terms more favorable than those granted hereunder to this Licensee, then it will grant to this Licensee a license on the same terms or extend to it the same right granted to any such other person. This paragraph shall not apply to any license granted on or prior to the effective date hereof, nor shall the same apply to the terms of settlement of any claim of Licensor or provisions with respect to the payment thereof, contained in any such license.

16. The terms "gypsum plasterboard," "gypsum wallboard" and "plasterboard" shall be understood to mean all board made of gypsum, by whatever name called, having the characteristics of gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard, irrespective of the purpose for which the same may be sold or used, and shall include gypsum laths and all other gypsum boards.

17. If at any time after the expiration of two (2) years from the date hereof, there shall have been invented or come into use any process which shall make the said process of forming a cellular product as set forth and claimed in said Roos and Bayer applications obsolete or shall displace the same, and the Licensor shall in its own manufacture permanently and wholly abandon the use of the subject-matter of the claims of said Roos and

Bayer applications, it shall notify Licensee in writing thereof, and Licensee may then, upon thirty (30) days' written notice to Licensor, cancel and terminate this license in so far as the same applies to said Roos and Bayer applications or to the patent or patents granted or issued therefor or thereupon, and from the date of such cancellation the royalties or license fees to be paid by Licensee hereunder shall be reduced by one per cent (1%) of its said selling price; Provided, However, that if Licensor shall not in such event permanently and wholly abandon the use of said process but shall only partially abandon the same, then to the extent or degree and for the term that Licensor shall abandon the same in its own manufacture Licensee shall be relieved from the payment of license fees or royalties to the same extent, that is to say, if Licensor shall in such event manufacture and sell any board the core of which is made of gypsum of a particular size, kind or make, or for a particular purpose or use, without the use of said process embodied therein, then if Licensee shall manufacture and sell the same board of the same particular size, kind or make and for the same purpose or use, without the use of said process embodied therein, then Licensee shall not be required to pay royalties or license fees upon such particular board for the term that Licensor shall manufacture and sell the same. "License fees" and "royalties" for the purpose of this paragraph shall mean one per cent (1%) of said selling price. The use by Licensor of any improvement which Licensee has the right to use as set forth in paragraph 18 hereof, or the manufacture of plasterboard or gypsum wallboard without the use of said process for sale only in foreign countries where Licensor has no patented rights in said process, shall not constitute an abandonment of said process or a partial abandonment thereof within the meaning of this paragraph.

18. If Licensor shall at any time during the existence of this agreement make or obtain any improvement for the formation of the bubble described in the process set forth in said Roos and Bayer applications and/or method of its introduction in the core of plasterboard or gypsum wallboard, and which improvement is covered by the claims of said Roos and Bayer applications and shall itself use the same in its own manufacture, then so long as Licensee shall continue to pay the license fees or royalties hereinbefore stipulated the right, license or privilege herein contained shall be extended to and include the use of said improvement in the manufacture by Licensee of gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard, subject to all of the terms and conditions herein contained, except only that Licensee shall not be required to pay any additional sum, royalty or license fee therefor. It is further understood that if a patent or patents shall be granted or issued for or upon said improvement, then all of the provisions of this agreement, as well as the provision of paragraph 2 hereof reserving the right in Licensor to determine and fix at any time and to change from time to time the minimum price or prices at which Licensee shall sell any gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard manufactured by Licensee and embodying the claims of said patents, shall apply to the improvement set forth and claimed in any patent or patents granted or issued for or upon said improvement. Licensor will promptly notify Licensee of the general adoption by it of any such improvement in its own manufacture, together with such information as it may possess as to the use thereof in the manufacture of plasterboard and gypsum wallboard.

19. Licensee has investigated and fully satisfied itself with respect to the inventions and improvements set forth in said patents and applications for letters patent and the use thereof in its own manufacture, and has executed this agreement without relying upon any representations which may have been made by Licensor with respect thereto. No representations have been made by Licensor not expressly stated in this contract which Licensee 9555 shall at any time have any right to rely upon as an inducement for its making this contract or for any result or results to be obtained by Licensee in its own plant by its use of the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in any of said patents or applications for letters patent.

20. The Licensor agrees at any time during the term hereof to extend to Licensee, upon its written request, an indivisible and non-exclusive license or privilege to use the said process or processes set forth and claimed in said Roos or Bayer applications in the manufacture in its said plants of any other gypsum product not specifically covered by this agreement and in which Licensor shall use the same in its own manufacture and to sell the same, upon the payment to Licensor of one per cent (1%) of the selling price of Licensee of all of said other gypsum product, whether or not embodying the said process in making the same, manufactured and sold by Licensee and upon the same terms as set forth herein and subject to all of the conditions hereof, in which event in the agreement for the same there shall be substituted for the words "plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard" the name of such other product or products. An agreement containing all of said terms and conditions shall be reduced to writing and signed by both parties before the same shall become effective.

21. This license and all of the covenants and agreements hereof shall be binding upon and inure to the benefit of the successors and assigns of the parties hereto, but nothing in this paragraph shall be construed to permit an assignment hereof by Licensee except as hereinabove specifically provided.

9556 presidents, attested by their respective secretaries and their corporate seals to be hereunto affixed in duplicate the day and year first above written.

FOIL BOARD LICENSE BETWEEN UNITED STATES GYPSUM COMPANY AND UNIVERSAL GYPSUM & LIME CO. DATED APRIL 4, 1935

9568 PLASTER BOARD AGREEMENT

This Agreement, made and entered into this 4th day of April A.D. 1935, by and between United States Gypsum Company, a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Illinois and having its principal place of business at 300 West Adams Street, Chicago, Illinois, hereinafter referred to as the "Gypsum Company," and Universal Gypsum & Lime Co., a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Delaware and having its principal place of business at 105 W. Madison St., Chicago, Illinois, hereinafter referred to as "Licensee," witnesseth:

Whereas, Gypsum Company is the owner of United States Letters Patent to Roos No. 1,914,345, relating to wall construction, and is also the owner of certain patent rights set forth in Schedule A hereunto annexed, relating to building structures or elements for said structures; and

Whereas, Licensee desires an indivisible and non-exclusive license from Gypsum Company, under the terms and conditions hereinafter set forth and as hereinafter specified, to manufacture, use and sell plasterboard under Said Roos Patent No. 1,914,345 and under said patent rights set forth in said Schedule A; and

Whereas, Gypsum Company is willing to grant such license, under the terms and conditions hereinafter set forth and as hereinafter specified,

Now, therefore, in consideration of the premises, the sum of One Dollar ($1.00) in hand paid, receipt of which is hereby acknowledged by Gypsum Company, and the mutual covenants herein contained, it is hereby agreed as follows:

Gypsum Company hereby represents and warrants that it has the right to grant the license hereby granted.

II

The term "plaster board," as herein used, is intended to include material commonly known as plasterboard and also materials known as plaster wall board, plaster lath, and plaster sheathing boards.

III

Gypsum Company has agreed to and does hereby give and grant unto Licensee the indivisible, non-exclusive right, license and privilege to make, use and sell plaster board having a metallized surface embodying the inventions disclosed and claimed in said Roos Patent and in the patents or patent applications set forth in Schedule A, or in any of them; Provided, However, that the right, license and privilege herein and hereby granted is specifically limited to the plaster board and building structures incorporating the same as set forth in said Schedule A, and does not extend to any other product or structure.

IV

(a) It is expressly understood and agreed that the indivisible and non-exclusive rights, licenses and privileges aforesaid are granted, and they are hereby accepted, upon the express condition that Gypsum Company shall have, and it hereby reserves the right to determine and fix at any time, and to change from time to time, during the existence of said patents and so long as said rights, licenses and privileges granted hereunder shall continue, the minimum price or prices at which Licensee shall or may sell plaster board having a metallized surface which is covered by said Roos Patent or any of the said patents set forth in Schedule A, or which shall embody the inventions or improvements set forth and claimed in any patents issued upon any of the applications for patent set forth in said Schedule A, provided that the right hereinabove reserved to determine and fix the minimum price or prices of any such plas-
9570 ter board shall not be exercised with respect to any such plaster board embodying only the inventions or improvements, or one or more of them, set forth and claimed in any of the applications for patent set forth in said Schedule A, prior to the date when the patent or patents shall have been granted or issued upon such application or applications, respectively.

(b) In the event Gypsum Company shall exercise the right thus reserved, namely, to determine and fix at any time, and to change from time to time, such minimum price or prices, it shall notify Licensee of its election to exercise such right, and shall include in such notice, or accompany such notice by, a statement of such minimum price or prices at which Licensee shall or may sell said plaster board having a metallized surface, manufactured by Licensee, and thereafter shall give License written or telegraphic notice of any change in such price or prices; and Licensee expressly covenants and agrees that it will not, so long at this agreement shall continue in force and effect, after receipt of such notice given in accordance with the terms and conditions hereof, directly or indirectly, sell or offer for sale any plaster board having a metallized surface manufactured by said Licensee embodying the inventions and improvements set forth in said Roos Patent or in any of said patents set forth in said Schedule A, or embodying the inventions or improvements set forth and claimed in any patents issued upon any applications for patent set forth in said Schedule A, at a price or prices less than that stated by Gypsum Company in said notice or in any such written or telegraphic notice of change in said price or prices. The said minimum price or prices at which Licensee shall or may sell said p' 'ented products as determined and fixed by Gypsum Company may be the same for all classes of trade, provided that Gypsum Company may, at any time and from time to time, determine and fix different prices for different classes of trade. It is further understood and agreed that any such minimum price or prices so determined and fixed by Gypsum Company may be 9571 made with respect to each trade market or place where said plaster board having a metallized surface may be sold, and may also be made with respect to different quantities purchased, such as carloads, less than carloads and truck loads, and that such minimum price or prices may differ in amount in each different market or place according to market conditions or quantities, all as may be determined by Gypsum Company.

(c) The said minimum price or prices so determined and fixed from time to time by Gypsum Company shall not be more than the respective price or prices at which Gypsum Company itself determines to sell such products embodying the said inventions and improvements hereinbefore mentioned, to its own like trade in the same market.

(d) It is understood and agreed that all orders, contracts, or commitments for the future sale of said plaster board having a metallized surface and embodying the inventions and improvements hereinbefore mentioned shall be made subject to establishment of, and/or change in, such minimum price at which said materials or products may be sold, and that all shipments thereof shall be made at no less than the minimum price or prices contained in any notice of establishment of, and/or change in, price or prices received before shipment; provided, however, that on all orders taken for immediate shipment at not less than the minimum price, if any, then in effect, shipment thereof may be made at the price at which taken within five days of the date of such order; provided, further, that written contracts may be made at not less than the minimum price, if any, then in effect, to furnish such patented material for any specific work or job then contemplated or under construction; Provided, Further, that where contracts for specific work or jobs have been let to general contractors before notice of establishment of, and/or change in, price, then Licensee, if it has made a commitment for any such specific work or job prior to such notice, may at any time within thirty (30) days after such notice make a written contract to furnish the material for such specific work or job, at the price at which it was committed, 9572 but not less than the minimum price, if any, in effect at the time of such commitment. Within ten (10) days after each notice of minimum price or change thereof, Licensee will furnish to Gypsum Company a written statement of all specific work or jobs, contracts and commitments which Licensee had at the time such notice was given, showing the date of the contract or commitment, name of purchaser, location and description of specific work or job, quantity of material, and price at which the same was sold or commitment made, and shall immediately notify Gypsum Company of the making of any such contract for such specific work or job within the thirty-day term hereinbefore mentioned, and of the completion or abandonment of all specific work, jobs, contracts and commitments theretofore had by Licensee. It is understood and agreed that no such contract or commitment shall be recognized as valid hereunder, unless the contract or commitment shall have been made in good faith before notice of making a price or change thereof, and unless such contract or commitment shall have been for some specific work or job then contemplated or under construction in which such patented material specified in the said contract or commitment is to be furnished or installed.

As consideration for the rights, licenses, and privileges herein granted to Licensee, Licensee agrees to pay royalty to Gypsum Company for all plaster board having a metallized surface manufactured and sold by Licensee and which are covered by claims of said Roos patent or patents set forth in the said Schedule A, or patents which may be issued under any of the applications set forth under said Schedule A, or which are to be used in making structures covered by said patent rights, at the rate of forty cents (40¢) per thousand square feet surface area where only one face is metallized, and at the rate of fifty cents (50¢) per thousand square feet where both faces are metallized, on any product covered by any of the patent rights aforesaid.

It is expressly understood that Licensee shall have no right, without the written consent of Gypsum Company first obtained, to manufacture any of said patented material for any other manufacturer of plaster board, whether or not licensed under said patents, or to sell such patented material to any other such manufacturer, or to deliver any of the same to any person, firm or corporation whatsoever on consignment.

It is expressly understood and agreed that the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted are and shall be personal to Licensee, and none of said rights, licenses and privileges, nor any right herein or thereunder, shall be sold, assigned, or transferred without the written consent of Gypsum Company first obtained, nor shall Licensee permit the same, or any of them, to be transferred by operation of law: Provided, however, that such rights, licenses and privileges may be assigned by Licensee to any company acquiring all of the business and assets of said Licensee, on condition that Licensee shall first obtain an agreement in writing from any such assignee, in which such agreement such assignee agrees to assume all of the obligations of Licensee under this agreement and agrees to be bound by all of the terms and conditions hereof, and shall deliver such agreement to Gypsum Company.

VIII

In the event Gypsum Company shall, subsequent to the effective date hereof, grant to any other person, firm or corporation, any license under said Roos Patent or under said patents or applications for patent set forth in said Schedule A, for the manufacture, use, or sale of plaster board having a metallized surface, and embodying the claims or inventions set forth and claimed in said patents or said applications for patent, upon terms more favorable than those granted hereunder to Licensee, then Gypsum Company will grant to Licensee a license upon the same terms, or will extend to licensee the same right 9574 granted to such other licensee.

IX

Licensee agrees to keep true and accurate books of account showing the total amount of plaster board having a metallized surface manufactured and/or sold by Licensee under the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted, and the prices at which the same have been sold. Such books and records shall at all times during business hours be open to the inspection of Gypsum Company or its duly authorized representatives. Gypsum Company shall have the right to make copies of any such records and make memoranda therefrom, provided that if at the time of such examination Licensee shall so request, such examination shall be made by a certified public accountant satisfactory to Gypsum Company, in which event the expense of such examination by the said certified public accountant shall be borne by Licensee.

Licensee agrees that on or before the fifteenth day of each calendar month it will furnish to Gypsum Company a written report, under the hand and verification of some officer or other duly authorized agent of Licensee, showing the total amount of plaster board having a metallized surface sold by Licensee during the preceding calendar month and which was manufactured by Licensee under the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted, and also showing whether such plaster board had one or two metallized surfaces, together with the prices at which the same shall have been sold, and at the time of furnishing such report, Licensee will pay to Gypsum Company the full royalty as herein provided for, such plaster board having a metallized surface so sold by Licensee during such preceding calendar month. Such reports shall be furnished to Gypsum Company at its principal office, at Chicago, Illinois.

Licensee expressly covenants and agrees that all sales by Licensee hereunder of plaster board having a metallized surface shall be bona fide sales thereof, and Licensee further expressly covenants and agrees that no such products shall be placed on consignment. For the purposes of this agreement, a sale shall be considered to have been made not later than the date on which the goods are shipped.

XII

Licensee agrees that all plaster board having a metallized surface sold by it hereunder shall be numbered with the respective numbers of any appropriate patents under which the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted are granted, and covering the manufacture, sale, or use thereof. Gypsum Company shall have the right from time to time to specify the substance of the notice with which said products shall be so marked.

XIII

As one of the considerations for the indivisible and non-exclusive rights, licenses and privileges herein and hereby granted to Licensee, Licensee agrees that it will not at any time during the life of this agreement, or during the existence of said rights, licenses and privileges, directly or indirectly, by itself or through or together with another or others, contest the validity of said letters patent, or of said patent rights, or of any letters patent hereafter issued upon said applications so set forth in said Schedule A, or the right or title of Gypsum Company therein or thereto as herein or as in said Schedule A set forth, but in the event that any of said patents under which Licensee is licensed hereunder is held invalid or of limited construction by a court of competent jurisdiction from whose decision no appeal is or can be taken, then the Licensee shall have the right to make, use or vend the structure so held to be outside of the scope of said patent rights, free and clear 9576 of the terms of this agreement.

Licensee agrees to give prompt notice of any suit or action which shall be brought against it in consequence of practicing the inventions set forth in said patents and said patent rights, and thereupon, if Gypsum Company shall desire to conduct the defense of such suit or action, it shall have the right to do so, but Licensee shall have the right, in such event, to be represented in such suit or action, at its own expense, by counsel of its own selection. Gypsum Company shall not, by undertaking to conduct the defense of any such suit or action, be under any obligation to indemnify the Licensee against any judgment, order or decree or other result therein.

XIV

(a) In the event Licensee shall fail to make any report or shall fail to pay the royalty herein provided to be paid, or in the event that Licensee shall sell any of the materials covered by the price restriction provisions of Paragraph IV hereof, at a price or prices lower than the specified price or prices established and fixed by Gypsum Company as herein provided, Gypsum Company shall have the right to cancel all of the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted to Licensee; provided, however, that Licensee shall not be relieved thereby from any liability accrued at the time of such cancellation. In the event of any such breach, Gypsum Company shall give written notice to Licensee of the default or defaults claimed by Gypsum Company to have occurred, and of the desire of Gypsum Company to cancel the rights, licenses and privileges of Licensee hereunder; and if Licensee shall not make good the default or defaults complained of within a period of thirty (30) days from the giving of such notice, then all of the rights, licenses and privileges of Licensee hereunder shall forthwith cease and terminate without further action on the part of Gypsum Company; provided, however, that if, upon the giving of any such notice, Licensee shall deny that the 9577 defaults, or any of them, complained of have occurred, then the question as to whether the default or defaults, the occurrence of which is so denied by Licensee, have in fact occurred, shall be referred to arbitration under Paragraph XV hereof.

(b) In the event that such arbiters find that such default or defaults have occurred, then Licensee shall promptly cure the same, and in any event shall cure the same within thirty (30) days from the date of the finding of such arbiters; and in the event such default or defaults shall not be so cured within the time limited, then the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted to Licensee shall forthwith cease and determine without further action on the part of Gypsum Company; the termination of said rights, licenses and privileges following the finding of the arbiters as aforesaid shall not release Licensee from any liability then existing.

(c) In the event (1) that Licensee shall be adjudicated a bankrupt, or (2) a receiver shall be appointed for licensee, whose appointment shall not be vacated within sixty (60) days thereafter, then the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted to Licensee shall forthwith cease and determine, without further action on the part of Gypsum Company, provided that such termination shall not relieve Licensee of any and all liability then existing.

(d) The waiver by Gypsum Company of any breach on the part of Licensee shall not be interpreted as constituting a waiver of any further or other breach or breaches.

(e) In the event any default shall have occurred as specified in sub-paragraph (a) of this Paragraph XIV, Gypsum Company may give notice of such default without stating its desire to terminate the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted to Licensee, and in the event such defaults shall not be cured by Licensee within the times mentioned in said sub-paragraph (a), Gypsum Com-
9578 pany shall have the right, without terminating the said rights, licenses and privileges herein granted to Licensee, to maintain any appropriate action hereunder, at law or in equity, for the collection of license fees or royalties, or for damages, or for any other remedy as may be appropriate. The provisions mentioned in said sub-paragraph (a) with respect to arbitrating the fact as to whether any default or defaults complained of has or have in fact occurred, shall be applicable in all respects in the event notice of default is given without any statement by Gypsum Company of its desire to terminate the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted to Licensee, excepting that if the arbiters shall find that any of said defaults complained of shall have occurred, then Gypsum Company shall have the same right, without a termination of said rights, licenses and privileges so granted to Licensee, to maintain its appropriate action hereunder.

Any question subject to arbitration under any provision of this contract shall be arbitrated in accordance with the rules then obtaining of the American Arbitration Association. The finding or findings of the arbiters with respect to the occurrence or non-occurrence of any claimed default, shall be final and conclusive. In the event the finding or findings of the arbiters shall be with respect to any default or defaults, or claimed default or defaults, in the payment of royalties or other sums of money herein required to be paid by the Licensee to Gypsum Company and the arbiters shall find that such default or defaults shall have occurred, the arbiters shall in their finding fix and determine the amount of royalties or other sums of money due from License to Gypsum Company, whereupon Licensee will promptly pay the same to Gypsum Company, and in any event will pay the same within the times hereinbefore mentioned in Paragraph XIV hereof for the curing of defaults, provided that Gypsum Company shall have the right (but without being limited to such remedy) to have a summary judgment entered in its favor against Licensee for 9579 the amount so found to be due by the arbiters in any court of competent jurisdiction.

XVI

Any notice to be given under the terms hereof may be served by either party by mailing such notice to the other party hereto, by registered mail, postage prepaid, addressed to such party at its last known principal office, and the deposit of any such notice in the United States mails, registered, postage prepaid, and so addressed, shall constitute service of notice hereunder. Any telegraphic notice given under Paragraph IV hereof shall be confirmed in writing. Either party may change, from time to time, the address to which all notices shall be mailed, provided that in the absence of any different address, the respective addresses herein first above stated shall be the adresses to which such notices shall be mailed.

Except as herein otherwise expressly provided, this agreement shall remain in force for the full term of each patent under which the respectitve rights, licenses and privileges are hereby granted, and shall be binding upon and inure to the benefit of the parties hereto, their successors and assigns, provided, however, that nothing in this Paragraph XVII contained shall be construed to permit any assignment hereof or of any of the rights, licenses, and privileges herein granted, except as herein otherwise specifically provided. Nothing herein contained shall be construed as extending any license for the manufacture and/or use and/or sale of plaster board not having a metallized surface heretofore or hereafter granted under any other agreement between the parties hereto.

In the event that the exclusive right and license of the Gypsum Company, as set forth in said Schedule A hereto, shall for any reason whatsoever (whether on account of the default of the Gypsum Company or otherwise) 9580 terminate, and such termination shall have the effect of terminating or shall result in the termination of any of the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted to the Licensee, then this agreement shall immediately terminate, without further act on the part of either of the parties hereto, provided that Licensee shall not be relieved thereby from any liability then existing, and provided further that Gypsum Company shall not be liable in any way to Licensee on account of such termination. Gypsum Company agrees that if its said exclusive right and license shall so be terminated, it will promptly notify Licensee of such termination.

XVIII

Anything hereinabove contained to the contrary notwithstanding, this agreement and the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted to the Licensee may be cancelled and terminated, at any time, by either party hereto, by at least ninety (90) days' prior written notice to the other party of the election of the party serving the notice to exercise such right of cancellation and of the date on which such cancellation shall be effective, but such cancellation shall not relieve either party from any liability accrued or due at the date of such cancellation; Provided, However, that if Gypsum Company shall exercise the right to cancel this agreement as in this paragraph provided, then within ninety (90) days of its said notice it will submit to Licensee a new contract embodying a proposal for a non-exclusive license under said patents for the life of said patents, for acceptance by Licensee within ten (10) days from the date of such submittal.

In witness whereof, the parties hereto have caused these presents to be signed by their respective Presidents, attested by their respective Secretaries, and their corporate seals to be hereunto affixed, in duplicate, the day and year first above written.

This agreement, made and entered into this 30th day of November A. D. 1934, by and between United States Gypsum Company, a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Illinois and having its principal place of business at 300 West Adams Street, Chicago, Illinois, hereinafter referred to as the "Gypsum Company," and Atlantic Gypsum Products Company, a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New Hampshire and having its principal place of business at Boston, Massachusetts, hereinafter referred to as "Licensee," witnesseth:

Whereas, Gypsum Company is the owner of United States Letters Patent to Roos No. 1,914,345, relating to wall construction, and is also the owner of certain patent rights set forth in Schedule A hereunto annexed, relating to building structures or elements for said structures; and

Whereas, Licensee desires an indivisible and non-exclusive license from Gypsum Company, under the terms and conditions hereinafter set forth and as hereinafter specified, to manufacture, use and sell plaster board under said Roos Patent No. 1,914,345 and under said patent rights set forth in said Schedule A; and

Whereas, Gypsum Company is willing to grant such license, under the terms and conditions hereinafter set forth and as hereinafter specified,

Now, therefore, in consideration of the premises, the sum of One Dollar ($1.00) in hand paid, receipt of

9584 which is hereby acknowledged by Gypsum Company, and the mutual covenants herein contained, it is hereby agreed as follows:

I

Gypsum Company hereby represents and warrants that it has the right to grant the license hereby granted.

II

The term "plaster board," as herein used, is intended to include material commonly known as plasterboard and also materials known as plaster wall board, plaster lath, and plaster sheathing boards.

III

Gypsum Company has agreed to and does hereby give and grant unto Licensee the indivisible, non-exclusive right, license and privilege to make, use and sell plaster board having a metallized surface embodying the inventions disclosed and claimed in said Roos Patent and in the patents or patent applications set forth in Schedule A, or in any of them; Provided, However, that the right, license and privilege herein and hereby granted is specifically limited to the plaster board and building structures incorporating the same as set forth in said Schedule A, and does not extend to any other product or structure.

(a) It is expressly understood and agreed that the indivisible and non-exclusive rights, licenses and privileges aforesaid are granted, and they are hereby accepted, upon the express condition that Gypsum Company shall have, and it hereby reserves, the right to determine and fix at any time, and to change from time to time, during the existence of said patents and so long as said rights, licenses and privileges granted hereunder shall
9585 continue, the minimum price or prices at which Licensee shall or may sell plaster board having a metallized surface which is covered by said Roos Patent or any of the said patents set forth in Schedule A, or which shall embody the inventions or improvements set forth and claimed in any patents issued upon any of the applications for patent set forth in said Schedule A, provided that the right hereinabove reserved to determine and fix the minimum price or prices of any such plaster board shall not be exercised with respect to any such plaster board embodying only the inventions or improvements, or one or more of them, set forth and claimed in any of the applications for patent set forth in said Schedule A, prior to the date when the patent or patents shall have been granted or issued upon such application or applications, respectively.

(b) In the event Gypsum Company shall exercise the right thus reserved, namely, to determine and fix at any time, and to change from time to time, such minimum price or prices, it shall notify Licensee of its election to exercise such right, and shall include in such notice, or accompany such notice by, a statement of such minimum price or prices at which Licensee shall or may sell said plaster board having a metallized surface, manufactured by Licensee, and thereafter shall give Licensee written or telegraphic notice of any change in such price or prices; and Licensee expressly covenants and agrees that it will not, so long as this agreement shall continue in force and effect, after receipt of such notice given in accordance with the terms and conditions hereof, directly or indirectly, sell or offer for sale any plaster board having a metallized surface manufactured by said Licensee embodying the inventions and improvements set forth in said Roos Patent or in any of said
9586 patents set forth in said Schedule A, or embodying the inventions or improvements set forth and claimed in any patents issued upon any applications for patent set forth in said Schedule A, at a price or prices less than that stated by Gypsum Company in said notice or in any such written or telegraphic notice of change in said price or prices. The said minimum price or prices at which Licensee shall or may sell said patented products as determined and fixed by Gypsum Company may be the same for all classes of trade, provided that Gypsum Company may, at any time and from time to time, determine and fix different prices for different classes of trade. It is further understood and agreed that any such minimum price or prices so determined and fixed by Gypsum Company may be made with respect to each trade market or place where said plaster board having a metallized surface may be sold, and may also be made with respect to different quantities purchased, such as carloads, less than carloads and truck loads, and that such minimum price or prices may differ in amount in each different market or place according to market conditions or quantities, all as may be determined by Gypsum Company.

(c) The said minimum price or prices so determined and fixed from time to time by Gypsum Company shall not be more than the respective price or prices at which Gypsum Company itself determines to sell such products embodying the said inventions and improvements hereinbefore mentioned, to its own like trade in the same market.

(d) It is understood and agreed that all orders, contracts, or commitments for the future sale of said plaster board having a metallized surface and embodying the inventions and improvements hereinbefore mentioned shall be made subject to establishment of, and/or change in, such minimum price at which said materials or products may be sold, and that all shipments thereof shall 9587 be made at no less than the minimum price or prices contained in any notice of establishment of, and/or change in, price or prices received before shipment; provided, however, that on all orders taken for immediate shipment at not less than the minimum price, if any, then in effect, shipment thereof may be made at the price at which taken within five days of the date of such order; provided, further, that written contracts may be made at not less than the minimum price, if any, then in effect, to furnish such patented material for any specific work or job then contemplated or under construction; Provided, Further, that where contracts for specific work or jobs have been let to general contractors before notice of establishment of, and/or change in, price, then Licensee, if it has made a commitment for any such specific work or job prior to such notice, may at any time within thirty (30) days after such notice make a written contract to furnish the material for such specific work or job, at the price at which it was committed, but not less than the minimum price, if any, in effect at the time of such commitment. Within ten (10) days after each notice of minimum price or change thereof, Licensee will furnish to Gypsum Company a written statement of all specific work or jobs, contracts and commitments which Licensee had at the time such notice was given, showing the date of the contract or commitment, name of purchaser, location and description of specific work or job, quantity of material, and price at which the same was sold or commitment made, and shall immediately notify Gypsum Company of the making of any such contract for such specific work or job within the thirty-day term hereinbefore mentioned, and of the completion or abandonment of all specific work, jobs, contracts and commitments theretofore had by Licensee. It is understood and agreed that no such contract or commitment shall be rec-9588 ognized as valid hereunder, unless the contract or commitment shall have been made in good faith before notice of making a price or change thereof, and unless such contract or commitment shall have been for some specific work or job then contemplated or under construction in which such patented material specified in the said contract or commitment is to be furnished or installed.

V

As consideration for the rights, licenses, and privileges herein granted to Licensee, Licensee agrees to pay royalty to Gypsum Company for all plaster board having a metallized surface manufactured and sold by Licensee and which are covered by claims of said Roos patent or patents set forth in the said Schedule A, or patents which may be issued under any of the applications set forth under said Schedule A, or which are to be used in making structures covered by said patent rights, at the rate of forty cents (40¢) per thousand square feet surface area where only one face is metallized, and at the rate of fifty cents (50¢) per thousand square feet where both faces are metallized, on any product covered by any of the patent rights aforesaid.

VI

It is expressly understood that Licensee shall have no right, without the written consent of Gypsum Company first obtained, to manufacture any of said patented material for any other manufacturer of plaster board, whether or not licensed under said patents, or to sell such patented material to any other such manufacturer, or to deliver any of the same to any person, firm or corporation whatsoever on consignment.

VII

It is expressly understood and agreed that the 9589 rights, licenses and privileges herein granted are and shall be personal to Licensee, and none of said

rights, licenses and privileges, nor a · right herein or thereunder, shall be sold, assigned, or transferred without the written consent of Gypsum Company first obtained, nor shall Licensee permit the same, or any of them, to be transferred by operation of law; Provided, however, that such rights, licenses, and privileges may be assigned by Licensee to any company acquiring all of the business and assets of said Licensee, on condition that Licensee shall first obtain an agreement in writing from any such assignee, in which such agreement such assignee agrees to assume all of the obligations of Licensee under this agreement and agrees to be bound by all of the terms and conditions hereof, and shall deliver such agreement to Gypsum Company.

VIII

In the event Gypsum Company shall, subsequent to the effective date hereof, grant to any other person, firm or corporation, any license under said Roos Patent or under said patents or applications for patent set forth in said Schedule A, for the manufacture, use, or sale of plaster board having a metallized surface, and embodying the claims or inventions set forth and claimed in said patents or said applications for patent, upon terms more favorable than those granted hereunder to Licensee, then Gypsum Company will grant to Licensee a license upon the same terms, or will extend to Licensee the same right granted to such other licensee.

IX

Licensee agrees to keep true and accurate books of account, showing the total amount of plaster board having a metallized surface manufactured and/or sold by 9590 Licensee under the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted, and the prices at which the same have been sold. Such books and records shall at all times during business hours be open to the inspection of Gypsum Company or its duly authorized representatives. Gypsum Company shall have the right to make copies of any of such records and make memoranda therefrom, provided that if at the time of such examination Licensee shall so request, such examination shall be made by a certified public accountant satisfactory to Gypsum Company, in which event the expense of such examination by the said certified public accountant shall be borne by Licensee.

Licensee agrees that on or before the fifteenth day of each calendar month it will furnish to Gypsum Company a written report, under the hand and verification of some officer or other duly authorized agent of Licensee, showing the total amount of plaster board having a metallized surface sold by Licensee during the preceding calendar month and which was manufactured by Licensee under the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted, and also showing whether such plaster board had one or two metallized surfaces, together with the prices at which the same shall have been sold, and at the time of furnishing such report, Licensee will pay to Gypsum Company the full royalty as herein provided for such plaster board having a metallized surface so sold by Licensee during such preceding calendar month. Such reports shall be furnished to Gypsum Company at its principal office, at Chicago, Illinois.

XI

Licensee expressly covenants and agrees that all sales by Licensee hereunder of plaster board having a metallized surface shall be bona fide sales thereof, and 9591 Licensee further expressly covenants and agrees that no such products shall be placed on consignment. For the purposes of this agreement, a sale shall be considered to have been made not later than the date on which the goods are shipped.

Licensee agrees that all plaster board having a metallized surface sold by it hereunder shall be numbered with the respective numbers of any appropriate patents under which the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted are granted, and covering the manufacture, sale, or use thereof. Gypsum Company shall have the right from time to time to specify the substance of the notice with which said products shall be so marked.

leges, directly or indirectly, by itself or through or together with another or others, contest the validity of said letters patent, or of said patent rights, or of any letters patent hereafter issued upon said applications so set forth in said Schedule A, or the right or title of Gypsum Company therein or thereto as herein or as in said Schedule A set forth, but in the event that any of said patents under which Licensee is licensed hereunder is held invalid or of limited construction by a court of competent jurisdiction from whose decision no appeal is or can be taken, then the Licensee shall have the right to make, use or vend the structure so held to be outside of the scope of said patent rights, free and clear of the terms of this agreement.

9592 Licensee agrees to give prompt notice of any suit or action which shall be brought against it in consequence of practicing the inventions set forth in said patents and said patent rights, and thereupon, if Gypsum Company shall desire to conduct the defense of such suit or action, it shall have the right to do so, but Licensee shall have the right, in such event, to be represented in such suit or action, at its own expense, by counsel of its own selection. Gypsum Company shall not, by undertaking to conduct the defense of any such suit or action, be under any obligation to indemnify the Licensee against any judgment, order or decree or other result therein.

XIV

(a) In the event Licensee shall fail to make any report or shall fail to pay the royalty herein provided to be paid, or in the event that Licensee shall sell any of the materials covered by the price restriction provisions of Paragraph IV hereof, at a price or prices lower than the specified price or prices established and fixed by Gypsum Company as herein provided, Gypsum Company shall have the right to cancel all of the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted to Licensee; provided, however, that Licensee shall not be relieved thereby from any liability accrued at the time of such cancellation. In the event of any such breach, Gypsum Company shall give written notice to Licensee of the default or defaults claimed by Gypsum Company to have occurred, and of the desire of Gypsum Company to cancel the rights, licenses and privileges of Licensee hereunder; and if Licensee shall not make good the default or defaults complained of within a period of thirty (30) days from the giving of such notice, then all of the rights, licenses and privileges of Licensee hereunder shall forthwith cease and terminated without further action on the part 9593 of Gypsum Company; provided, however, that if, upon giving of any such notice, Licensee shall deny that the defaults, or any of them, complained of have occurred, then the question as to whether the default or defaults, the occurrence of which is so denied by Licensee, have in fact occurred, shall be referred to arbitration under Paragraph XV hereof.

(b) In the event that such arbiters find that such default or defaults have occurred, then Licensee shall promptly cure the same, and in any event shall cure the same within thirty (30) days from the date of the finding of such arbiters; and in the event such default or defaults shall not be so cured within the time limited, then the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted to Licensee shall forthwith cease and determine without further action on the part of Gypsum Company; the termination of said rights, licenses and privileges following the finding of the arbiters as aforesaid shall not release Licensee from any liability then existing.

(c) In the event (1) that Licensee shall be adjudicated a bankrupt, or (2) a receiver shall be appointed for Licensee, whose appointment shall not be vacated within sixty (60) days thereafter, then the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted to Licensee shall forthwith cease and determine, without further action on the part of Gypsum Company, provided that such termination shall not relieve Licensee of any and all liability then existing.

(d) The waiver by Gypsum Company of any breach on the part of Licensee shall not be interpreted as constituting a waiver of any further or other breach or breaches.

(e) In the event any default shall have occurred as specified in sub-paragraph (a) of this Paragraph XIV, Gypsum Company may give notice of such default without stating its desire to terminate the rights, li-
9594 censes and privileges herein granted to Licensee, and in the event such defaults shall not be cured by Licensee within the times mentioned in said sub-paragraph (a), Gypsum Company shall have the right, without terminating the said rights, licenses and privileges herein granted to Licensee, to maintain any appropriate action hereunder, at law or in equity, for the collection of license fees or royalties, or for damages, or for any other remedy as may be appropriate. The provisions mentioned in said sub-paragraph (a) with respect to arbitrating the fact as to whether any default or defaults complained of has or have in fact occurred, shall be applicable in all respects in the event notice of default is given without any statement by Gypsum Company of its desire to terminate the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted to Licensee, excepting that if the arbiters shall find that any of said defaults complained of shall have occurred, then Gypsum Company shall have the same right, without a termination of said rights, licenses and privileges so granted to Licensee, to maintain its appropriate action hereunder.

XV

Any question subject to arbitration under any provision of this contract shall be arbitrated in accordance with the rules then obtaining of the American Arbitration Association. The finding or findings of the arbiters with respect to the occurrence or non-occurrence of any claimed default, shall be final and conclusive. In the event the finding or findings of the arbiters shall be with respect to any default or defaults, or claimed default or defaults, in the payment of royalties or other sums of money herein required to be paid by the Licensee to Gypsum Company and the arbiters shall find that such default or defaults shall have occurred, the arbiters shall in their finding fix and determine the amount of royalties or other sums of money due from License to Gypsum Company, whereupon Licensee will promptly pay the same to Gypsum Company, and in any event will pay the same within the times hereinbefore mentioned in Paragraph XIV hereof for the curing of defaults, provided that Gypsum Company shall have the right (but without being limited to such remedy) to have a summary judgment entered in its favor against Licensee for the amount so found to be due by the arbiters in any court of competent jurisdiction.

Any notice to be given under the terms hereof may be served by either party by mailing such notice to the other party hereto, by registered mail, postage prepaid, addressed to such party at its last known principal office, and the deposit of any such notice in the United States mails, registered, postage prepaid, and so addressed, shall constitute service of notice hereunder. Any telegraphic notice given under Paragraph IV hereof shall be confirmed in writing. Either party may change, from time to time, the address to which all notices shall be mailed, provided that in the absence of any different address, the respective addresses herein first above stated shall be the addresses to which such notices shall be mailed.

9596 manufacture and/or use and/or sale of plaster board not having a metallized surface heretofore or hereafter granted under any other agreement between the parties hereto.

In the event that the exclusive right and license of the Gypsum Company, as set forth in said Schedule A hereto, shall for any reason whatsoever (whether on account of the default of the Gypsum Company or otherwise) terminate, and such termination shall have the effect of terminating or shall result in the termination of any of the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted to the Licensee, then this agreement shall immediately terminate, without further act on the part of either of the parties hereto, provided that Licensee shall not be relieved thereby from any liability then existing, and provided further that Gypsum Company shall not be liable in any way to Licensee on account of such termination. Gypsum Company agrees that if its said exclusive right and license shall so be terminated, it will promptly notify Licensee of such termination.

XVIII

Anything hereinabove contained to the contrary notwithstanding, this agreement and the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted to the Licensee may be cancelled and terminated, at any time, by either party hereto, by at least ninety (90) days' prior written notice to the other party of the election of the party serving the notice to exercise such right of cancellation and of the date on which such cancellation shall be effective, but such cancellation shall not relieve either party from any liability accrued or due at the date of such cancellation; Provided, However, that if Gypsum Company shall exercise the right to cancel this agreement as in this paragraph provided, then within ninety (90) days of its said notice it will 9597 submit to Licensee a new contract embodying a proposal for a non-exclusive license under said patents for the life of said patents, for acceptance by Licensee within ten (10) days from the date of such submittal.

In witness whereof, the parties hereto have caused these presents to be signed by their respective Presidents, attested by their respective Secretaries, and their corporate seals to be hereunto affixed, in duplicate, the day and year first above written.

Whereas, Gypsum Company is the owner of United States Letters Patent to Roos No. 1,914,345, relating to wall construction, and is also the owner of certain patent rights set forth in Schedule A hereunto annexed, relating to building structures or elements for said structures; and

Whereas, Licensee desires an indivisible and non-exclusive license from Gypsum Company, under the terms and conditions hereinafter set forth and as hereinafter

specified, to manufacture, use and sell plaster board under said Roos Patent No. 1,914,345 and under said patent rights set forth in said Schedule A; and

Whereas, Gypsum Company is willing to grant such license, under the terms and conditions hereinafter set forth and as hereinafter specified,

Now, Therefore, in consideration of the premises, the sum of One Dollar ($1.00) in hand paid, receipt of 9600 which is hereby acknowledged by Gypsum Company, and the mutual covenants herein contained, it is hereby agreed as follows:

I

Gypsum Company hereby represents and warrants that it has the right to grant the license hereby granted.

II

The term "plaster board," as herein used, is intended to include material commonly known as plaster board and also materials known as plaster wall board, plaster lath, and plaster sheathing boards.

III

Gypsum Company has agreed to and does hereby give and grant unto Licensee the indivisible, non-exclusive right and privilege to make, use and sell plaster board having a metallized surface embodying the inventions disclosed and claimed in said Roos Patent and in the patents or patent applications set forth in Schedule A, or in any of them; provided, however, that the right, license and privilege herein and hereby granted is specifically limited to the plaster board and building structures incorporating the same as covered by the patents or patent rights set forth in Schedule A, and does not extend to any other product or structure.

IV

(a) It is expressly understood and agreed that the indivisible and non-exclusive rights, licenses and privileges aforesaid are granted, and they are hereby accepted, upon the express condition that Gypsum Company shall have, and it hereby reserves, the right to determine and fix at any time, and to change from time to time, during the existence of said patents and so long as said rights,

licenses and privileges granted hereunder shall 9601 continue, the minimum price or prices at which Licensee shall or may sell plaster board having a metallized surface which is covered by said Roos Patent or any of the said patents set forth in Schedule A, or which shall embody the inventions or improvements set forth and claimed in any patents issued upon any of the applications for patent set forth in said Schedule A, provided that the right hereinabove reserved to determine and fix the minimum price or prices of any such plaster board shall not be exercised with respect to any such plaster board embodying only the inventions or improvements, or one or more of them, set forth and claimed in any of the applications for patent set forth in said Schedule A, prior to the date when the patent or patents shall have been granted or issued upon such application or applications, respectively.

(b) In the event Gypsum Company shall exercise the right thus reserved, namely, to determine and fix at any time, and to change from time to time, such minimum price or prices, it shall notify Licensee of its election to exercise such right, and shall include in such notice, or accompany such notice by, a statement of such minimum price or prices at which Licensee shall or may sell said plaster board having a metallized surface, manufactured by Licensee, and thereafter shall give Licensee written or telegraphic notice of any change in such price or prices; and Licensee expressly covenants and agrees that it will not, so long as this agreement shall continue in force and effect, after receipt of such notice given in accordance with the terms and conditions hereof, directly or indirectly, sell of offer for sale any plaster board having a metallized surface manufactured by said Licensee embodying the inventions and improvements set forth in said Roos Patent or in any of said patents set forth in said Schedule
9602 A, or embodying the inventions or improvements set forth and claimed in any patents issued upon any applications for patent set forth in said Schedule A, at a price or prices less than that stated by Gypsum Company in said notice or in any such written or telegraphic notice of change in said price or prices. The said minimum price or prices at which Licensee shall or may sell said patented products as determined and fixed by Gypsum Company may be the same for all classes of trade, provided that Gypsum Company may, at any time and from time to time, determine and fix different prices for different classes of trade. It is further understood and agreed that any such minimum price or prices so determined and fixed by Gypsum Company may be made with respect to each trade market or place where said plaster board having a metallized surface may be sold, and may also be made with respect to different quantities purchased, such as carloads, less than carloads and truck loads, and that such minimum price or prices may differ in amount in each different market or place according to market conditions or quantities, all as may be determined by Gypsum Company.

(c) The said minimum price or prices so determined and fixed from time to time by Gypsum Company shall not be more than the respective price or prices at which Gypsum Company itself determines to sell such products embodying the said inventions and improvements hereinbefore mentioned, to its own like trade in the same market.

(d) It is understood and agreed that all orders, contracts, or commitments for the future sale of said plaster board having a metallized surface and embodying the inventions and improvements hereinbefore mentioned shall be made subject to establishment of, and/or change in, such minimum price at which said materials or products may be sold, and that all shipments thereof shall be
9603 made at no less than the minimum price or prices contained in any notice of establishment of, and/or change in, price or prices received before shipment; provided, however, that on all orders taken for immediate shipment at not less than the minimum price, if any, then in effect, shipment thereof may be made at the price at which taken within five days of the date of such order; provided, further, that written contracts may be made at not less than the minimum price, if any, then in effect, to furnish such patented material for any specific work or job then contemplated or under construction; provided, further, that where contracts for specific work or jobs have been let to general contractors before notice of establishment of, and/or change in, price, then Licensee, if it has made a commitment for any such specific work or job prior to such notice, may at any time within thirty (30) days after such notice make a written contract to furnish the material for such specific work or job, at the price at which it was committed, but not less than the minimum price, if any, in effect at the time of such commitment. Within ten (10) days after each notice of minimum price or change thereof, Licensee will furnish to Gypsum Company a written statement of all specific work or jobs, contracts and commitments which Licensee had at the time such notice was given, showing the date of the contract or commitment, name of purchaser, location and description of specific work or job, quantity of material, and price at which the same was sold or commitment made, and shall immediately notify Gypsum Company of the making of any such contract for such specific work or job within the thirty-day term hereinbefore mentioned, and of the completion or abandonment of all specific work, jobs, contracts and commitments theretofore had by Licensee. It is understood and agreed that no such contract or commitment shall be recognized as 9604 valid hereunder, unless the contract or commitment shall have been made in good faith before notice of making a price or change thereof, and unless such contract or commitment shall have been for some specific work or job then contemplated or under construction in which such patented material specified in the said contract or commitment is to be furnished or installed.

As consideration for the rights, licenses, and privileges herein granted to Licensee, Licensee agrees to pay royalty to Gypsum Company for all plaster board having a metallized surface manufactured and sold by Licensee and which are covered by claims of said Roos patent or patents set forth in the said Schedule A, or patents which may be issued under any of the applications set forth under said Schedule A, or which are to be used in making structures covered by said patent rights, at the rate of forty cents (40¢) per thousand square feet surface area where only one face is metallized, and at the rate of fifty cents (50¢) per thousand square feet where both faces are metallized, on any product covered by any of the patent rights aforesaid.

VI

It is expressly understood that Licensee shall have no right, without the written consent of Gypsum Company first obtained, to manufacture any of said patented material for any other manufacturer of plasterboard, whether or not licensed under said patents, or to sell such patented material to any other such manufacturer, or to deliver any of the same to any person, firm or corporation whatsoever on consignment.

It is expressly understood and agreed that the 9605 rights, licenses and privileges herein granted are and shall be personal to Licensee, and none of said rights, licenses and privileges, nor any right herein or thereunder, shall be sold, assigned, or transferred without the written consent of Gypsum Company first obtained, nor shall Licensee permit the same, or any of them, to be transferred by operation of law; provided, however, that such rights, licenses, and privileges may be assigned by Licensee to any company acquiring all of the business and assets of said Licensee, on condition that Licensee shall first obtain an agreement in writing from any such assignee, in which such agreement such assignee agrees to assume all of the obligations of Licensee under this agreement and agrees to be bound by all of the terms and conditions hereof, and shall deliver such agreement to Gypsum Company.

VIII

In the event Gypsum Company shall, subsequent to the effective date hereof, grant to any other person, firm or corporation, any license under said Roos Patent or under said patents or applications for patent set forth in said Schedule A, for the manufacture, use, or sale of plaster board having a metallized surface, and embodying the claims or inventions set forth and claimed in said patents or said applications for patent, upon terms more favorable than those granted hereunder to Licensee, then Gypsum Company will grant to Licensee a license upon the same terms, or will extend to Licensee the same right granted to such other licensee.

IX

Licensee agrees to keep true and accurate books of account, showing the total amount of plaster board having a metallized surface manufactured and/or sold by

pany shall have the right to make copies of any of such records and make memoranda therefrom, provided that if at the time of such examination Licensee shall so request, such examination shall be made by a certified public accountant satisfactory to Gypsum Company, in which event the expense of such examination by the said certified public accountant shall be borne by Licensee.

Licensee agrees that on or before the fifteenth day of each calendar month it will furnish to Gypsum Company a written report, under the hand and verification of some officer or other duly authorized agent of Licensee, showing the total amount of plaster board having a metallized surface sold by Licensee during the preceding calendar month and which was manufactured by Licensee under the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted, and also showing whether such plaster board had one or two metallized surfaces, together with the prices at which the same shall have been sold, and at the time of furnishing such report, Licensee will pay to Gypsum Company the full royalty as herein provided for such plaster board having a metallized surface so sold by Licensee during such preceding calendar month. Such reports shall be furnished to Gypsum Company at its principal office, at Chicago, Illinois.

XI

Licensee expressly covenants and agrees that all sales by Licensee hereunder of plaster board having a metallized surface shall be bona fide sales thereof, and Licensee 9607 further covenants and agrees that no such products shall be placed on consignment. For the purposes of this agreement, a sale shall be considered to have been made not later than the date on which the goods are shipped.

Licensee agrees that all plaster board having a metallized surface sold by it hereunder shall be numbered with the respective numbers of any appropriate patents under which the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted are granted, and covering the manufacture, sale, or use thereof. Gypsum Company shall have the right from time to time to specify the substance of the notice with which said products shall be so marked.

XIII

As one of the considerations for the indivisible and non-exclusive rights, licenses and privileges herein and hereby granted to Licensee, Licensee agrees that it will not at any time during the life of this agreement, or during the existence of said rights, licenses and privileges, directly or indirectly, by itself or through or together with another or others, contest the validity of said letters patent, or of said patent rights, or of any letters patent hereafter issued upon said applications so set forth in said Schedule A, or the right or title of Gypsum Company therein or thereto as herein or as in said Schedule A set forth, but in the event that any of said patents under which Licensee is licensed hereunder is held invalid or of limited construction by a court of competent jurisdiction from whose decision no appeal is or can be taken, then the Licensee shall have the right to make, use or vend the structure so held to be outside of the scope of said patent rights, free and clear of the terms of this agreement.

9608 Licensee agrees to give prompt notice of any suit or action which shall be brought against it in consequence of practicing the inventions set forth in said patents and said patent rights, and thereupon, if Gypsum Company shall desire to conduct the defense of such suit or action, it shall have the right to do so, but Licensee shall have the right, in such event, to be represented in such suit or action, at its own expense, by counsel of its own selection. Gypsum Company shall not, by undertaking to conduct the defense of any such suit or action, be under any obligation to indemnify the Licensee against any judgment, order or decrees or other result therein.

XIV

(a) In the event Licensee shall fail to make any report or shall fail to pay the royalty herein provided to be paid, or in the event that Licensee shall sell any of the materials covered by the price restriction provisions of Paragraph IV hereof, at a price or prices lower than the specified price or prices established and fixed by Gypsum Company as herein provided, Gypsum Company shall have the right to cancel all of the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted to Licensee, provided, however, that Licensee shall not be relieved thereby from any liability accrued at the time of such cancellation. In the event of any such breach,

Gypsum Company shall give written notice to Licensee of the default or defaults claimed by Gypsum Company to have occurred, and of the desire of Gypsum Company to cancel the rights, licenses and privileges of Licensee hereunder; and if Licensee shall not make good the default or defaults complained of within a period of thirty (30) days from the giving of such notice, then all of the rights, licenses and privileges of Licensee hereunder shall forthwith cease and terminate without further action on the part 9609 of Gypsum Company, provided, however, that if, upon the giving of any such notice, Licensee shall deny that the defaults, or any of them, complained of have occurred, then the question as to whether the default or defaults, the occurrence of which is so denied by Licensee, have in fact occurred, shall be referred to arbitration under Paragraph XV hereof.

(b) In the event that such arbiters find that such default or defaults have occurred, then Licensee shall promptly cure the same, and in any event shall cure the same within thirty (30) days from the date of the finding of such arbiters; and in the event such default or defaults shall not be so cured within the time limited, then the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted to Licensee shall forthwith cease and determine without further action on the part of Gypsum Company; the termination of said rights, licenses and privileges following the finding of the arbiters as aforesaid shall not release Licensee from any liability then existing.

(c) In the event (1) that Licensee shall be adjudicated a bankrupt, or (2) a receiver shall be appointed for Licensee, whose appointment shall not be vacated within sixty (60) days thereafter, then the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted to Licensee shall forthwith cease and determine, without further action on the part of Gypsum Company, provided that such termination shall not relieve Licensee of any and all liability then existing.

(d) The waiver by Gypsum Company of any breach on the part of Licensee shall not be interpreted as constituting a waiver of any further or other breach or breaches.

(e) In the event any default shall have occurred as specified in sub-paragraph (a) of this Paragraph XIV, Gypsum Company may give notice of such default without stating its desire to terminate the rights, licenses and privi-

9610 leges herein granted to Licensee, and in the event such defaults shall not be cured by Licensee within the times mentioned in said sub-paragraph (a), Gypsum Company shall have the right, without terminating the said rights, licenses and privileges herein granted to Licensee, to maintain any appropriate action hereunder, at law or in equity, for the collection of license fees or royalties, or for damages, or for any other remedy as may be appropriate. The provisions mentioned in said sub-paragraph (a) with respect to arbitrating the fact as to whether any default or defaults complained of has or have in fact occurred, shall be applicable in all respect in the event notice of default is given without any statement by Gypsum of its desire to terminate the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted to Licensee, excepting that if the arbiters shall find that any of said defaults complained of shall have occurred, then Gypsum Company shall have the same right, without a termination of said rights, licenses and privileges so granted to Licensee, to maintain its appropriate action hereunder.

Any question subject to arbitration under any provision of this contract shall be arbitrated in accordance with the rules then obtaining of the American Arbitration Association. The finding or findings of the arbiters with respect to the occurrence or non-occurrence of any claimed default, shall be final and conclusive. In the event the finding or findings of the arbiters shall be with respect to any default or defaults, or claimed default or defaults, in the payment of royalties or other sums of money herein required to be paid by the Licensee to Gypsum Company, and the arbiters shall find that such default or defaults shall have occurred, the arbiters shall in their finding fix and determine the amount of royalties or other sums of money due from Licensee to Gypsum Company, whereupon Licensee will promptly pay the 9611 same to Gypsum Company, and in any event will pay the same within the times hereinbefore mentioned in Paragraph XIV hereof, for the curing of defaults, provided that Gypsum Company shall have the right (but without being limited to such remedy) to have a summary judgment entered in its favor against Licensee for the amount so found to be due by the arbiters in any court of competent jurisdiction.

XVI

Any notice to be given under the terms hereof may be served by either party by mailing such notice to the other party hereto, by registered mail, postage prepaid, addressed to such party at its last known principal office, and the deposit of any such notice in the United States mails, registered, postage prepaid, and so addressed, shall constitute service of notice hereunder. Any telegraphic notice given under Paragraph IV hereof shall be confirmed in writing. Either party may change, from time to time, the address to which all notices shall be mailed, provided that in the absence of any different address, the respective addresses herein first above stated shall be the addresses to which such notices shall be mailed.

XVII

9612 be construed as extending any license for the manufacture and/or use and/or sale of plaster board not having a metallized surface heretofore or hereafter granted under any other agreement between the parties hereto.

In the event that the exclusive right and license of the Gypsum Company, as set forth in said Schedule A hereto, shall for any reason whatsoever (whether on account of the default of the Gypsum Company or otherwise) terminate, and such termination shall have the effect of terminating or shall result in the termination of any of the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted to the Licensee, then this agreement shall immediately terminate, without further act on the part of either of the parties hereto, provided that Licensee shall not be relieved thereby from any liability then existing, and provided further that Gypsum Company shall not be liable in any way to Licensee on account of such termination. Gypsum Company agrees that if its said exclusive right and license shall so be terminated, it will promptly notify Licensee of such termination.

Anything hereinabove contained to the contrary notwithstanding, this agreement and the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted to the Licensee may be cancelled and terminated, at any time, by either party hereto, by at least ninety (90) days' prior notice to the other party of the election of the party serving the notice to exercise such right of cancellation and of the date on which such cancellation shall be effective, but such cancellation shall not relieve either party from any liability accrued or due at the date of such cancellation; Provided, However, that if Gypsum Company shall exercise the right to cancel this agreement as in this paragraph provided, then within ninety (90) days of its said notice it will submit 9613 to Licensee a new contract embodying a proposal for a non-exclusive license under said patents for the life of said patents, for acceptance by Licensee within ten (10) days from the date of such submittal.

In witness whereof, the parties hereto have caused these presents to be signed by their respective Presidents, attested by their respective Secretaries, and their corporate seals to be hereunto affixed, in duplicate, the day and year first above written.

Whereas, Gypsum Company is willing to grant such license, under the terms and conditions hereinafter set forth and as hereinafter specified,

Now, therefore, in consideration of the premises, the sum of One Dollar ($1.00) in hand paid, receipt of 9616 which is hereby acknowledged by Gypsum Company, and the mutual covenants herein contained, it is hereby agreed as follows:

I

Gypsum Company hereby represents and warrants that it has the right to grant the license hereby granted.

II

The term "plaster board," as herein used, is intended to included material commonly known as plasterboard and also materials known as plaster wall board, plaster lath, and plaster sheathing boards.

III

Gypsum Company has agreed to and does hereby give and grant unto Licensee the indivisible, non-exclusive right, license and privilege to make, use and sell plaster board having a metallized surface embodying the inventions disclosed and claimed in said Roos Patent and in the patents or patent applications set forth in Schedule A, or in any of them; Provided, However, that the right, license and privilege herein and hereby granted is specifically limited to the plaster board and building structures incorporating the same, as set forth in said Schedule A, and does not extend to any other product or structure.

IV

(a) It is expressly understood and agreed that the indivisible and non-exclusive rights, licenses and privileges aforesaid are granted, and they are hereby accepted, upon the express condition that Gypsum Company shall have, and it hereby reserves, the right to determine and fix at any time, and to change from time to time, during the existence of said patents and so long as said rights, licenses and privileges granted hereunder shall con-
9617 tinue, the minimum price or prices at which Licensee shall or may sell plaster board having a metallized surface which is covered by said Roos Patent or any of the said patents set forth in Schedule A, or which shall embody the inventions or improvements set forth and claimed in any patents issued upon any of the applications for patent set forth in said Schedule A, provided that the right hereinabove reserved to determine and fix the minimum price or prices of any such plaster board shall not be exercised with respect to any such plaster board embodying only the inventions or improvements, or one or more of them, set forth and claimed in any of the applications for patent set forth in said Schedule A, prior to the date when the patent or patents shall have been granted or issued upon such application or applications, respectively.

(b) In the event Gypsum Company shall exercise the right thus reserved, namely, to determine and fix at any time, and to change from time to time, such minimum price or prices, it shall notify Licensee of its election to exercise such right, and shall include in such notice, or accompany such notice by, a statement of such minimum price or prices at which Licensee shall or may sell said plaster board having a metallized surface, manufactured by Licensee, and thereafter shall give Licensee written or telegraphic notice of any change in such price or prices; and Licensee expressly covenants and agrees that it will not, so long as this agreement shall continue in force and effect, after receipt of such notice given in accordance with the terms and conditions hereof, directly or indirectly, sell or offer for sale any plaster board having a metallized surface manufactured by said Licensee embodying the inventions and improvements set forth in said Roos Patent or in any of said patents set forth in said Schedule A, or on any product covered by any of the patent rights aforesaid.

VI.

It is expressly understood that Licensee shall have no right, without the written consent of Gypsum Company first obtained, to manufacture any of said patented material for any other manufacturer of plaster board, whether or not licensed under said patents, or to sell such patented material to any other such manufacturer, or to deliver any of the same to any person, firm or corporation whatsoever on consignment.

VII.

It is expressly understood and agreed that the 9621 rights, licenses and privileges herein granted are and shall be personal to Licensee, and none of said rights, licenses and privileges, nor any right herein or thereunder, shall be sold, assigned, or transferred without the written consent of Gypsum Company first obtained, nor shall Licensee permit the same, or any of them, to be transferred by operation of law; and Provided, however, that such rights, licenses, and privileges may be assigned by Licensee to any company acquiring all of the business and assets of said Licensee, on condition that Licensee shall first obtain an agreement in writing from any such assignee, in which such agreement such assignee agrees to assume all of the obligations of Licensee under this agreement and agrees to be bound by all of the terms and conditions hereof, and shall deliver such agreement to Gypsum Company.

VIII.

In the event Gypsum Company shall, subsequent to the effective date hereof, grant to any other person, firm or corporation, any license under said Roos Patent or under said patents or applications for patent set forth in said Schedule A, for the manufacture, use, or sale of plaster board having a metallized surface, and embodying the claims or inventions set forth and claimed in said patents or said applications for patent, upon terms more favorable than those granted hereunder to Licensee, then Gypsum Company will grant to Licensee a license upon the same terms, or will extend to Licensee the same right granted to such other licensee.

IX.

Licensee agrees to keep true and accurate books of accounts, showing the total amount of plaster board having a metallized surface manufactured and/or sold by Licensee under the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted, and the prices at which the same have been sold. Such books and records shall at all times during business hours be open to the inspection of Gypsum Company or its duly authorized representatives. Gypsum Company shall have the right to make copies of any of such records and make memoranda therefrom, provided that if at the time of such examination Licensee shall so request, such examination shall be made by a certified public accountant satisfactory to Gypsum Company, in which event the expense of such examination by the said certified public accountant shall be borne by Licensee.

Licensee agrees that on or before the fifteenth day of each calendar month it will furnish to Gypsum Company a written report, under the hand and verification of some officer or other duly authorized agent of Licensee, showing the total amount of plaster board having a metallized surface sold by Licensee during the preceding calendar month and which was manufactured by Licensee under the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted, and also showing whether such plaster board had one or two metallized surfaces, together with the prices at which the same shall have been sold, and at the time of furnishing such report, Licensee will pay to Gypsum Company the full royalty as herein provided for such plaster board having a metallized surface so sold by Licensee during such preceding calendar month. Such reports shall be furnished to Gypsum Company at its principal office, at Chicago, Illinois.

XI.

Licensee expressly covenants and agrees that all sales by Licensee hereunder of plaster board having a metallized surface shall be bona fide sales thereof, and Licensee further expressly covenants and agrees that no such products shall be placed on consignment. For the purposes of this agreement, a sale shall be considered to have been made not later than the date on which the goods are shipped.

9623

Licensee agrees that all plaster board having a metallized surface sold by it hereunder shall be numbered with the respective numbers of any appropriate patents under which the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted are granted, and covering the manufacture, sale, or use thereof. Gypsum Company shall have the right from time to time to specify the substance of the notice with which said products shall be so marked.

XIII.

As one of the considerations for the indivisible and non-exclusive rights, licenses and privileges herein and hereby granted to Licensee, Licensee agrees that it will not at any time during the life of this agreement, or during the existence of said rights, licenses and privileges, directly or indirectly, by itself or through or together with another or others, contest the validity of said letters patent, or of said patent rights, or of any letters patent hereafter issued upon said applications so set forth in said Schedule A, or the right or title of Gypsum Company therein or thereto as herein or as in said Schedule A set forth; but in the event that any of said patents under which Licensee is licensed hereunder is held invalid or of limited construction by a court of competent jurisdiction from whose decision no appeal is or can be taken, then the Licensee shall have the right to make, use or vend the structure so held to be outside of the scope of said patent rights, free and clear of the terms of this agreement.

9624 Licensee agrees to give prompt notice of any suit or action which shall be brought against it in consequence of practicing the inventions set forth in said patents and said patent rights, and thereupon, if Gypsum Company shall desire to conduct the defense of such suit or action, it shall have the right to do so, but Licensee shall have the right, in such event, to be represented in such suit or action, at its own expense, by counsel of its own selection. Gypsum Company shall not, by undertaking to conduct the defense of any such suit or action, be under any obligation to indemnify the Licensee against any judgment, order or decreee or other result therein.

XIV.

(a) In the event Licensee shall fail to make any report or shall fail to pay the royalty herein provided to be paid, or in the event that Licensee shall sell any of the materials covered by the price restriction provisions of Paragraph IV hereof, at a price or prices lower than the specified price or prices established and fixed by Gypsum Company as herein provided, Gypsum Company shall have the right to cancel all of the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted to Licensee; provided, however, that Licensee shall not be relieved thereby from any liability accrued at the time of such cancellation. In the event of any such breach, Gypsum Company shall give written notice to Licensee of the default or defaults claimed by Gypsum Company to have occurred, and of the desire of Gypsum Company to cancel the rights, licenses and privileges of Licensee hereunder; and if Licensee shall not make good the default or defaults complained of within a period of thirty (30) days from the giving of such notice, then all of the rights, licenses and privileges of Licensee hereunder shall forthwith cease and terminate without further action on the part of Gypsum Company; provided, however, that 9625 if, upon the giving of any such notice, Licensee shall deny that the defaults, or any of them, complained of have occurred, then the question as to whether the default or defaults, the occurrence of which is so denied by Licensee, have in fact occurred, shall be referred to arbitration under Paragraph XV hereof.

(b) In the event that such arbiters find that such default or defaults have occurred, then Licensee shall promptly cure the same, and in any event shall cure the same within thirty (30) days from the date of the finding of such arbiters; and in the event such default or defaults shall not be so cured within the time limited, then the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted to Licensee shall forthwith cease and determine without further action on the part of Gypsum Company; the termination of said rights, licenses and privileges following the finding of the arbiters as aforesaid shall not release Licensee from any liability then existing.

(c) In the event (1) that Licensee shall be adjudicated a bankrupt, or (2) a receiver shall be appointed for Licensee, whose appointment shall not be vacated within sixty (60) days thereafter, then the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted to Licensee shall forthwith cease and determine, without further action on the part of Gypsum Company, provided that such termination shall not relieve Licensee of any and all liability then existing.

(d) The waiver by Gypsum Company of any breach on the part of Licensee shall not be interpreted as constituting a waiver of any further or other breach or breaches.

(e) In the event any default shall have occurred as specified in sub-paragraph (a) of this Paragraph XIV, Gypsum Company may give notice of such default without stating its desire to terminate the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted to Licensee, and in the event
9626 such defaults shall not be cured by Licensee within the times mentioned in said sub-paragraph (a), Gypsum Company shall have the right, without terminating the said rights, licenses and privileges herein granted to Licensee, to maintain any appropriate action hereunder, at law or in equity, for the collection of license fees or royalties, or for damages, or for any other remedy as may be appropriate. The provisions mentioned in said sub-paragraph (a) with respect to arbitrating the fact as to whether any default or defaults complained of has or have in fact occurred, shall be applicable in all respects in the event notice of default is given without any statement by Gypsum Company of its desire to terminate the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted to Licensee, excepting that if the arbiters shall find that any of said defaults complained of shall have occurred, then Gypsum Company shall have the same right, without a termination of said rights, licenses and privileges so granted to Licensee, to maintain its appropriate action hereunder.

XV.

Any question subject to arbitration under any provision of this contract shall be arbitrated in accordance with the rules then obtaining of the American Arbitration Association. The finding or findings of the arbiters with respect to the occurrence or non-occurrence of any claimed default, shall be final and conclusive. In the event the finding or findings of the arbiters shall be with respect to any default or defaults, or claimed default or defaults, in the payment of royalties or other sums of money herein required to be by the Licensee to Gypsum Company and the arbiters shall find that such default or defaults shall have occurred, the arbiters shall in their finding fix and determine the amount of royalties or other sums of money due from License to Gypsum Company, whereupon Licensee will 9627 promptly pay the same to Gypsum Company, and in any event will pay the same within the times hereinbefore mentioned in Paragraph XIV hereof for the curing of defaults, provided that Gypsum Company shall have the right (but without being limited to such remedy) to have a summary judgment entered in its favor against Licensee for the amount so found to be due by the arbiters in any court of competent jurisdiction.

XVI.

Any notice to be given under the terms hereof may be served by either party by mailing such notice to the other party hereto, by registered mail, postage prepaid, addressed to such party at its last known principal office, and the deposit of any such notice in the United States mails, registered, postage prepaid, and so addressed, shall constitute service of notice hereunder. Any telegraphic notice given under Paragraph IV hereof shall be confirmed in writing. Either party may change, from time to time, the address to which all notices shall be mailed, provided that in the absence of any different address, the respective addresses herein first above stated shall be the addresses to which such notices shall be mailed.

XVII.

9628 construed as extending any license for the manufacture and/or use and/or sale of plaster board not having a metallized surface heretofore or hereafter granted under any other agreement between the parties hereto.

In the event that the exclusive right and license of the Gypsum Company, as set forth in said Schedule A hereto, shall for any reason whatsoever (whether on account of the default of the Gypsum Company or otherwise) terminate, and such termination shall have the effect of terminating or shall result in the termination of any of the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted to the Licensee, then this agreement shall immediately terminate, without further act on the part of either of the parties hereto, provided that Licensee shall not be relieved thereby from any liability then existing, and provided further that Gypsum

Company shall not be liable in any way to Licensee on account of such termination. Gypsum Company agrees that if its said exclusive right and license shall so be terminated, it will promptly notify Licensee of such termination.

XVIII.

Anything hereinabove contained to the contrary notwithstanding, this agreement and the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted to the Licensee may be cancelled and terminated, at any time, by either party hereto, by at least ninety (90) days' prior written notice to the other party of the election of the party serving the notice to exercise such right of cancellation and of the date on which such cancellation shall be effective, but such cancellation shall not relieve either party from any liability accrued or due at the date of such cancellation; Provided, However, that if Gypsum Company shall exercise the right to cancel this agreement as in this paragraph provided, then within ninety (90) days of its said notice it will submit to Licensee
9629 a new contract embodying a proposal for a non-exclusive license under said patents for the life of said patents, for acceptance by Licensee within ten (10) days from the date of such submittal.

PLASTER BOARD AGREEMENT

This agreement, made and entered into this 14th day of August A. D. 1935, by and between United States Gypsum Company, a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Illinois and having its principal place of business at 300 West Adams Street, Chicago, Illinois, hereinafter referred to as the "Gypsum Company," and Ebsary Gypsum Company, a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York and having its principal place of business at 52 Vanderbilt Avenue, New York, New York, hereinafter referred to as "Licensee," witnesseth:

Whereas, Gypsum Company is the owner of United States Letters Patent to Roos No. 1,914,345, relating to wall construction, and is also the owner of certain patent rights set forth in Schedule A hereunto annexed, relating to building structures or elements for said structures; and

Whereas Licensee desires an indivisible and non-exclusive license from Gypsum Company, under the terms and conditions hereinafter set forth and as hereinafter specified, to manufacture, use and sell plaster board under said Roos Patent No. 1,914,345 and under said patent rights set forth in said Schedule A; and

Whereas, Gypsum Company is willing to grant such license, under the terms and conditions hereinafter set forth and as hereinafter specified,

Now, therefore, in consideration of the premises, the sum of One Dollar ($1.00) in hand paid, receipt of 9632 which is hereby acknowledged by Gypsum Company, and the mutual covenants herein contained, it is hereby agreed as follows:

I

Gypsum Company hereby represents and warrants that it has the right to grant the license hereby granted.

II

The term "plaster board," as herein used, is intended to include material commonly known as plasterboard and also materials known as plaster wall board, plaster lath, and plaster sheathing boards.

III

Gypsum Company has agreed to and does hereby give and grant unto Licensee the indivisible, non-exclusive right, license and privilege to make, use and sell plaster board having a metallized surface embodying the inventions disclosed and claimed in said Roos Patent and in the patents or patent applications set forth in Schedule A, or in any of them; Provided, However, that the right, license and privilege herein and hereby granted is specifically limited to the plaster board and building structures incorporating the same as set forth in said Schedule A, and does not extend to any other product or structure.

IV

(a) It is expressly understood and agreed that the indivisible and non-exclusive rights, licenses and privileges aforesaid are granted, and they are hereby accepted, upon the express condition that Gypsum Company shall have, and it hereby reserves, the right to determine and fix at any time, and to change from time to time, during the existence of said patents and so long as said rights, licenses and privileges granted hereunder shall 9633 continue, the minimum price or prices at which Licensee shall or may sell plaster board having a metallized surface which is covered by said Roos Patent or any of the said patents set forth in Schedule A, or which shall embody the inventions or improvements set forth and claimed in any patents issued upon any of the applications for patent set forth in said Schedule A, provided that the right hereinabove reserved to determine and fix the minimum price or prices of any such plaster board shall not be exercised with respect to any such plaster board embodying only the inventions or improvements, or one or more of them, set forth and claimed in any of the applications for patent set forth in said Schedule A, prior to the date when the patent or patents shall have been granted or issued upon such application or applications, respectively.

(b) In the event Gypsum Company shall exercise the right thus reserved, namely, to determine and fix at any time, and to change from time to time, such minimum price or prices, it shall notify Licensee of its election to exercise such right, and shall include in such notice, or accompany such notice by, a statement of such minimum price or prices at which Licensee shall or may sell said plaster board having a metallized surface, manufactured by Licensee, and thereafter shall give Licensee written or telegraphic notice of any change in such price or prices; and Licensee expressly covenants and agrees that it will not, so long as this agreement shall continue in force and effect, after receipt of such notice given in accordance with the terms and conditions hereof, directly or indirectly, sell or offer for sale any plaster board having a metallized surface manufactured by said Licensee embodying the inventions and improvements set forth in said Roos Patent or in any of said patents set forth in said Schedule
9634 A, or embodying the inventions or improvements set forth and claimed in any patents issued upon any applications for patent set forth in said Schedule A, at a price or prices less than that stated by Gypsum Company in said notice or in any such written or telegraphic notice of change in said price or prices. The said minimum price or prices at which Licensee shall or may sell said patented products as determined and fixed by Gypsum Company may be the same for all classes of trade, provided that Gypsum Company may, at any time and from time to time, determine and fix different prices for different classes of trade. It is further understood and agreed that any such minimum price or prices so determined and fixed by Gypsum Company may be made with respect to each trade market or place where said plaster board having a metallized surfaced may be sold, and may also be made with respect to different quantities purchased, such as carloads, less than carloads and truck loads, and that such minimum price or prices may differ in amount in each different market or place according to market conditions or quantities, all as may be determined by Gypsum Company.

(c) The said minimum price or prices so determined and fixed from time to time by Gypsum Company shall not be more than the respective price or prices at which Gypsum Company itself determines to sell such products embodying the said inventions and improvements hereinbefore mentioned, to its own like trade in the same market.

(d) It is understood and agreed that all orders, contracts, or commitments for the future sale of said plaster board having a metallized surface and embodying the inventions and improvements hereinbefore mentioned shall be made subject to establishment of, and/or change in, such minimum price at which said materials or products may be sold, and that all shipments thereof shall 9635 be made at no less than the minimum price or prices contained in any notice of establishment of, and/or change in, price or prices received before shipment; provided, however, that on all orders taken for immediate shipment at not less than the minimum price, if any, then in effect, shipment thereof may be made at the price at which taken within five days of the date of such order; provided, further, that written contracts may be made at not less than the minimum price, if any, then in effect, to furnish such patented material for any specific work or job then contemplated or under construction; Provided, Further, that where contracts for specific work or jobs have been let to general contractors before notice of establishment of, and/or change in, price, then Licensee, if it has made a commitment for any such specific work or job prior to such notice, may at any time within thirty (30) days after such notice make a written contract to furnish the material for such specific work or job, at the price at which it was committed, but not less than the minimum price, if any, in effect at the time of such commitment. Within ten (10) days after each notice of minimum price or change thereof, Licensee will furnish to Gypsum Company a written statement of all specific work or jobs, contracts and commitments which Licensee had at the time such notice was given, showing the date of the contract or commitment, name of purchaser, location and description of specific work or job, quantity of material, and price at which the same was sold or commitment made, and shall immediately notify Gypsum Company of the making of any such contract for such specific work or job within the thirty-day term hereinbefore mentioned, and of the completion or abandonment of all specific work, jobs, contracts and commitments theretofore had by Licensee. It is understood and agreed that no such 9636 contract or commitment shall be recognized as valid hereunder, unless the contract or commitment shall have been made in good faith before notice of making a price or change thereof, and unless such contract or commitment shall have been for some specific work or job then contemplated or under construction in which such patented material specified in the said contract or commitment is to be furnished or installed.

As consideration for the rights, licenses, and privileges herein granted to Licensee, Licensee agrees to pay royalty to Gypsum Company for all plaster board having a metallized surface manufactured and sold by Licensee and which are covered by claims of said Roos patent or patents set forth in the said Schedule A, or patents which may be issued under any of the applications set forth under said Schedule A, or which are to be used in making structures covered by said patent rights, at the rate of forty cents (40¢) per thousand square feet surface area where only one face is metallized, and at the rate of fifty cents (50¢) per thousand square feet where both faces are metallized, on any product covered by any of the patent rights aforesaid.

It is expressly understood that Licensee shall have no right, without the written consent of Gypsum Company

first obtained, to manufacture any of said patented material for any other manufacturer of plaster board, whether or not licensed under said patents, or to sell such patented material to any other such manufacturer, or to deliver any of the same to any person, firm or corporation whatsoever on consignment.

It is expressly understood and agreed that the 9637 rights, licenses and privileges herein granted are and shall be personal to Licensee, and none of said rights, licenses and privileges, nor any right herein or thereunder, shall be sold, assigned, or transferred without the written consent of Gypsum Company first obtained, nor shall Licensee permit the same, or any of them, to be transferred by operation of law; Provided, however, that such rights, licenses, and privileges may be assigned by Licensee to any company acquiring all of the business and assets of said Licensee, on condition that Licensee shall first obtain an agreement in writing from any such assignee, in which such agreement such assignee agrees to assume all of the obligations of Licensee under this agreement and agrees to be bound by all of the terms and conditions hereof, and shall deliver such agreement to Gypsum Company.

VIII

In the event Gypsum Company shall, subsequent to the effective date hereof, grant to any other person, firm or corporation, any license under said Roos Patent or under said patents or applications for patent set forth in said Schedule A, for the manufacture, use, or sale of plaster board having a metallized surface, and embodying the claims or inventions set forth and claimed in said patents or said applications for patent, upon terms more favorable than those granted hereunder to Licensee, then Gypsum Company will grant to Licensee a license upon the same terms, or will extend to Licensee the same right granted to such other licensee.

IX

Licensee agrees to keep true and accurate books of account, showing the total amount of plaster board having a metallized surface manufactured and/or sold by

have been sold. Such books and records shall at all times during business hours be open to the inspection of Gypsum Company or its duly authorized representatives. Gypsum Company shall have the right to make copies of any of such records and make memoranda therefrom, provided that if at the time of such examination Licensee shall so request, such examination shall be made by a certified public accountant satisfactory to Gypsum Company, in which event the expense of such examination by the said certified public accountant shall be borne by Licensee.

Licensee agrees that on or before the fifteenth day of each calendar month it will furnish to Gypsum Company a written report, under the hand and verification of some officer or other duly authorized agent of Licensee, showing the total amount of plaster board having a metallized surface sold by Licensee during the preceding calendar month and which was manufactured by Licensee under the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted, and also showing whether such plaster board had one or two metallized surfaces, together with the prices at which the same shall have been sold, and at the time of furnishing such report, Licensee will pay to Gypsum Company the full royalty as herein provided for such plaster board having a metallized surface so sold by Licensee during such preceding calendar month. Such reports shall be furnished to Gypsum Company at its principal office, at Chicago, Illinois.

XI

Licensee expressly covenants and agrees that all sales by Licensee hereunder of plaster board having a metallized surface shall be bona fide sales thereof, and 9639 Licensee further expressly covenants and agrees that no such products shall be placed on consignment. For the purposes of this agreement, a sale shall be considered to have been made not later than the date on which the goods are shipped.

Licensee agrees that all plaster board having a metallized surface sold by it hereunder shall be numbered with the respective numbers of any appropriate patents under which the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted

are granted, and covering the manufacture, sale, or use thereof. Gypsum Company shall have the right from time to time to specify the substance of the notice with which said products shall be so marked.

As one of the considerations for the indivisible and non-exclusive rights, licenses and privileges herein and hereby granted to Licensee, Licensee agrees that it will not at any time during the life of this agreement, or during the existence of said rights, licenses and privileges, directly or indirectly, by itself or through or together with another or others, contest the validity of said letters patent, or of said patent rights, or of any letters patent hereafter issued upon said applications so set forth in said Schedule A, or the right or title of Gypsum Company therein or thereto as herein or as in said Schedule A set forth, but in the event that any of said patents under which Licensee is licensed hereunder is held invalid or of limited construction by a court of competent jurisdiction from whose decision no appeal is or can be taken, then the Licensee shall have the right to make, use or vend the structure so held to be outside of the scope of said patent rights, free and clear of the terms of this agreement.

9640 Licensee agrees to give prompt notice of any suit or action which shall be brought against it in consequence of practicing the inventions set forth in said patents and said patent rights, and thereupon, if Gypsum Company shall desire to conduct the defense of such suit or action, it shall have the right to do so, but Licensee shall have the right, in such event, to be represented in such suit or action, at its own expense, by counsel of its own election. Gypsum Company shall not, by undertaking to conduct the defense of any such suit or action, be under any obligation to indemnify the Licensee against any judgment, order or decree or other result therein.

(a) In the event Licensee shall fail to make any report or shall fail to pay the royalty herein provided to be paid, or in the event that Licensee shall sell any of the materials covered by the price restriction provisions of Paragraph IV hereof, at a price or prices lower than the specified price or prices established and fixed by Gypsum Company as herein provided, Gypsum Company shall have the right to cancel all of the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted to Licensee; provided, however, that Licensee shall not be relieved thereby from any liability accrued at the time of such cancellation. In the event of any such breach, Gypsum Company shall give written notice to Licensee of the default or defaults claimed by Gypsum Company to have occurred, and of the desire of Gypsum Company to cancel the rights, licenses and privileges of Licensee hereunder; and if Licensee shall not make good the default or defaults complained of within a period of thirty (30) days from the giving of such notice, then all of the rights, licenses and privileges of Licensee hereunder shall forthwith cease and terminate without further action on the part of Gypsum Com-9641 pany; provided, however, that if, upon the giving of any such notice, Licensee shall deny that the defaults, or any of them, complained of have occurred, then the question as to whether the default or defaults, the occurrence of which is so denied by Licensee, have in fact occurred, shall be referred to arbitration under Paragraph XV hereof.

(b) In the event that such arbiters find that such default or defaults have occurred, then Licensee shall promptly cure the same, and in any event shall cure the same within thirty (30) days from the date of the finding of such arbiters; and in the event such default or defaults shall not be so cured within the time limited, then the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted to Licensee shall forthwith cease and determine without further action on the part of Gypsum Company; the termination of said rights, licenses and privileges following the finding of the arbiters as aforesaid shall not release Licensee from any liability then existing.

(c) In the event (1) that Licensee shall be adjudicated a bankrupt, or (2) a receiver shall be appointed for Licensee, whose appointment shall not be vacated within sixty (60) days thereafter, then the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted to Licensee shall forthwith cease and determine, without further action on the part of Gypsum Company, provided that such termination shall not relieve Licensee of any and all liability then existing.

(d) The waiver by Gypsum Company of any breach on the part of Licensee shall not be interpreted as constituting a waiver of any further or other breach or breaches.

(e) In the event any default shall have occurred as specified in sub-paragraph (a) of this Paragraph XIV, Gypsum Company may give notice of such default without stating its desire to terminate the rights, licenses
9642 and privileges herein granted to Licensee, and in the event such defaults shall not be cured by Licensee within the times mentioned in said sub-paragraph (a), Gypsum Company shall have the right, without terminating the said rights, licenses and privileges herein granted to Licensee, to maintain any appropriate action hereunder, at law or in equity, for the collection of license fees or royalties, or for damages or for any other remedy as may be appropriate. The provisions mentioned in said sub-paragraph (a) with respect to arbitrating the fact as to whether any default or defaults complained of has or have in fact occurred, shall be applicable in all respects in the event notice of default is given without any statement by Gypsum Company of its desire to terminate the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted to Licensee, excepting that if the arbiters shall find that any of said defaults complained of shall have occurred, then Gypsum Company shall have the same right, without a termination of said rights, licenses and privileges so granted to Licensee; to maintain its appropriate action hereunder.

Any question subject to arbitration under any provision of this contract shall be arbitrated in accordance with the rules then obtaining of the American Arbitration Association. The finding or findings of the arbiters with respect to the occurrence or non-occurrence of any claimed default, shall be final and conclusive. In the event the finding or findings of the arbiters shall be with respect to any default or defaults, or claimed default or defaults, in the payment of royalties or other sums of money herein required to be paid by the Licensee to Gypsum Company and the arbiters shall find that such default or defaults shall have occurred, the arbiters shall in their finding fix and determine the amount of royalties or other sums of money due from License to Gypsum Company, whereupon 9643 Licensee will promptly pay the same to Gypsum Company, and in any event will pay the same within the times hereinbefore mentioned in Paragraph XIV hereof for the curing of defaults, provided that Gypsum Company shall have the right (but without being limited to such remedy) to have a summary judgment entered in its favor against Licensee for the amount so found to be due by the arbiters in any court of competent jurisdiction.

XVI

Any notice to be given under the terms hereof may be served by either party by mailing such notice to the other party hereto, by registered mail, postage prepaid, addressed to such party at its last known principal office, and the deposit of any such notice in the United States mails, registered, postage prepaid, and so addressed, shall constitute service of notice hereunder. Any telegraphic notice given under Paragraph IV hereof shall be confirmed in writing. Either party may change, from time to time, the address to which all notices shall be mailed, provided that in the absence of any different address, the respective addresses herein first above stated shall be the addresses to which such notices shall be mailed.

XVII

Except as herein otherwise expressly provided, this agreement shall remain in force for the full term of each patent under which the respective rights, licenses and privileges are hereby granted, and shall be binding upon and inure to the benefit of the parties hereto, their successors and assigns, provided, however, that nothing in this Paragraph XVII contained shall be construed to permit any assignment hereof or of any of the rights, licenses, and privileges herein granted, except as herein otherwise specifically provided. Nothing herein contained 9644 shall be construed as extending any license for the manufacture and/or use and/or sale of plaster board not having a metallized surface heretofore or hereafter granted under any other agreement between the parties hereto.

In the event that the exclusive right and license of the Gypsum Company, as set forth in said Schedule A hereto, shall for any reason whatsoever (whether on account of the default of the Gypsum Company or otherwise) terminate, and such termination shall have the effect of terminating or shall result in the termination of any of the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted to the Licensee, then this agreement shall immediately terminate, without further act on the part of either of the parties hereto, provided that Licensee shall not be relieved thereby from any liability than existing, and provided further that Gypsum Company shall not be liable in any way to Licensee on account of such termination. Gypsum Company agrees that if its said exclusive right and license shall so be terminated, it will promptly notify Licensee of such termination.

Whereas, Gypsum Company is the owner of United States Letters Patent to Roos No. 1,914,345, relating to wall construction, and is also the owner of certain patent rights set forth in Schedule A hereunto annexed, relating to building structures or elements for said structures; and

Whereas, Licensee desires an indivisible and non-exclusive license from Gypsum Company, under the terms and conditions hereinafter set forth and as hereinafter specified, to manufacture, use and sell plaster board under said Roos patent No. 1,914,345 and under said patent rights set forth in said Schedule A: and

Whereas, Gypsum Company is willing to grant such license, under the terms and conditions hereinafter set forth and as hereinafter specified,

Now, therefore, in consideration of the premises, the sum of One Dollar ($1.00) in hand paid, receipt of which is hereby acknowledged by Gypsum Company, and the mutual covenants herein contained, it is hereby agreed as follows:

I

Gypsum Company hereby represents and warrants that it has the right to grant the License hereby granted.

II

The term "plaster board," as herein used, is intended to include material commonly known as plasterboard and also materials known as plaster wall board, plaster lath, and plaster sheathing boards.

III

Gypsum Company has agreed to and does hereby give and grant unto Licensee the indivisible, non-exclusive right, license and privilege to make, use and sell plaster board having ametallized surface embodying the inventions disclosed and claimed in said Roos Patent and in the patents or patent applications set forth in Schedule A, or in any of them; Provided, However, that the right, license and privilege herein and hereby granted is specifically limited to the plaster board and building structures incorporating the same as set forth in said Schedule A, and does not extend to any other product or structure.

IV

(a) It is expressly understood and agreed that the indivisible and non-exclusive rights, licenses and privileges

aforesaid are granted, and they are hereby accepted, upon the express condition that Gypsum Company shall have, and it hereby reserves, the right to determine and fix at any time, and to change from time to time, during the existence of said patents and so long as said rights, licenses and privileges granted hereunder shall continue, the minimum price or prices at which Licensee shall or may sell plaster board having a metallized surface which is covered by said Roos Patent or any of the said patents set forth in Schedule A, or which shall embody the inventions or improvements set forth and claimed in any patents issued upon any of the applications for patent set forth in said Schedule A, provided that the right hereinabove reserved to determine and fix the minimum price or prices of any such plaster board shall not be exercised with respect to any such plaster board embodying only the inventions or improvements, or one or more of them, set forth and claimed in any of the applications for patent set forth in said Schedule A, prior to the date when the patent or patents shall have been granted or issued upon such application or application respectively.

(b) In the event Gypsum Company shall exercise the right thus reserved, namely, to determine and fix at any time, and to change from time to time, such minimum price or prices, it shall notify Licensee of its election to exercise such right, and shall include in such notice, or accompany such notice by, a statement of such minimum price or prices at which Licensee shall or may sell said plaster board having a metallized surface, manufactured by 9649 Licensee; and thereafter shall give Licensee written or telegraphic notice of any change in such price or prices; and Licensee expressly covenants and agrees that it will not, so long as this agreement shall continue in force and effect, after receipt of such notice given in accordance with the terms and conditions hereof, directly or indirectly, sell or offer for sale any plaster board having a metallized surface manufactured by said Licensee embodying the inventions and improvements set forth in said Roos Patent or in any of said patents set forth in said Schedule A, or embodying the inventions or improvements set forth and claimed in any patents issued upon any application for patent set forth in said Schedule A, at a price or prices less than that stated by Gypsum Company in said notice or in any such written or telegraphic notice of change in said price or prices. The said minimum price or prices at which Licensee shall or may sell said patented products as determined and fixed by Gypsum Company may be the same for all classes of trade, provided that Gypsum Company may, at any time and from time to time, determine and fix different prices for different classes of trade. It is further understood and agreed that any such minimum price or prices so determined and fixed by Gypsum Company may be made with respect to each trade market or place where said plaster board having a metallized surface may be sold, and may also be made with respect to different quantities purchased, such as carloads, less than carloads and truck loads, and that such minimum price or prices may differ in amount in each different market or place according to market conditions or quantities, all as may be determined by Gypsum Company.

(c) The said minimum price or prices so determined and fixed from time to time by Gypsum Company shall not be more than the respective price or prices at which Gypsum Company itself determines to sell such products embodying the said inventions and improvements hereinbefore mentioned, to its own like trade in the same market.

(d) It is understood and agreed that all orders, contracts, or commitments for the future sale of said plaster board having a metallized surface and embodying the inventions and improvements hereinbefore mentioned shall be made subject to establishment of, and/or change in, such minimum price at which said materials or products may be sold, and that all shipments thereof shall be made at no less than the minimum price or prices contained in any notice of establishment of, and/or change in, price or prices received before shipment; provided, however, that on all orders taken for immediate shipment at not less 9650 than the minimum price, if any, then in effect, shipments thereof may be made at the price at which taken within five days of the date of such order; provided, further, that written contracts may be made at not less than the minimum price, if any, then in effect, to furnish such patented material for any specific work or job then contemplated or under construction; Provided, Further, that where contracts for specific work or jobs have been let to general contractors before notice of establishment of, and/or change in, price, then Licensee, if it has made a commitment for any such specific work or job prior to such notice, may at any time within thirty (30) days after such notice make a written contract to furnish the material for such specific work or job, at the price at which it was committed, but not less than the minimum price, if any, in effect at the time of such commitment. Within ten (10) days after each notice of minimum price or change thereof, Licensee will furnish to Gypsum Company a written statement of all specific work or jobs, contracts and commitments which Licensee had at the time such notice was given, showing the date of the contract or commitment, name of purchaser, location and description of specific work or job, quantity of material, and price at which the same was sold or commitment made, and shall immediately notify Gypsum Company of the making of any such contract for such specific work or job within the thirty-day term hereinbefore mentioned, and of the completion or abandonment of all specific work, jobs, contracts and commitments theretofore had by Licensee. It is understood and agreed that no such contractor commitment shall be recognized as valid hereunder, unless the contract or commitment shall have been made in good faith before notice of making a price or change thereof, and unless such contract or commitment shall have been for some specific work or job then contemplated or under construction in which such patented material specified in the said contract or commitment is to be furnished or installed.

As consideration for the rights, licenses, and privileges herein granted to Licensee, Licensee agrees to pay royalty to Gypsum Company for all plaster board having a metallized surface manufactured and sold by Licensee and which are covered by claims of said Roos patent or patents set forth in the said Schedule A, or patents which may be issued under any of the applications set forth under said Schedule A, or which are to be used in making structures covered by said patent rights, at the rate of forty cents (40¢) per thousand square feet surface area where 9651 only one face is metallized, and at the rate of fifty cents (50¢) per thousand square feet where both faces are metallized, on any product covered by any of the patent rights aforesaid.

It is expressly understood that Licensee shall have no right, without the written consent of Gypsum Company first obtained, to manufacture any of said patented material for any other manufacturer of plaster board, whether or not licensed under said patents, or to sell such patented material to any other such manufacturer or to deliver any of the same to any person, firm or corporation whatsoever on consignment.

It is expressly and agreed that the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted are and shall be personal to Licensee, and none of said rights, licenses and privileges, nor any right herein or thereunder, shall be sold, assigned, or transferred without the written consent of Gypsum Company first obtained, nor shall Licensee permit the same, or any of them, to be transferred by operation of law; Provided, however, that such rights, licenses, and privileges may be assigned by Licensee to any company acquiring all of the business and assets of said Licensee, on condition that Licensee shall first obtain an agreement in writing from any such assignee, in which such agreement such assignee agrees to assume all of the obligations of Licensee under this agreement and agrees to be bound by all of the terms and conditions hereof, and shall deliver such agreement to Gypsum Company.

VIII

In the event Gypsum Company shall, subsequent to the effective date hereof, grant to any other person, firm or corporation, any license under said Roos Patent or under said patents or application for patent set forth in said Schedule A, for the manufacture, use, or sale of plaster board having a metallized surface, and embodying the claims or inventions set forth and claimed in said patents or said applications for patent, upon terms more favorable than those granted hereunder to Licensee, then Gypsum Company will grant to Licensee a license upon the same terms, or will extend to Licensee the same right granted to such other licensee.

Licensee agrees to keep true and accurate books of account, showing the total amount of plaster board having a metallized surface manufactured and/or sold by Licensee under the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted, and the prices at which the same have been sold. Such books and records shall at all times during business-hours be open to the inspection of Gypsum Company or its duly authorized representatives. Gypsum Company shall have the right to make copies of any of such records and make memoranda therefrom, provided that if at the time of such examination Licensee shall so request, such examination shall be made by a certified public accountant satisfactory to Gypsum Company, in which event the expense of such examination by the said certified public accountant shall be borne by Licensee.

Licensee agrees that on or before the fifteenth day of each calendar month it will furnish to Gypsum Company a written report, under the hand and verification of some officer or other duly authorized agent of Licensee, showing the total amount of plaster board having a metallized surface sold by Licensee during the preceding calendar month and which was manufactured by Licensee under the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted, and also showing whether such plaster board had one or two metallized surfaces, together with the prices at which the same shall have been sold, and at the time of furnishing such report, Licensee will pay to Gypsum Company the full royalty as herein provided for such plaster board having a metallized surface so sold by Licensee during such preceding calendar month. Such reports shall be furnished to Gypsum Company at its principal office, at Chicago, Illinois.

XI

Licensee expressly covenants and agrees that all sales by Licensee hereunder of plaster board having a metallized surface shall be bona fide sales thereof, and Licensee further expressly covenants and agrees that no such products shall be placed on consignment. For the purposes of this agreement, a sale shall be considered to have been made not later than the date on which the goods are shipped.

XII

Licensee agrees that all plaster board having a metallized surface sold by it hereunder shall be numbered 9653 with the respective numbers of any appropriate patents under which the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted are granted, and covering the manufacture, sale, or use thereof. Gypsum Company shall have the right from time to time to specify the substance of the notice with which said products shall be so marked.

As one of the considerations for the indivisible and non-exclusive rights, licenses and privileges herein and hereby granted to Licensee, Licensee agrees that it will not at any time during the life of this agreement, or during the existence of said rights, licenses and privileges, directly or indirectly, by itself or through or together with another or others, contest the validity of said letters patent, or of said patent rights, or of any letters patent hereafter issued upon said applications so set forth in said Schedule A, or the right or title of Gypsum Company therein or thereto as herein or as in said Schedule A set forth, but in the event that any of said patents under which Licensee is licensed hereunder is held invalid or of limited construction by a court of competent jurisdiction from whose decision no appeal is or can be taken, then the Licensee shall have the right to make, use or vend the structure so held to be outside of the scope of said patent rights, free and clear of the terms of this agreement.

Licensee agrees to give prompt notice of any suit or action which shall be brought against it in consequence of practicing the inventions set forth in said patents and said patent rights, and thereupon, if Gypsum Company shall desire to conduct the defense of such suit or action, it shall have the right to do so but Licensee shall have the right, in such event, to be represented in such suit or action, at its own expense, by counsel of its own selection. Gypsum Company shall not, by undertaking to conduct the defense of any such suit or action, be under any obligation to indemnify the Licensee against any judgment, order or decree or other result therein.

XIV

(a) In the event Licensee shall fail to make any report or shall fail to pay the royalty herein provided to be paid, or in the event that Licensee shall sell any of the materials covered by the price restriction provisions of Paragraph IV hereof, at a price or prices lower than the specified price or prices established and fixed by Gypsum Company as herein provided, Gypsum Company shall have the right to cancel all of the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted to Licensee; provided, however, that Licensee shall not be relieved thereby from any liability accrued at the time of such cancellation. In the event of any such breach, Gypsum Company shall give written notice to Licensee of the default or defaults claimed by Gypsum Company to have occurred, and of the desire of Gypsum Company to cancel the rights, licenses and privileges of Licensee hereunder; and if Licensee shall not make good the default or defaults complained of within a period of thirty (30) days from the giving of such notice then all of the rights, licenses and privileges of Licensee hereunder shall forthwith cease and terminate without further action on the part of Gypsum Company; provided, however, that if, upon the giving of any such notice, Licensee shall deny that the defaults, or any of them, complained of have occurred, then the question as to whether the default or defaults, the occurrence of which is so denied by Licensee, have in fact occurred, shall be referred to arbitration under Paragraph XV hereof.

(b) In the event that such arbiters find that such default or defaults have occurred, then Licensee shall promptly cure the same, and in any event shall cure the same within thirty (30) days from the date of the finding of such arbiters; and in the event such default or defaults shall not be so cured within the time limited, then the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted to Licensee shall forthwith cease and determine without further action on the part of Gypsum Company; the terminationof said rights; licenses and privileges following the finding of the arbiters as aforesaid shall not release Licensee from any liability then existing.

(c) In the event (1) that Licensee shall be adjudicated a bankrupt, or (2) a receiver shall be appointed for Licensee, whose appointment shall not be vacated within sixty (60) days thereafter, then the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted to Licensee shall forthwith cease and determine, without further action on the part of Gypsum Company, provided that such termination shall not relieve Licensee of any and all liability then existing.

(d) The waiver by Gypsum Company of any breach on the part of Licensee shall not be interpreted as constituting a waiver of any further or other breach or breaches.

(e) In the event any default shall have occurred as specified in sub-paragraph (a) of this paragraph XIV, Gypsum Company may give notice of such default without stating its desire to terminate the rights, Licenses and privileges

herein granted to Licensee, and in the event such 9655 default shall not be cured by Licensee within the times mentioned in said sub-paragraph (a), Gypsum Company shall have the right, without terminating the said rights, Licenses and privileges herein granted to Licensee, to maintain any appropriate action hereunder, at law or in equity, for the collection of license fees or royalties, or for damages, or for any other remedy as may be appropriate. The provisions mentioned in said sub-paragraph (a) with respect to arbitrating the fact as to whether any default or defaults complained of has or have in fact occurred, shall be applicable in all respects in the event notice of default is given without any statement by Gypsum Company of its desire to terminate the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted to Licensee, excepting that if the arbiters shall find that any of said defaults complained of shall have occurred, then Gypsum Company shall have the same right, without a termination of said rights, licenses and privileges so granted to Licensee, to maintain its appropriate action hereunder.

XV

Any question subject to arbitration under any provision of this contract shall be arbitrated in accordance with the rules then obtaining of the American Arbitration Association. The finding or findings of the arbiters with respect to the occurrence or non-occurrence of any claim default, shall be final and conclusive. In the event the finding or findings of the arbiters shall be with respect to any default or defaults, or claimed default or defaults, in the payment of royalties or other sums of money herein required to be paid by the Licensee to Gypsum Company and the arbiters shall find that such default or defaults shall have occurred, the arbiters shall in their finding fix and determine the amount of royalties or other sums of money due from Licensee to Gypsum Company, whereupon Licensee will promptly pay the same to Gypsum Company, and in any event will pay the same within the times hereinbefore mentioned in Paragraph XIV hereof for the curing of defaults, provided that Gypsum Company shall have the right (but without being limited to such remedy) to have a summary judgment entered in its favor against Licensee for the amount so found to be due by the arbiters in any court of competent jurisdiction.

Any notice to be given under the terms hereof may be served by either party by mailing such notice to the other party hereto, by registered mail, postage prepaid, addressed to such party at its last known principal office, and the deposit of any such notice in the United States mails, registered, postage prepaid, and so addressed, shall constitute service of notice hereunder. Any telegraphic 9656 notice given under Paragraph IV hereof shall be confirmed in writing. Either party may change, from time to time, the address to which all notices shall be mailed, provided that in the absence of any different address, the respective addresses herein first above stated shall be the addresses to which such notices shall be mailed.

Except as herein otherwise expressly provided, the agreement shall remain in force for the full term of each patent under which the respective rights, licenses and privileges are hereby granted, and shall be binding upon and inure to the benefit of the parties hereto, their successors and assigns, provided, however, that nothing in this paragraph XVII contained shall be construed to permit any assignment hereof or of any of the rights, licenses, and privileges herein granted, except as herein otherwise specifically provided. Nothing herein contained shall be construed as extending any license for the manufacture and/or use and/or sale of plaster board not having a metallized surface heretofore or hereafter granted under any other agreement between the parties hereto.

In the event that the exclusive right and license of the Gypsum Company, as set forth in said Schedule A hereto, shall for any reason whatsoever (whether on account of the default of the Gypsum Company or otherwise) terminated, and such termination shall have the effect of terminating or shall result in the termination of any of the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted to the Licensee, then this agreement shall immediately terminate, without further act on the part of either of the parties hereto, provided that Licensee shall not be relieved thereby from any liability then existing, and provided further that Gypsum Company shall not be liable in any way to Licensee on account of such termination. Gypsum Company agrees that if its said exclusive right and license shall so be terminated, it will promptly notify Licensee of such termination.

Anything hereinabove contained to the contrary notwithstanding, this agreement and the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted to the Licensee may be cancelled and terminated, at any time, by either party hereto, by at least ninety (90) days' prior written notice to the other party of the election of the party serving the notice to exercise such right of cancellation and of the date on which such cancellation shall be effective, but such cancellation shall not relieve either party from any liability accrued or due at the date of such cancellation; Provided, However, that if Gypsum Company shall exercise
9657 the right to cancel this agreement as in this paragraph provided, then within ninety (90) days of its said notice it will submit to Licensee a new contract embodying a proposal for a non-exclusive license under said patents for the life of said patents, for acceptance by Licensee within ten (10) days from the date of such submittal.

In witness whereof, the parties hereto have caused these presents to be signed by their respective Presidents, attested by their respective Secretaries, and their corporate seals to be hereunto affixed, in duplicate, the date and year first above written.

(b) In the event Gypsum Company shall exercise the right thus reserved, namely, to determine and fix at any time, and to change from time to time, such minimum price or prices, it shall notify Licensee of its election to exercise such right, and shall include in such notice, or accompany such notice by, a statement of such minimum price or prices at which Licensee shall or may sell said plaster board having a metallized surface, manufactured by Licensee, and thereafter shall give Licensee written or telegraphic notice of any change in such price or prices; and Licensee expressly covenants and agrees that it will not, so long as this agreement shall continue in force and effect, after receipt of such notice given in accordance with the terms and conditions hereof, directly or indirectly, sell or offer for sale any plaster board having a metallized surface manufactured by said Licensee embodying the inventions and improvements set forth in said Roos Patent or in any of said patents set forth in said Schedule A, 9665 or embodying the inventions or improvements set forth and claimed in any patents issued upon any applications for patent set forth in said Schedule A, at a price or prices less than that stated by Gypsum Company in said notice or in any such written or telegraphic notice of change in said price or prices. The said minimum price or prices at which Licensee shall or may sell said patented products as determined and fixed by Gypsum Company may be the same for all classes of trade, provided that Gypsum Company may, at any time and from time to time, determine and fix different prices for different classes of trade. It is further understood and agreed that any such minimum price or prices so determined and fixed by Gypsum Company may be made with respect to each trade market or place where said plaster board having a metallized surface may be sold, and may also be made with respect to different quantities purchased, such as carloads, less than carloads and truck loads, and that such minimum price or prices may differ in amount in each different market or place according to market conditions or quantities, all as may be determined by Gypsum Company.

(c) The said minimum price or prices so determined and fixed from time to time by Gypsum Company shall not be more than the respective price or prices at which Gypsum Company itself determines to sell such products embodying the said inventions and improvements hereinbefore mentioned, to its own like trade in the same market.

(d) It is understood and agreed that all orders, contracts, or commitments for the future sale of said plaster board having a metallized surface and embodying the inventions and improvements hereinbefore mentioned shall be made subject to establishment of, and/or change in, such minimum price at which said materials or products may be sold, and that all shipments thereof shall be

such patented material for any specific work or job then contemplated or under construction; Provided, Further, that where contracts for specific work or jobs have been let to general contractors before notice of establishment of, and/or change in, price, then Licensee, if it has made a commitment for any such specific work or job prior to such notice, may at any time within thirty (30) days after such notice make a written contract to furnish the material for such specific work or job, at the price at which it was committed, but not less than the minimum price, if any, in effect at the time of such commitment. Within ten (10) days after each notice of minimum price or change thereof, Licensee will furnish to Gypsum Company a written statement of all specific work or jobs, contracts and commitments which Licensee had at the time such notice was given, showing the date of the contract or commitment, name of purchaser, location and description of specific work or job, quantity of material, and price at which the same was sold or commitment made, and shall immediately notify Gypsum Company of the making of any such contract for such specific work or job within the thirty-day term hereinbefore mentioned, and of the completion or abandonment of all specific work, jobs, contracts and commitments theretofore had by Licensee. It is understood and agreed that no such contract or commitment shall 9667 be recognized as valid hereunder, unless the contract or commitment shall have been made in good faith before notice of making a price or change thereof, and unless such contract or commitment shall have been for some specific work or job then contemplated or under construction in which such patented material specified in the said contract or commitment is to be furnished or installed.

As consideration for the rights, licenses, and privileges herein granted to Licensee, Licensee agrees to pay royalty to Gypsum Company for all plaster board having a metallized surface manufactured and sold by Licensee and which are covered by claims of said Roos patent or patents set forth in the said Schedule A, or patents which may be issued under any of the applications set forth under said Schedule A, or which are to be used in making structures covered by said patent rights, at the rate of forty cents (40¢) per thousand square feet surface area where only one face is metallized, and at the rate of fifty cents (50¢) per thousand square feet where both faces are metallized, on any product covered by any of the patent rights aforesaid.

VI

It is expressly understood that Licensee shall have no right, without the written consent of Gypsum Company first obtained, to manufacture any of said patented material for any other manufacturer of plaster board, whether or not licensed under said patents, or to sell such patented material to any other such manufacturer, or to deliver any of the same to any person, firm or corporation whatsoever on consignment.

It is expressly understood and agreed that the 9668 rights, licenses and privileges herein granted are and shall be personal to Licensee, and none of said rights, licenses and privileges, nor any right herein or thereunder, shall be sold, assigned, or transferred without the written consent of Gypsum Company first obtained, nor shall Licensee permit the same, or any of them, to be transferred by operation of law; Provided, however, that such rights, licenses, and privileges may be assigned by Licensee to any company acquiring all of the business and assets of said Licensee, on condition that Licensee shall first obtain an agreement in writing from any such assignee, in which such agreement such assignee agrees to assume all of the obligations of Licensee under this agreement and agrees to be bound by all of the terms and conditions hereof, and shall deliver such agreement to Gypsum Company.

VIII

In the event Gypsum Company shall, subsequent to the effective date hereof, grant to any other person, firm or corporation, any license under said Roos Patent or under said patents or applications for patent set forth in said Schedule A, for the manufacture, use, or sale of plaster board having a metallized surface, and embodying the claims or inventions set forth and claimed in said patents or said applications for patent, upon terms more favorable than those granted hereunder to Licensee, then Gypsum Company will grant to Licensee a license upon the same terms, or will extend to Licensee the same right granted to such other licensee.

IX

Licensee agrees to keep true and accurate books of account, showing the total amount of plaster board having a metallized surface manufactured and/or sold by Li-9669 censee under the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted, and the prices at which the same have been sold. Such books and records shall at all times during business hours be open to the inspection of Gypsum Company or its duly authorized representatives. Gypsum Company shall have the right to make copies of any of such records and make memoranda therefrom, provided that if at the time of such examination Licensee shall so request, such examination shall be made by a certified public accountant satisfactory to Gypsum Company, in which event the expense of such examination by the said certified public accountant shall be borne by Licensee.

Licensee agrees that on or before the fifteenth day of each calendar month it will furnish to Gypsum Company a written report, under the hand and verification of some officer or other duly authorized agent of Licensee, showing the total amount of plaster board having a metallized surface sold by Licensee during the preceding calendar month and which was manufactured by Licensee under the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted, and also showing whether such plaster board had one or two metallized surfaces, together with the prices at which the same shall have been sold, and at the time of furnishing such report, Licensee will pay to Gypsum Company the full royalty as herein provided for such plaster board having a metallized surface so sold by Licensee during such preceding calendar month. Such reports shall be furnished to Gypsum Company at its principal office, at Chicago, Illinois.

XI

Licensee expressly covenants and agrees that all sales by Licensee hereunder of plaster board having a metallized surface shall be bona fide sales thereof, and Licensee 9670 further expressly covenants and agrees that no such products shall be placed on consignment. For the purposes of this agreement, a sale shall be considered to have been made not later than the date on which the goods are shipped.

Licensee agrees that all plaster board having a metallized surface sold by it hereunder shall be numbered with the respective numbers of any appropriate patents under which the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted are granted, and covering the manufacture, sale, or use thereof. Gypsum Company shall have the right from time to time to specify the substance of the notice with which said products shall be so marked.

XIII

As one of the considerations for the indivisible and non-exclusive rights, licenses and privileges herein and hereby granted to Licensee, Licensee agrees that it will not at any time during the life of this agreement, or during the existence of said rights, licenses and privileges, directly or indirectly, by itself or through or together with another or others, contest the validity of said letters patent, or of said patent rights, or of any letters patent hereafter issued upon said applications so set forth in said Schedule A, or the right or title of Gypsum Company therein or thereto as herein or as in said Schedule A set forth, but in the event that any of said patents under which Licensee is licensed hereunder is held invalid or of limited construction by a court of competent jurisdiction from whose decision no appeal is or can be taken, then the Licensee shall have the right to make, use or vend the structure so held to be outside of the scope of said patent rights, free and clear of the terms of this agreement.

9671 Licensee agrees to give prompt notice of any suit or action which shall be brought against it in consequence of practicing the inventions set forth in said patents and said patent rights, and thereupon, if Gypsum Company shall desire to conduct the defense of such suit or action, it shall have the right to do so, but Licensee shall have the right, in such event, to be represented in such suit or action, at its own expense, by counsel of its own selection. Gypsum Company shall not, by undertaking to conduct the defense of any such suit or action, be under any obligation to indemnify the Licensee against any judgment, order or decree or other result therein.

(a) In the event Licensee shall fail to make any report or shall fail to pay the royalty herein provided to be paid, or in the event that Licensee shall sell any of the materials covered by the price restriction provisions of Paragraph IV hereof, at a price or prices lower than the specified price or prices established and fixed by Gypsum Company as herein provided, Gypsum Company shall have the right to cancel all of the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted to Licensee; provided, however, that Licensee shall not be relieved thereby from any liability accrued at the time of such cancellation. In the event of any such breach, Gypsum Company shall give written notice to Licensee of the default or defaults claimed by Gypsum Company to have occurred, and of the desire of Gypsum Company to cancel the rights, licenses and privileges of Licensee hereunder; and if Licensee shall not make good the default or defaults complained of within a period of thirty (30) days from the giving of such notice, then all of the rights, licenses and privileges of Licensee hereunder shall forthwith cease and terminate without further action on the 9672 part of Gypsum Company; provided, however, that if, upon the giving of any such notice, Licensee shall deny that the defaults, or any of them, complained of have occurred, then the question as to whether the default or defaults, the occurrence of which is so denied by Licensee, have in fact occurred, shall be referred to arbitration under Paragraph XV hereof.

(b) In the event that such arbiters find that such default or defaults have occurred, then Licensee shall promptly cure the same, and in any event shall cure the same within thirty (30) days from the date of the finding of such arbiters; and in the event such default or defaults shall not be so cured within the time limited, then the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted to Licensee shall forthwith cease and determine without further action on the part of Gypsum Company; the termination of said rights, licenses and privileges following the finding of the arbiters as aforesaid shall not release Licensee from any liability then existing.

(c) In the event (1) that Licensee shall be adjudicated a bankrupt, or (2) a receiver shall be appointed for Licensee, whose appointment shall not be vacated within sixty

(60) days thereafter, then the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted to Licensee shall forthwith cease and determine, without further action on the part of Gypsum Company, provided that such termination shall not relieve Licensee of any and all liability then existing.

(d) The waiver by Gypsum Company of any breach on the part of Licensee shall not be interpreted as constituting a waiver of any further or other breach or breaches.

(e) In the event any default shall have occurred as specified in sub-paragraph (a) of this Paragraph XIV, Gypsum Company may give natice of such default without stating its desire to terminate the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted to Licensee, and in the event
9673 such defaults shall not be cured by Licensee within the times mentioned in said sub-paragraph (a), Gypsum Company shall have the right, without terminating the said rights, licenses and privileges herein granted to Licensee, to maintain any appropriate action hereunder, at law or in equity, for the collection of license fees or royalties, or for damages, or for any other remedy as may be appropriate. The provisions mentioned in said sub-paragraph (a) with respect to arbitrating the fact as to whether any default or defaults complained of has or have in fact occurred, shall be applicable in all respects in the event notice of default is given without any statement by Gypsum Company of its desire to terminate the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted to Licensee, excepting that if the arbiters shall find that any of said defaults complained of shal have occurred, then Gypsum Company shall have the same right, without a termination of said rights, licenses and privileges so granted to Licensee, to maintain its appropriate action hereunder.

Any question subject to arbitration under any provision of this contract shall be arbitrated in accordance with the rules then obtaining of the American Arbitration Association. The finding or findings of the arbiters with respect to the occurrence or non-occurrence of any claimed default, shall be final and conclusive. In the event the finding or findings of the arbiters shall be with respect to any default or defaults, or claimed default or defaults, in the payment of royalties or other sums of money herein required to be paid by the Licensee to Gypsum Company and the arbiters shall find that such default or defaults shall have occurred, the arbiters shall in their finding fix and determine the amount of royalties or other sums of money due from Licensee to Gypsum Company, whereupon Licensee will 9674 promptly pay the same to Gypsum Company, and in any event will pay the same within the times hereinbefore mentioned in Paragraph XIV hereof for the curing of defaults, provided that Gypsum Company shall have the right (but without being limited to such remedy) to have a summary judgment entered in its favor against Licensee for the amount so found to be due by the arbiters in any court of competent jurisdiction.

XVI

Any notice to be given under the terms hereof may be served by either party by mailing such notice to the other party hereto, by registered mail, postage prepaid, addressed to such party at its last known principal office, and the deposit of any such notice in the United States mails, registered, postage prepaid, and so addressed, shall constitute service of notice hereunder. Any telegraphic notice given under Paragraph IV hereof shall be confirmed in writing. Either party may change, from time to time, the address to which all notices shall be mailed, provided that in the absence of any different address, the respective addresses herein first above stated shall be the addresses to which such notices shall be mailed.

XVII

Except as herein otherwise expressly provided, this agreement shall remain in force for the full term of each patent under which the respective rights, licenses and privileges are hereby granted, and shall be binding upon and inure to the benefit of the parties hereto, their successors and assigns, provided, however, that nothing in this Paragraph XVII contained shall be construed to permit any assignment hereof or of any of the rights, licenses, and privileges herein granted, except as herein otherwise specifically provided. Nothing herein contained shall 9675 be construed as extending any license for the manufacture and/or use and/or sale of plaster board not having a metallized surface heretofore or hereafter granted under any other agreement between the parties hereto.

In the event that the exclusive right and license of the Gypsum Company, as set forth in said Schedule A hereto, shall for any reason whatsoever (whether on account of the default of the Gypsum Company or otherwise) terminate, and such termination shall have the effect of terminating or shall result in the termination of any of the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted to the Licensee, then this agreement shall immediately terminate, without further act on the part of either of the parties hereto, provided that Licensee shall not be relieved thereby from any liability then existing, and provided further that Gypsum Company shall not be liable in any way to Licensee on account of such termination. Gypsum Company agrees that if its said exclusive right and license shall so be terminated, it will promptly notify Licensee of such termination.

Anything hereinabove contained to the contrary notwithstanding, this agreement and the rights, licenses and privileges herein granted to the Licensee may be cancelled and terminated, at any time, by either party hereto, by at least ninety (90) days' prior written notice to the other party of the election of the party serving the notice to exercise such right of cancellation and of the date on which such cancellation shall be effective, but such cancellation shall not relieve either party from any liability accrued or due at the date of such cancellation; Provided, However, that if Gypsum Company shall exercise the right to cancel this agreement as in this paragraph provided, then within ninety (90) days of its said notice it will submit to Li-9676 censee a new contract embodying a proposal for a non-exclusive license under said patents for the life of said patents, for acceptance by Licensee within ten (10) days from the date of such submittal.

9678 Government's Exhibit No. 25

This agreement, made and entered into this 3rd day of January, A.D. 1939, by and between the United States Gypsum Company, an Illinois corporation, of Chicago, Illinois (hereinafter sometimes referred to as "Gypsum"), and Newark Plaster Company, a New Jersey corporation, of Newark, New Jersey, resulting from the merger of Newark Plaster Company, a New Jersey corporation, of Newark, New Jersey, and Kelley Plasterboard Company, Inc., a New Jersey corporation (hereinafter sometimes referred to as "Newark"), witnesseth, that:

Whereas, Gypsum and said Kelley Plasterboard Company, Inc., entered into a certain license agreement dated October 12, 1934, under the terms of which Gypsum, as licensor therein named, granted to said Kelley Plasterboard

Company, Inc., as licensee therein named, certain rights, licenses and privileges under certain patents relating to the manufacture and sale of plasterboard having a metallized surface, as therein more particularly described and set forth; and

Agreement made this 8th day of June, 1936, by and between United States Gypsum Company, an Illinois corporation, having its principal office and place of business at Chicago, Illinois, hereinafter referred to as "Licensor", and Certain-Teed Products Corp., a Maryland corporation, having its principal office and place of business at New York, N. Y., hereinafter referred to as "Licensee"; witnesseth:

Whereas, Licensor is the owner of Letters Patent of the United States No. 1,938,354, relating to a plasterboard lath particularly adapted for the fire-resistant wall and ceiling constructions and structures, covered by the claims of said patent, and Licensee desires to be licensed to manufacture, use and sell such patented plasterboard lath;

Now, therefore, in consideration of the sum of One Dollar ($1.00) in hand paid, each to the other, the receipt whereof is hereby acknowledged, and of the mutual covenants herein contained, the parties hereto agree as follows:

1. Licensor hereby grants to Licensee, subject to the terms and conditions hereinafter set forth, an indivisible and non-exclusive right, license and privilege of manufacturing at the plants and factories now or hereafter owned by Licensee or any of its wholly owned subsidiaries, perforated plasterboard lath having a gypsum core and paper covering adhering thereto embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said Letters Patent of the United States No. 1,938,354, and of selling and using, in the United States of America and the territories and possessions thereof, said perforated plasterboard lath manufactured by Licensee at its said plants and factories, or the said plants or factories of its subsidiaries, for the full term of said Letters Patent and any extensions 9683 or reissues thereof, subject, however, to cancelation or termination as hereinafter provided.

2. The license above granted, to manufacture, use and sell perforated plasterboard lath embodying the inventions and improvements of said Letters Patent, is granted on condition that Licensor reserves the right to determine, change and/or withdraw at any time and from time to time, during the term of this agreement, the minimum price or prices and/or terms and conditions of sale at which Licensee shall sell or offer for sale any such perforated plasterboard lath, and in case Licensor shall exercise the right so reserved, it shall first serve upon Licensee written notice of such minimum price or prices and/or terms and conditions of sale, and shall thereafter give to Licensee written or telegraphic notice of any change or changes in or withdrawal of such price or prices and/or terms and conditions of sale; and Licensee expressly covenants and agrees that after notice of any such price or prices and/or terms and conditions of sale or any change therein, it will not, directly or indirectly, sell or offer for sale any such perforated plasterboard lath at a price or prices less than those, or upon terms and conditions of sale other than as, stated by Licensor in such written notice or any such written or telegraphic notice of a change in such price or prices and/or terms and conditions of sale. Such minimum price or prices and/or terms and conditions of sale so determined by Licensor and any change or changes therein may be with respect to any one or more, or all, classes of trade, markets, or methods of shipment or delivery, and may be the same or different with respect to different classes of trade, markets, or methods of shipment or delivery, all as may be determined from time to time by Licensor. All orders, contracts or commitments for future sale or delivery of any such perforated plasterboard lath shall be made subject to change in such minimum price or prices and/or terms and conditions of sale as above provided, and no shipments thereof may be made at less 9684 than the minimum price or prices or upon terms and conditions of sale other than as, contained in the last such notice of minimum price or prices and/or terms and conditions of sale, and the last notice of change or changes therein, received before shipment.

Said minimum price or prices shall not be more than that price, nor shall such terms and conditions of sale be other than those, at which Licensor determines to sell such perforated plasterboard lath embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said Letters Patent, to its own like trade in the same market.

3. Notwithstanding any other provisions of this agreement, it is a condition and limitation of the licenses above granted that Licensee may not sell any of said perforated plasterboard lath to other manufacturers, jobbers or wholesalers without the written consent of Licensor, and then only at the minimum price or prices fixed and determined by Licensor therefor, as provided in Section 2 hereof; that Licensee shall not deliver any of said perforated plasterboard lath to any person or company on consignment; and that Licensee may not use or sell any of said perforated plasterboard lath of inferior manufacture and commonly known as "seconds".

4. All such perforated plasterboard lath shall be plainly marked by Licensee, "Licensed under United States Letters Patent No. 1,938,354."

5. As consideration for the grant of the aforesaid rights, licenses and privileges, Licensee agrees to pay to Licensor a royalty or license fee at the rate of ten cents (10¢) per thousand square feet of all of said perforated plasterboard lath sold or used by Licensee during the term of this agreement, which shall be paid monthly to Licensor on or before the 20th day of each calendar month for all of said perforated plasterboard lath sold or used by Licensee during the next preceding calendar month, as hereinafter more specifically set forth.

9685 For the purpose of this section of this agreement, all perforated plasterboard lath manufactured by Licensee and sold for erection in said patented wall and ceiling constructions and structures shall be conclusively treated as perforated plasterboard lath manufactured in accordance with the claims of said patent; and all perforated plasterboard lath shall be considered sold on the date shipped or delivered to purchaser, whether or not title passes at the time of shipment or delivery.

The royalties or license fees payable by Licensee under this license shall be in addition to any royalties or license fees payable by Licensee for any license under any other patents which may have been granted heretofore by Licensor to Licensee.

6. Licensee agrees to keep separate, full and accurate books of account and records showing the exact quantity of all of said perforated plasterboard lath manufactured, sold or used by it, and agrees that on or before the 20th day of each calendar month it will render unto Licensor true written returns, verified under oath by an officer or other agent of Licensee, setting forth the quantity of all of said perforated plasterboard lath manufactured, sold or used by it during the preceding calendar month, together with the price or prices at which the same was sold, such returns to be delivered to Licensor at its office in Chicago, Illinois, and Licensee agrees to pay to Licensor on or before the 20th day of each calendar month, at the office of Licensor at Chicago, Illinois, the hereinbefore stipulated royalties or license fees which may then be due under this agreement on account of all of said perforated plasterboard lath sold or used by it during the next preceding calendar month.

7. Licensor or its duly authorized representative shall have the right at all reasonable times during business hours to inspect such books of account and records of Licensee

9686 by it, the price or prices at which the same was sold, and to make copies thereof and memoranda therefrom; provided, however, that if at the time of any such examination Licensee shall request it in writing, then such examination shall be made by a certified public accountant agreed upon between the parties hereto, in which event the expense thereof shall be borne by Licensee. If the parties at any such time shall not agree upon a certified public accountant to make such examination, then Licensor shall name three certified public accountants of good standing, not directly or indirectly employed by it or in any other way connected with it, and Licensee shall have the right to select which of them shall make such examination, and if Licensee shall not accept any of them within ten (10) days after receiving the names thereof from Licensor, then Licensor shall have the right to make such examination itself.

8. As one of the considerations of this agreement, Licensee hereby acknowledges the validity of Letters Patent of the United States No. 1,938,354, and agrees that it will not, during the existence of this agreement, directly or indirectly, either alone or through or together with another or others, contest the validity of such Letters Patent or any of the claims thereof, or the title thereto of Licensor. The granting of the license herein contained shall not be construed or deemed to grant to Licensee any license under any other letters patent owned by Licensor or under which it is licensed with a right to license others. Nothing herein contained shall be construed to permit Licensee to use, at any time, any of Licensor's trade marks or names.

9. In the event either party hereto shall at any time neglect, fail or refuse to keep or perform any of the conditions or agreements herein to be kept or performed by it, then the other party may at its election serve upon the party claimed to be in default shall not have cured all this agreement, which notice shall specify the ne-
9687 glect, failure or refusal, and if within thirty (30) days from the date of delivery of said notice the party claimed to be in default, notice of termination of the defaults specified in said notice, then this agreement shall terminate without the necessity of any other or further notice and without the necessity of any court action; provided, however, that neither party shall be relieved thereby of any liability accrued at the time of such termination. A waiver by either party hereto of any breach by the other party shall not be deemed or construed to be a waiver of any other or subsequent breach or breaches hereof.

10. In case at any time Licensee shall be adjudged bankrupt or insolvent, or a receiver appointed for its assets and business, or its assets assigned for the benefit of creditors, then Licensor may at its option cancel this agreement with or without notice, but in any such event Licensor shall not thereby be prevented from collecting any and all license fees or royalties accrued hereunder at the time of such termination.

11. In the event Licensor grants to any other person, firm or corporation, a license similar to this license under said letters patent to manufacture, use and sell said perforated plasterboard lath under more favorable terms or conditions than stated herein, Licensor shall immediately give notice thereof to Licensee, and grant to Licensee a license on such terms and conditions, or amend this agreement so as to extend such more favorable terms and conditions to Licensee during the time they are enjoyed by such other person, firm or corporation.

12. The licenses herein granted are personal to Licensee, and the same or any right therein or thereunder shall not be sold, assigned, or transferred without the written consent of Licensor first had and obtained; and if this agreement or any of Licensee's rights hereunder are transferred by operation of law, then Licensor may cancel this agreement at any time thereafter, with or without notice.

9688 13. This agreement shall continue in force and effect for the full term of said letters patent and any extensions or reissues thereof; provided, however, that the same may be canceled or terminated by either party hereto upon giving to the other of said parties one year's written notice of its intention to cancel or terminate the same. Upon the giving of such notice this contract and all of the provisions hereof, together with said license, shall, at the end of six (6) months from the end of the period stated in such notice, be and become canceled and terminated without the necessity of any further notice by either party hereto. Licensee, by reason of any such cancelation or termination, shall not be relieved from the payment of any royalties or license fees payable hereunder for all of said

GENTLEMEN: In view of the fact that perforated plasterboard lath, which also embodies the claims of the patents contained in our original board license, has attained such importance and constitutes a large volume of the board manufactured and sold thereunder, we have decided to grant to you as one of our board licensees the right to use our U. S. Letters Patent No. 1,938,354 in the manufacture and sale of plasterboard without the payment of additional royalties or license fees, the same as if such patent were listed in Exhibit A of our original board license, upon the terms and conditions hereinafter set forth.

You are herefore granted an indivisible and nonexclusive license to manufacture at your plants perforated plasterboard lath having a gypsum core and paper covering adhering thereto, embodying the claims of Letters Patent of the United States No. 1,938,354 and of selling and using the same in the United States of America and the territories and possessions thereof, subject to the terms and conditions hereinafter set forth.

It is understood that nothing herein contained shall give you the right to use any of our other patents, or change or alter in any way the terms of your original board license agreement of October 15, 1929, it being understood that your only right to manufacture and sell gypsum plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard, including perforated plasterboard lath, embodying the claims of any of the patents set forth and described in Exhibit A of your said original board license agreement is under and in accordance with the terms and conditions of said last mentioned agreement.

It is of course understood that all perforated plasterboard lath manufactured and sold by you shall be included in computing your royalties or license fees under your said original board license agreement and you will make reports of your manufacture and sale thereof and we shall have the right to inspect books of account and records, in the same manner and to the same extent as set forth in said original board license agreement.

9691 You are not to manufacture any of said lath for or to sell the same to another manufacturer or to any manufacturer or distributor selling plaster or gypsum products as a manufacturer, or to deliver any of said lath to any person or company on consignment, or to sell any of the same of inferior manufacture, commonly known as "seconds".

You will mark all such patented lath "Licensed under United States Letters Patent No. 1,938,354".

You will not assign this license without our written consent, nor shall the same or any right hereunder be transferred by operation of law or otherwise.

This license may be cancelled or terminated by either party hereto upon giving to the other party hereto one (1) year's written notice of cancellation or termination thereof. Any such notice shall become effective upon depositing the same in the United States mails, postage prepaid and registered, addressed to you at your principal office in New York, New York, or to us at our principal office, 300 West Adams Street, Chicago, Illinois.

Your perforated plasterboard lath license agreement dated June 8, 1936, shall become cancelled and terminated upon the acceptance of this letter by you, provided, however, that neither party shall thereby be relieved of any liability thereunder accrued prior to September 1, 1938.

This license shall become effective as of September 1, 1938, when accepted by you in writing.

If satisfactory, please sign the duplicate copy of this letter indicating your acceptance thereof and return the same to us.

Accepted, this 4th day of October, 1938.

CERTAIN-TEED PRODUCTS CORPORATION.

By AUDENREID WHITTEMORE
Executive Vice President.

9692 Government's Exhibit No. 28

Agreement made this 2nd day of February, 1937, by and between United States Gypsum Company, an Illinois corporation, having its principal office and place of business at Chicago, Illinois, hereinafter referred to as "Licensor", and Ebsary Gypsum Company, Inc., a New York corporation, having its principal office and place of business at 52 Vanderbilt Ave., New York, N. Y., hereinafter referred to as "Licensee";

Witnesseth:

Whereas, Licensor is the owner of Letters Patent of the United States No. 1,938,354, relating to a plasterboard lath particularly adapted for the fire-resistant wall and ceiling constructions and structures, covered by the claims of said patent, and Licensee desires to be licensed to manufacture, use and sell such patented plasterboard lath;

Now, therefore, in consideration of the sum of one Dollar ($1.00) in hand paid, each to the other, the receipt whereof is hereby acknowledged, and of the mutual covenants herein contained, the parties hereto agree as follows:

1. Licensor hereby grants to Licensee, subject to the terms and conditions hereinafter set forth, an indivisible and non-exclusive right, license and privilege of manufacturing at the plants and factories now or hereafter owned by Licensee or any of its wholly owned subsidiaries, perforated plasterboard lath having a gypsum core and paper covering adhering thereto embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said Letters Patent of the United States No. 1,938,354, and of selling and using, in the United States of America and the territories and possessions thereof, said perforated plasterboard lath manufactured by Licensee at its said plants and factories, or the said plants or factories of its subsidiaries, for the full term of said Letters Patent and any extensions or 9693 reissues thereof, subject, however, to cancelation or termination as hereinafter provided.

2. The license above granted, to manufacture, use and sell perforated plasterboard lath embodying the inventions and improvements of said Letters Patent, is granted on condition that Licensor reserves the right to determine, change and/or withdraw at any time and from time to time, during the term of this agreement, the minimum price or prices and/or terms and conditions of sale at which Licensee shall sell or offer for sale any such perforated plasterboard lath, and in case Licensor shall exercise the right so reserved, it shall first serve upon Licensee written notice of such minimum price or prices and/or terms and conditions of sale, and shall thereafter give to Licensee written or telegraphic notice of any change or changes in or withdrawal of such price or prices and/or terms and conditions of sale; and Licensee expressly covenants and agrees that after notice of any such price or prices and/or terms and conditions of sale or any change therein, it will not, directly or indirectly, sell or offer for sale any such perforated plasterboard lath at a price or prices less than those, or upon terms and conditions of sale other than as, stated by Licensor in such written notice or any such written or telegraphic notice of a change in such price or prices and/or terms and conditions of sale. Such minimum price or prices and/or terms and conditions of sale so determined by Licensor and any change or changes therein may be with respect to any one or more, or all, classes of trade, markets, or methods of shipment or delivery, and may be the same or different with respect to different classes of trade, markets, or methods of shipment or delivery, all as may be determined from time to time by Licensor. All orders, contracts or commitments for future sale or delivery of any such perforated plasterboard lath shall be made subject to change in such minimum price or prices 9694 and/or terms and conditions of sale as above provided, and no shipments thereof may be made at less than the minimum price or prices or upon terms and conditions of sale other than as, contained in the last such notice of minimum price or prices and/or terms and conditions of sale, and the last notice of change or changes therein, received before shipment.

Said minimum price or prices shall not be more than that price, nor shall such terms and conditions of sale be other than those, at which Licensor determines to sell such perforated plasterboard lath embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said Letters Patent, to its own like trade in the same market.

3. Notwithstanding any other provisions of this agreement, it is a condition and limitation of the licenses above granted that Licensee may not sell any of said perforated plasterboard lath to other manufacturers, jobbers or wholesalers without the written consent of Licensor, and then only at the minimum price or prices fixed and determined by Licensor therefor, as provided in Section 2 hereof; that Licensee shall not deliver any of said perforated plasterboard lath to any person or company on consignment; and that Licensee may not use or sell any of said perforated plasterboard lath of inferior manufacture and commonly known as "seconds".

4. All such perforated plasterboard lath shall be plainly marked by Licensee, "Licensed under United States Letters Patent No. 1,938,354."

5. As consideration for the grant of the aforesaid rights, licenses and privileges, Licensee agrees to pay to Licensor a royalty or license fee at the rate of ten cents (10¢) per thousand square feet of all of said perforated plasterboard lath sold or used by Licensee during the term of this agreement, which shall be paid monthly to Licensor on or
9695 before the 20th day of each calendar month for all of said perforated plasterboard lath sold or used by Licensee during the next preceding calendar month, as hereinafter more specifically set forth.

For the purpose of this section of this agreement, all perforated plasterboard lath manufactured by Licensee and sold for erection in said patented wall and ceiling constructions and structures shall be conclusively treated as perforated plasterboard lath manufactured in accordance with the claims of said patent; and all perforated plasterboard lath shall be considered sold on the date shipped or delivered to purchaser, whether or not title passes at the time of shipment or delivery.

The royalties or license fees payable by Licensee under this license shall be in addition to any royalties or license fees payable by Licensee for any license under any other patents which may have been granted heretofore by Licensor to Licensee.

6. Licensee agrees to keep separate, full and accurate books of account and records showing the exact quantity of all of said perforated plasterboard lath manufactured, sold or used by it, and agrees that on or before the 20th day of each calendar month it will render unto Licensor true written returns, verified under oath by an officer or other agent of Licensee, setting forth the quantity of all of said perforated plasterboard lath manufactured, sold or used by it during the preceding calendar month, together with the price or prices at which the same was sold, such returns to be delivered to Licensor at its office in Chicago, Illinois, and Licensee agrees to pay to Licensor on or before the 20th day of each calendar month, at the office of Licensor at Chicago, Illinois, the hereinbefore stipulated royalties or license fees which may then be due under this agreement on account of all of said perforated plas-

to inspect such books of account and records of Licensee as are necessary to determine the quantity of such perforated plasterboard lath manufactured, sold or used by it, the price or prices at which the same was sold, and to make copies thereof and memoranda therefrom; provided, however, that if at the time of any such examination Licensee shall request it in writing, then such examination shall be made by a certified public accountant agreed upon between the parties hereto, in which event the expense thereof shall be borne by Licensee. If the parties at any such time shall not agree upon a certified public accountant to make such examination, then Licensor shall name three certified public accountants of good standing, not directly or indirectly employed by it or in any other way connected with it, and Licensee shall have the right to select which of them shall make such examination, and if Licensee shall not accept any of them within ten (10) days after receiving the names thereof from Licensor, then Licensor shall have the right to make such examination itself.

8. As one of the considerations of this agreement, Licensee hereby acknowledges the validity of Letters Patent of the United States No. 1,938,354, and agrees that it will not, during the existence of this agreement, directly or indirectly, either alone or through or together with another or others, contest the validity of such Letters Patent or any of the claims thereof, or the title thereto of Licensor. The granting of the license herein contained shall not be construed or deemed to grant to Licensee any license under any other letters patent owned by Licensor or under which it is licensed with a right to license others. Nothing herein contained shall be construed to permit Licensee to 9697 use, at any time, any of Licensor's trade marks or names.

9. In the event either party hereto shall at any time neglect, fail or refuse to keep or perform any of the conditions or agreements herein to be kept or performed by it, then the other party may at its election serve upon the party claimed to be in default, notice of termination of this agreement, which notice shall specify the neglect, failure or refusal, and if within thirty (30) days from the date of delivery of said notice the party claimed to be in default shall not have cured all the defaults specified in said notice, then this agreement shall terminate without the necessity of any other or further notice and without the necessity of any court action; provided, however, that neither party shall be relieved thereby of any liability accrued at the time of such termination. A waiver by either party hereto of any breach by the other party shall not be deemed or construed to be a waiver of any other or subsequent breach or breaches hereof.

10. In case at any time Licensee shall be adjudged bankrupt or insolvent, or a receiver appointed for its assets and business, or its assets assigned for the benefit of creditors, then Licensor may at its option cancel this agreement with or without notice, but in any such event Licensor shall not thereby be prevented from collecting any and all license fees or royalties accrued hereunder at the time of such termination.

11. In the event Licensor grants to any other person, firm or corporation, a license similar to this license under said letters patent to manufacture, use and sell said perforated plasterboard lath under more favorable terms or conditions than stated herein, Licensor shall immediately give notice thereof to Licensee, and grant to Licensee a license on such terms and conditions, or amend this agreement so as to extend such more favorable terms and 9698 conditions to Licensee during the time they are enjoyed by such other person, firm or corporation.

12. The licenses herein granted are personal to Licensee, and the same or any right therein or thereunder shall not be sold, assigned, or transferred without the written consent of Licensor first had and obtained; and if this agreement or any of Licensee's rights hereunder are transferred by operation of law, then Licensor may cancel this agreement at any time thereafter, with or without notice.

13. This agreement shall continue in force and effect for the full term of said letters patent and any extensions or reissues thereof; provided, however, that the same may be canceled or terminated by either party hereto upon giving to the other of said parties one year's written notice of its intention to cancel or terminate the same. Upon the giving of such notice this contract and all of the provisions hereof, together with said license, shall, at the end of six (6) months from the end of the period stated in such notice, be and become canceled and terminated without the necessity of any further notice by either party hereto. Licensee, by reason of any such cancelation or termination, shall not be relieved from the payment of any royalties or license fees payable hereunder for all of said patented perforated plasterboard lath sold or used by it up to the date of final cancelation or termination hereof.

14. Any and all notices required to be served hereunder upon Licensor may be served by mailing a copy thereof, postage prepaid, registered mail, addressed to Licensor at 300 West Adams Street, Chicago, Illinois; and any and all notices required to be served hereunder upon Licensee may be served by mailing a copy thereof, postage prepaid, registered mail, addressed to Licensee at 52 Vanderbilt Ave., New York, N. Y.; and such mailing of notice shall constitute proper service of notice hereunder.

9699 15. This agreement shall be binding upon and enure to the benefit of the successors and assigns of the parties hereto; provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to permit any assignment of this agreement or of any rights hereunder except as hereinabove specifically provided.

In witness whereof, the parties hereto have hereunto caused these presents to be signed on their behalf by their respective presidents, attested by their respective secretaries, and their corporate seals hereunto affixed, all done the day and year first above written.

Agreement made this 10th day of July 1936, by and between United States Gypsum Company, an Illinois corporation, having its principal office and place of business at Chicago, Illinois, hereinafter referred to as "Licensor", and The American Gypsum Co., an Ohio corporation having its principal office and place of business at Port Clinton, Ohio hereinafter referred to as "Licensee"; witnesseth:

Whereas, Licensor is the owner of Letters Patent of the United States No. 1,938,354, relating to a plasterboard lath particularly adapted for the fire-resistant wall and ceiling constructions and structures, covered by the claims of said patent, and Licensee desires to be licensed to manufacture, use and sell such patented plasterboard lath;

Now, therefore, in consideration of the sum of One Dollar ($1.00) in hand paid, each to the other, the receipt whereof is hereby acknowledged, and of the mutual covenants herein contained, the parties hereto agree as follows:

1. Licensor hereby grants to Licensee, subject to the terms and conditions hereinafter set forth, an indivisible and non-exclusive right, license and privilege of manufacturing at the plants and factories now or hereafter owned by Licensee or any of its wholly owned subsidiaries, perforated plasterboard lath having a gypsum core and paper covering adhering thereto embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said Letters Patent of the United States No. 1,938,354, and of selling and using, in the United States of America and the territories and possessions thereof, said perforated plasterboard lath manufactured by Licensee at its said plants and factories, or the said plants or factories of its subsidiaries, for the full term of said Letters Patent and any extensions or

9707 to use, at any time, any of Licensor's trade marks or names.

9. In the event either party hereto shall at any time neglect, fail or refuse to keep or perform any of the conditions or agreements herein to be kept or performed by it, then the other party may at its election serve upon the party claimed to be in default, notice of termination of this agreement, which notice shall specify the neglect, failure or refusal, and if within thirty (30) days from the date of delivery of said notice the party claimed to be in default shall not have cured all the defaults specified in said notice, then this agreement shall terminate without the necessity of any other or further notice and without the necessity of any court action; provided, however, that neither party shall be relieved thereby of any liability accrued at the time of such termination. A waiver by either party hereto of any breach by the other party shall not be deemed or construed to be a waiver of any other or subsequer breach or breaches hereof.

10. In case at any time Licensee shall be adjudged bankrupt or insolvent, or a receiver appointed for its assets and business, or its asetss assigned for the benefit of creditors, then Licensor may at its option cancel this agreement with or without notice, but in any such event Licensor shall not thereby be prevented from collecting any and all license fees or royalties accrued hereunder at the time of such termination.

11. In the event Licensor grants to any other person, firm or corporation, a license similar to this license under said letters patent to manufacture, use and sell said perforated plasterboard lath under more favorable terms or conditions than stated herein, Licensor shall immediately give notice thereof to Licensee, and grant to Licensee a license on such terms and conditions, or amend this agreement so as to extend such more favorable terms and

or reissues thereof; provided, however, that the same may be canceled or terminated by either party hereto upon giving to the other of said parties one year's written notice of its intention to cancel or terminate the same. 9710 Government's Exhibit No. 31

Agreement made this 23d day of June 1937, by and between United States Gypsum Company, an Illinois corporation, having its principal office and place of business at Chicago, Illinois, hereinafter referred to as "Licensor", and Kelley Plasterboard Company, Inc., a New Jersey corporation, having its principal office and place of business at Delawanna, Clifton, New Jersey, hereinafter referred to as "Licensee"; witnesseth:

Whereas, Licensor is the owner of Letters Patent of the United States No. 1,938,354, relating to a plasterboard lath particularly adapted for the fire-resistant wall and ceiling constructions and structures, covered by the claims of said patent, and Licensee desires to be licensed to manufacture, use and sell such patented plasterboard lath;

Now, therefore, in consideration of the sum of One Dollar ($1.00) in hand paid, each to the other, the receipt whereof is hereby acknowledged, and of the mutual covenants herein contained, the parties hereto agree as follows:

1. Licensor hereby grants to Licensee, subject to the terms and conditions hereinafter set forth, an indivisible and non-exclusive right, license and privilege of manufacturing at the plants and factories now or hereafter owned by Licensee or any of its wholly owned subsidiaries, perforated plasterboard lath having a gypsum core and paper covering adhering thereto embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said Letters Patent of the United States No. 1,938,354, and of selling and using, in the United States of America and the territories and possessions thereof, said perforated plasterboard lath manufactured by Licensee at its said plants and factories, or the said plants or factories of its subsidiaries, for the full term of said Letters Patent and any extensions or reissues 9711 thereof, subject, however, to cancelation or termination as hereinafter provided.

2. The license above granted, to manufacture, use and sell perforated plasterboard lath embodying the inventions and improvements of said Letters Patent, is granted on condition that Licensor reserves the right to determine, change and/or withdraw at any time and from time to time, during the term of this agreement, the minimum price or prices and/or terms and conditions of sale at which Licensee shall sell or offer for sale any such perforated plasterboard lath, and in case Licensor shall exercise the right so reserved, it shall first serve upon Licensee written notice of such minimum price or prices and/or terms and conditions of sale, and shall thereafter give to Licensee written or telegraphic notice of any change or changes in or withdrawal of such price or prices and/or terms and conditions of sale; and Licensee expressly covenants and agrees that after notice of any such price or prices and/or terms and conditions of sale or any change therein, it will not, directly or indirectly, sell or offer for sale any such perforated plasterboard lath at a price or prices less than those, or upon terms and conditions of sale other than as, stated by Licensor in such written notice or any such written or telegraphic notice of a change in such price or prices and/or terms and conditions of sale. Such minimum price or prices and/or terms and conditions of sale so determined by Licensor and any change or changes therein may be with respect to any one or more, or all, classes of trade, markets, or methods of shipment or delivery, and may be the same or different with respect to different classes of trade, markets, or methods of shipment or delivery, all as may be determined from time to time by Licensor. All orders, contracts or commitments for future sale or delivery of any such perforated plasterboard lath shall be made subject to change in such minimum price or prices and/or terms 9712 and conditions of sale as above provided, and no shipments thereof may be made at less than the minimum price or prices or upon terms and conditions of sale other than as, contained in the last such notice of minimum price or prices and/or terms and conditions of sale, and the last notice of change or changes therein, received before shipment.

Said minimum price or prices shall not be more than that price, nor shall such terms and conditions of sale be other than those, at which Licensor determines to sell such perforated plasterboard lath embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in said Letters Patent, to its own like trade in the same market.

3. Notwithstanding any other provisions of this agreement, it is a condition and limitation of the licenses above granted that Licensee may not sell any of said perforated plasterboard lath to other manufacturers, jobbers or wholesalers without the written consent of Licensor, and then only at the minimum price or prices fixed and determined by Licensor therefor, as provided in Section 2 hereof; that Licensee shall not deliver any of said perforated plasterboard lath to any person or company on consignment; and that Licensee may not use or sell any of said perforated plasterboard lath of inferior manufacture and commonly known as "seconds".

4. All such perforated plasterboard lath shall be plainly marked by Licensee, "Licensed under United States Letters Patent No. 1,938,354."

5. As consideration for the grant of the aforesaid rights, licenses and privileges, Licensee agrees to pay to Licensor a royalty or license fee at the rate of ten cents (10¢) per thousand square feet of all of said perforated plasterboard lath sold or used by Licensee during the term of this agreement, which shall be paid monthly to Licensor on or
9713 before the 20th day of each calendar month for all of said perforated plasterboard lath sold or used by Licensee during the next preceding calendar month, as hereinafter more specifically set forth.

For the purpose of this section of this agreement, all perforated plasterboard lath manufactured by Licensee and sold for erection in said patented wall and ceiling constructions and structures shall be conclusively treated as perforated plasterboard lath manufactured in accordance with the claims of said patent; and all perforated plasterboard lath shall be considered sold on the date shipped or delivered to purchaser, whether or not title passes at the time of shipment or delivery.

The royalties or license fees payable by Licensee under this license shall be in addition to any royalties or license fees payable by Licensee for any license under any other patents which may have been granted heretofore by Licensor to Licensee.

6. Licensee agrees to keep separate, full and accurate books of account and records showing the exact quantity of all of said perforated plasterboard lath manufactured, sold or used by it, and agrees that on or before the 20th day of each calendar mnoth it will render unto Licensor true written returns, verified under oath by an officer or other agent of Licensee, setting forth the quantity of all of said perforated plasterboard lath manufactured, sold or used by it during the preceding calendar month, together with the price or prices at which the same was sold, such returns to be delivered to Licensor at its office in Chicago, Illinois, and Licensee agrees to pay to Licensor on or before the 20th day of each calendar month, at the office of Licensor at Chicago Illinois, the hereinbefore stipulated royalties or license fees which may then be due under this agreement on account of all of said perforated plasterboard lath sold or

7. Licensor or its duly authorized representative shall have the right at all reasonable times during business hours to inspect such books of account and records of Licensee as are necessary to determine the quantity of such perforated plasterboard lath manufactured, sold or used by it, the price or prices at which the same was sold, and to make copies thereof and memoranda therefrom; provided, however, that if at the time of any such examination Licensee shall request it in writing, then such examination shall be made by a certified public accountant agreed upon between the parties hereto, in which event the expense thereof shall be borne by Licensee. If the parties at any such time shall not agree upon a certified public accountant to make such examination, then Licensor shall name three certified public accountants of good standing, not directly or indirectly employed by it or in any other way connected with it, and Licensee shall have the right to select which of them shall make such examination, and if Licensee shall not accept any of them within ten (10) days after receiving the names thereof from Licensor, then Licensor shall have the right to make such examination itself.

8. As one of the considerations of this agreement, Licensee hereby acknowledges the validity of Letters Patent of the United States No. 1,938,354, and agrees that it will not, during the existence of this agreement, directly or indirectly, either alone or through or together with another or others, contest the validity of such Letters Patent or any of the claims thereof, or the title thereto of Licensor. The granting of the license herein contained shall not be construed or deemed to grant to Licensee any license under any other letters patent owned by Licensor or under which it is licensed with a right to license others. Nothing herein contained shall be construed to permit Licensee to use, 9715 at any time, any of Licensor's trade marks or names.

9. In the event either party hereto shall at any time neglect, fail or refuse to keep or perform any of the conditions or agreements herein to be kept or performed by it, then the other party may at its election serve upon the party—imed to be in default, notice or termination of this agreement, which notice shall specify the neglect, failure or refusal, and if within thirty (30) days from the date of delivery of said notice the party claimed to be in default shall not have cured all the defaults specified in said notice, then this agreement shall terminate without the necessity of any other or further notice and without the necessity of any court action; provided, however, that neither party shall be relieved thereby of any liability accrued at the time of such termination. A waiver by either party hereto of any breach by the other party shall not be deemed or construed to be a waiver of any other or subsequent breach or breaches hereof.

10. In case at any time Licensee shall be adjudged bankrupt or insolvent, or a receiver appointed for its assets and business, or its assets assigned for the benefit of creditors, then Licensor may at its option cancel this agreement with or without notice, but in any such event Licensor shall not thereby be prevented from collecting any and all license fees or royalties accrued hereunder at the time of such termination.

11. In the event Licensor grants to any other person, firm or corporation, a license similar to this license under said letters patent to manufacture, use and sell said perforated plasterboard lath under more favorable terms or conditions than stated herein, Licensor shall immediately give notice thereof to Licensee, and grant to Licensee a license on such terms and conditions, or amend this agreement so as to extend such more favorable terms and

12. The licenses herein granted are personal to Licensee, and the same or any right therein or thereunder shall not be sold, assigned, or transferred without the written consent of Licensor first had and obtained; and if this agreement or any of Licensee's rights hereunder are transferred by operation of law, then Licensor may cancel this agreement at any time thereafter, with or without notice.

13. This agreement shall continue in force and effect for the full term of said letters patent and any extensions or reissues thereof; provided, however, that the same may be canceled or terminated by either party hereto upon giving to the other of said parties one year's written notice of its intention to cancel or terminate the same. Upon the giving of such notice this contract and all of the provisions hereof, together with said license, shall, at the end of six (6) months from the end of the period stated in such notice, be and become canceled and terminated without the necessity of any further notice by either party hereto. Licensee, by reason of any such cancelation or termination, shall not be relieved from the payment of any royalties or license fees payable hereunder for all of said patented perforated plasterboard lath sold or used by it up to the date of final cancelation or termination hereof.

14. Any and all notices required to be served hereunder upon Licensor may be served by mailing a copy thereof, postage prepaid, registered mail, addressed to Licensor at 300 West Adams Street, Chicago, Illinois; and any and all notices required to be served hereunder upon Licensee may be served by mailing a copy thereof, postage prepaid, registered mail, addressed to Licensee at Delawanna, Clifton, New Jersey; and such mailing of notice shall constitute proper service of notice hereunder.

9717 15. This agreement shall be binding upon and enure to the benefit of the successors and assigns of the parties hereto; provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to permit any assignment of this agreement or of any rights hereunder except as hereinabove specifically provided.

In witness whereof, the parties hereto have hereunto caused these presents to be signed on their behalf by their respective presidents, attested by their respective secretaries, and their corporate seals hereunto affixed, all done the day and year first above written.

JANUARY 3, 1939.

Newark, New Jersey:

GENTLEMEN:- In view of the fact that perforated plasterboard lath, which also embodies the claims of the patents contained in our original board license, has attained such importance and constitutes a large volume of the board manufactured and sold thereunder, we have decided to grant to you, as one of our board licensees, the right to use our U. S. Letters Patent No. 1,938,354 in the manufacture and sale of plasterboard without the payment of additional royalties or license fees, the same as if such patent were listed in Exhibit A of our original board license, upon the terms and conditions hereinafter set forth.

You are therefore granted an indivisible and non-exclusive license to manufacture at your plants perforated plasterboard lath having a gypsum core and paper covering adhering thereto, embodying the claims of Letters Patent of the United States No. 1,938,354, and of selling and using the same in the United States of America and the territories and possessions thereof, subject to the terms and conditions hereinafter set forth.

It is understood that nothing herein contained shall give you the right to use any of our other patents, or change or alter in any way the terms of your original board license agreement of April 23, 1930, granted Kelley Plasterboard Company, Inc. and heretofore assigned to you, it being understood that your only right to manufacture and sell gypsum plasterboard and/or gypsum wallboard, including perforated plasterboard lath, embodying the claims of any of the patents set forth and described in Exhibit A of your said original board license agreement, is under and in accordance with the terms and conditions of said last mentioned agreement.

It is of course understood that all perforated plasterboard lath manufactured and sold by you shall be included in computing your royalties or license fees under your said original board license agreement, and you will make reports of your manufacture and sale thereof, and we shall have the right to inspect books of account and records, in the same manner and to the same extent as set forth in said original board license agreement.

You are not to manufacture any of said lath for or to sell the same to another manufacturer or to any manufacturer or distributor selling plaster or gypsum products as a manufacturer, or to deliver any of said lath to any person or company on consignment, or to sell any of the same of inferior manufacture, commonly known as "seconds".

9719 You will mark all such patented lath "licensed under United States Letters Patent No. 1,938,354".

You will not assign this license without our written consent, nor shall the same or any right hereunder be transferred by operation of law or otherwise.

This license may be cancelled or terminated by either party hereto upon giving to the other party hereto one (1) year's written notice of cancellation or termination thereof. Any such notice shall become effective upon depositing the same in the United States mails, postage prepaid and registered, addressed to you at your principal office in Newark, New Jersey, or to us at our principal office, 300 West Adams Street, Chicago, Illinois.

This license is granted in place of similar license accepted by Kelley Plasterboard Company, Inc., on September 23, 1938, which, with perforated plasterboard lath license agreement dated June 23, 1937, granted said Kelley Plasterboard Company, Inc., is now cancelled and terminated; provided, however, that you assume all liability of said Kelley Plasterboard Company, Inc., under said cancelled licenses which accrued prior to the date hereof:

This license, when accepted by you, shall become effective as of the date hereof and continue until cancelled or terminated by either party as aforesaid.

If satisfactory, please sign the duplicate copy of this letter, indicating your acceptance thereof, and return the same to us.

Very truly yours

9767 Emergency Freight Charges: The minimum delivered prices of patented gypsum wallboard and gypsum plasterboard are directly affected by the permissive order of the Interstate Commerce Commission authorizing an increase in freight rates. On Interstate traffic the freight increase becomes effective on the effective date of the Interstate tariff, and in Intrastate traffic the freight increase is effective when approved by the State Commission.

When emergency freight charges become effective the minimum delivered price of patented gypsum wallboard and gypsum plasterboard is to be the lowest combination of mill price plus freight, including emergency charge, from that mill to destination, as follows:

Where the minimum delivered price is the result of mill price plus Interstate freight, the increase is to be added on the effective date of the Interstate tariff.

Where the minimum delivered price is the result of mill price plus Intrastate freight, the increase is effective when approved by the State Commission.

The amount of increase in freight to be added to minimum f.o.b. mill prices of patented gypsum wallboard and gypsum plasterboard shall be as detailed in following schedule:

Opposite old rate, using the table below, is the proper new pricing rate, including emergency freight charge, in cents per 100 pounds:

DEAR SIRS: Referring to our license contract with you, you are hereby notified that effective February 24, 1936 the minimum prices at which you may sell gypsum wallboard and gypsum plasterboard manufactured by you and embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in our patents under which you are licensed (not including applications for letters patent); including Haggerty patent number 1,500,452 and Hite patent number 1,230,297, are as follows:

Patented gypsum wallboard and plasterboard products shall be quoted and sold on a delivered basis, f.o.b. cars destination. Delivered price is lowest combination of mill price plus freight, including emergency freight charge (see page 2) from that mill to destination. In every case rates as shown in published railroad freight tariffs apply. To determine board footage required to meet straight or mixed carload minimum weights, as shown in published railroad freight tariffs, use weights per M sq. ft. as shown below:

9773 Emergency Freight Charges: The minimum delivered prices of patented gypsum wallboard and gypsum plasterboard are directly affected by the permissive order of the Interstate Commerce Commission authorizing an increase in freight rates. On Interstate traffic the freight increase becomes effective on the effective date of the Interstate tariff, and in Intrastate traffic the freight increase is effective when approved by the State Commission.

When emergency freight charges become effective the minimum delivered price of patented gypsum wallboard and gypsum plasterboard is to be the lowest combination of mill price plus freight, including emergency charge, from that mill to destination, as follows:

Where the minimum delivered price is the result of mill price plus Interstate freight, the increase is to be added on the effective date of the Interstate tariff.

Where the minimum delivered price is the result of mill price plus Intrastate freight, the increase is effective when approved by the State Commission.

The amount of increase in freight to be added to minimum f. o. b. mill prices of patented gypsum wallboard and gypsum plasterboard shall be as detailed in following schedule:

Opposite old rate, using the table below, is the proper new pricing rate, including emergency freight charge, in cents per 100 pounds:

* 5/16" Gypsum Wallboard is for sale to manufacturers only, for fabrication at their factories—not a dealer item.

9782 Emergency Freight Charges: The minimum delivered prices of patented gypsum wallboard and gypsum plasterboard are directly affected by the permissive order of the Interstate Commerce Commission authorizing an increase in freight rates. On Interstate traffic the freight increase becomes effective on the effective date of the Interstate tariff, and in Intrastate traffic the freight increase is effective when approved by the State Commission.

When emergency freight charges become effective the minimum delivered price of patented gypsum wallboard and gypsum plasterboard is to be the lowest combination of mill price plus freight, including emergency charge, from that mill to destination, as follows:

Where the minimum delivered price is the result of mill price plus Interstate freight, the increase is to be added on the effective date of the Interstate tariff.

Where the minimum delivered price is the result of mill price plus Intrastate freight, the increase is effective when approved by the State Commission.

The amount of increase in freight to be added to minimum f. o. b. mill prices of patented gypsum wallboard and gypsum plasterboard shall be as detailed in following schedule:

9792. Emergency Freight Charges: The minimum delivered prices of patented gypsum wallboard and gypsum plasterboard are directly affected by the permissive order of the Interstate Commerce Commission authorizing an increase in freight rates. On Interstate traffic the freight increase becomes effective on the effective date of the Interstate tariff, and in Intrastate traffic the freight increase is effective when approved by the State Commission.

When emergency freight charges become effective the minimum delivered price of patented gypsum wallboard and gypsum plasterboard is to be the lowest combination of mill price plus freight, including emergency charge, from that mill to destination, as follows:

Where the minimum delivered price is the result of mill price plus Interstate freight, the increase is to be added on the effective date of the Interstate tariff.

Where the minimum delivered price is the result of mill price plus Intrastate freight, the increase is effective when approved by the State Commission.

The amount of increase in freight to be added to minimum f. o. b. mill prices of patented gypsum wallboard and gypsum plasterboard shall be as detailed in following schedule:

Opposite old rate, using the table below, is the proper new pricing rate, including emergency freight charge, in cents per 100 pounds:

* 5/16" Gypsum Wallboard is for sale to manufacturers only, for fabrication at their factories—not a dealer item.

9801 Emergency Freight Charges: The minimum delivered prices of patented gypsum wallboard and gypsum plasterboard are directly affected by the permissive order of the Interstate Commerce Commission authorizing an increase in freight rates. On Interstate traffic the freight increase becomes effective on the effective date of the Interstate tariff, and in Intrastate traffic the freight increase is effective when approved by the State Commission.

When emergency freight charges become effective the minimum delivered price of patented gypsum wallboard and gypsum plasterboard is to be the lowest combination of mill price plus freight, including emergency charge, from that mill to destination, as follows:

Where the minimum delivered price is the result of mill price plus Interstate freight, the increase is to be added on the effective date of the Interstate tariff.

Where the minimum delivered price is the result of mill price plus Intrastate freight, the increase is effective when approved by the State Commission.

The amount of increase in freight to be added to minimum f. o. b. mill prices of patented gypsum wallboard and gypsum plasterboard shall be as detailed in following schedule:

Opposite old rate, using the table below, is the proper new pricing rate, including emergency freight charge, in cents per 100 pounds:

* 5/16" Gypsum Wallboard is for sale to manufacturers only, for fabrication at their factories—not a dealer item.

9814 #Where an odd 'rate per ton' is in effect (example: $3.45 per ton) the freight per M sq. ft. shall be figured on basis of rate per cwt. nearest to rate per ton, fractions of less than ¼¢ per cwt. to be dropped, fractions of ¼¢ per cwt. to ½¢ per cwt. to be considered as ½¢. Example: The rate of $3.45 per ton equals 17¼¢ per cwt. For purpose of arriving at delivered price, however, the rate of 17½¢ shall be used.

Emergency Freight Charges:

The minimum delivered prices of patented gypsum wallboard and gypsum plasterboard are directly affected by the permissive order of the Interstate Commerce Commission authorizing an increase in freight rates. On Interstate traffic the freight increase becomes effective on the effective date of the Interstate tariff, and in Intrastate traffic the freight increase is effective when approved by the State Commission.

When emergency freight charges become effective the minimum delivered price of patented gypsum wallboard and gypsum plasterboard is to be the lowest combination of mill price plus freight, including emergency charge, from that mill to destination, as follows:

Where the minimum delivered price is the result of mill price plus Interstate freight, the increase is to be added on the effective date of the Interstate tariff.

Where the minimum delivered price is the result of mill price plus Intrastate freight, the increase is effective when approved by the State Commission.

The amount of increase in freight to be added to minimum f.o.b. mill prices of patented gypsum wallboard and gypsum plasterboard shall be as detailed in following schedule:

* 5/16" Gypsum Wallboard is for sale to manufacturers only, for fabrication at their factories—not a dealer item.

9830 #Where an odd 'rate per ton' is in effect (example: $3.45 per ton) the freight per M sq. ft. shall be figured on basis of rate per cwt. nearest to rate per ton, fractions of less than ¼¢ per cwt to be dropped, fractions of ¼¢ per cwt. to ½¢ per cwt. to be considered as ½¢. Example: The rate of $3.45 per ton equals 17¼¢ per cwt. For purpose of arriving at delivered price, however, the rate of 17½¢ shall be used.

Emergency Freight Charges: The minimum delivered prices of patented gypsum wallboard and gypsum plasterboard are directly affected by the permissive order of the Interstate Commerce Commission authorizing an increase in freight rates. On Interstate traffic the freight increase becomes effective on the effective date of the Interstate tariff, and in Intrastate traffic the freight increase is effective when approved by the State Commission.

When emergency freight charges become effective the minimum delivered price of patented gypsum wallboard and gypsum plasterboard is to be the lowest combination of mill price plus freight, including emergency charge, from that mill to destination, as follows:

Where the minimum delivered price is the result of mill price plus Interstate freight, the increase is to be added on the effective date of the Interstate tariff.

Where the minimum delivered price is the result of mill price plus Intrastate freight, the increase is effective when approved by the State Commission.

The amount of increase in freight to be added to minimum f. o. b. mill prices of patented gypsum wallboard and gypsum plasterboard shall be as detailed in following schedule:

* 5/16" Gypsum Wallboard is for sale to manufacturers only, for fabrication at their factories—not a dealer item.

9840 #Where an odd 'rate per ton' is in effect (example: $3.45 per ton) the freight per M sq. ft. shall be figured on basis of rate per cwt. nearest to rate per ton, fractions of less than ¼¢ per cwt. to be dropped, fractions of ¼¢ per cwt. to ½¢ per cwt. to be considered as ½¢. Example: The rate of $3.45 per ton equals 17¼¢ per cwt. For purpose of arriving at delivered price, however, the rate of 17½¢ shall be used.

Emergency Freight Charges: The minimum delivered prices of patented gypsum wallboard and gypsum plasterboard are directly affected by the permissive order of the Interstate Commerce Commission authorizing an increase in freight rates. On Interstate traffic the freight increase becomes effective on the effective date of the Interstate tariff, and in Intrastate traffic the freight increase is effective when approved by the State Commission.

When emergency freight charges become effective the minimum delivered price of patented gypsum wallboard and gypsum plasterboard is to be the lowest combination of mill price plus freight, including emergency charge, from that mill to destination, as follows:

Where the minimum delivered price is the result of mill price plus Interstate freight, the increase is to be added on the effective date of the Interstate tariff.

Where the minimum delivered price is the result of mill price plus Intrastate freight, the increase is effective when approved by the State Commission.

The amount of increase in freight to be added to minimum f. o. b. mill prices of patented gypsum wallboard and gypsum plasterboard shall be as detailed in following schedule:

Dated July 23, 1936

This Reissue Cancels All Supplements to Board License Bulletin No. 1 Dated July 23, 1936

DEAR SIRS: Referring to our license contract with you, you are hereby notified that effective September 15, 1936 the minimum prices at which you may sell gypsum wallboard and gypsum plasterboard manufactured by you and embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in our patents under which you are licensed (not including applications for letters patent); including Haggerty patent number 1,500,452 and Hite patent number 1,230,297, are as follows:

* 5/16" Gypsum Wallboard is for sale to manufacturers only, for fabrication at their factories—not a dealer item.

9857 #Where an odd 'rate per ton' is in effect (example: $3.45 per ton) the freight per M sq. ft. shall be figured on basis of rate per cwt. nearest to rate per ton, fractions of less than ¼¢ per cwt. to be dropped, fractions of ¼¢ per cwt. to ½¢ per cwt. to be considered as ½¢. Example: The rate of $3.45 per ton equals 17¼¢ per cwt. For purpose of arriving at delivered price, however, the rate of 17½¢ shall be used.

Emergency Freight Charges: The minimum delivered prices of patented gypsum wallboard and gypsum plasterboard are directly affected by the permissive order of the Interstate Commerce Commission authorizing an increase in freight rates. On Interstate traffic the freight increase becomes effective on the effective date of the Interstate tariff, and in Intrastate traffic the freight increase is effective when approved by the State Commission.

When emergency freight charges become effective the minimum delivered price of patented gypsum wallboard and gypsum plasterboard is to be the lowest combination of mill price plus freight, including emergency charge, from that mill to destination, as follows:

Where the minimum delivered price is the result of mill price plus Interstate freight, the increase is to be added on the effective date of the Interstate tariff.

Where the minimum delivered price is the result of mill price plus Intrastate freight, the increase is effective when approved by the State Commission.

The amount of increase in freight to be added to minimum f. o. b. mill prices of patented gypsum wallboard and gypsum plasterboard shall be as detailed in following schedule:

Referring to our license agreement with you, you are hereby notified that effective March 30, 1939, the minimum price at which you may sell such product embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in our letters patent under which you are licensed (not including applications for letters patent) shall be the lowest combination of the following mill prices and all rail freight to Acme, Texas

Acme, Texas Sweetwater, Texas Southard, Oklahoma	$16.25 per M Sq. Ft.

Rail freight shall be determined in accordance with rail rates as published in regular freight tariffs, using the weight shown above, plus all stopover, switching, cartage and other extra delivery charges in connection with the shipment. In stopover cars, the minimum price of such patented gypsum board product in any portion of the car shall be the minimum price as herein defined to the point of delivery of that portion of the car.

Yours very truly,

WLK:EAS

9918 Where an odd 'rate per ton' is in effect (example: $3.45 per ton) the freight per M sq. ft. shall be figured on the basis of rate per cwt., fractions of less than 1/4¢ per cwt. to be dropped, fractions of 1/4¢ per cwt. to 1/2¢ per cwt. to be considered as 1/2¢. Example: The rate of $3.45 per ton equals 17¼¢ per cwt. For purpose of arriving at delivered price, however, the rate of 17½¢ shall be used.

The above prices apply to the sale of all patented gypsum board embodying the claims of our patents in all markets except where an exception is made as hereinafter expressly stated:

DEAR SIR: Referring to our license contract with you, you are hereby notified that effective June 14, 1939, the minimum prices at which you may sell gypsum wallboard and gypsum plasterboard manufactured by you and embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in our patents under which you are licensed (not including applications for letters patent) are as follows:

Minimum prices per M sq. ft. of patented gypsum board products shall be the mill price listed below plus carload rail freight from producing mill to destination of the shipment. Carload rail freight may be equalized with the carload rail freight from any of the producing mills listed below having a lower carload rail freight to such destination.

If the applicable rail rate, to be used in computing the delivered minimum price, is on a per ton basis, then the rate per CWT. shall first be determined, and fractions of less than 1/4¢ per CWT over or under an even 1¢ or 1/2¢ shall be dropped and the even 1¢ or 1/2¢ shall be used, and fractions of 1/4¢ or more over an even 1¢ or 1/2¢ shall be considered as the next even 1/2¢ or 1¢. Example: The rate of $3.55 per ton equaling 17-3/4¢ per CWT shall be considered 18¢ per CWT. In converting the applicable per CWT rate into freight per M sq. ft. to determine the minimum price hereunder, fractions of less than 1/2¢ per M sq. ft. shall be dropped and the nearest even 1¢ shall be used, and fractions of 1/2¢ or more per M sq. ft. shall be considered the next even 1¢.

The above prices apply to all sales of patented gypsum board except as follows:

1. Pacific Coast. Until further notice the above minimum prices shall not apply to sales of patented gypsum board for shipment to or delivery in the following area: states of California, Arizona, Nevada, Utah, Idaho, Oregon and Washington; also that portion of the state of Montana west of and including Phillips, Petroleum, Musselshell, Yellowstone and Carbon Counties.

2. Stopover Cars. The minimum price for each portion of a stopover car consigned to a different destination shall be the mill price plus the carload rail freight from the producing mill, provided that carload freight may be equalized with the carload freight from any of the producing mills listed above having a lower carload rail freight to the destination of that portion of the car, except that stopover charges need not be added to determine minimum price on shipments to destinations in which deliveries are made by truck.

3. Delivered Price Areas. Minimum prices of patented gypsum board products per M sq. ft. for delivery within the areas listed below are the prices set forth below plus any stopover charges (except that stopover charges need not be added to determine the minimum price on shipments to destinations in which deliveries are made by truck).

Rebates, Allowances, Etc.:

Any sale of patented products, though ostensibly made at or above the minimum price established by licensor, will nevertheless be considered a violation of the provisions of the license if licensee directly or indirectly reduces the actual price charged by licensee below such minimum price by granting the customer rebates, unearned or unwarranted refunds, credits or discounts, by reducing the price of other products, by hiring customers' trucks, by granting allowances for advertising or other purposes, by splitting of salesmen's compensation or commissions with customers, by overshipment of patented products, by including board under the guise of dunnage, or by making any other payment or allowance in the form of money or otherwise which has for its purpose and effect reducing the price charged by licensee below such minimum price.

The minimum prices set forth herein pertain to existing conditions, and, as provided in the license agreement, Licensor has and reserves the right to change and alter such minimum prices from time to time.

UNITED STATES GYPSUM COMPANY,

Vice President.

DEAR SIR: We understand that you are manufacturing or are about to manufacture at your Texas mill a 1/2" gypsum liner board weighing approximately 2050 lbs. per M sq. ft., 24"x80" square edge, using gray surfaced paper.

Referring to our license agreement with you, you are hereby notified that the minimum price at which you may sell such product embodying the inventions and improvements set forth and claimed in our letters patent under which you are licensed (not including applications for letters patent) shall be the following mill price plus carload rail freight from producing mill to destination of shipment. Carload rail freight may be equalized with carload rail freight from any of the Texas and Oklahoma producing mills listed below having a lower carload rail freight to such destination.

Producing Mills	Mill Price
Acme, Texas Hamlin (Plasterco or Plasterco Jot.) Texas Rotan, Texas Sweetwater, Texas Southard, Oklahoma	$16.25 per M sq. ft.

In computing the delivered minimum price hereunder, rail freight shall be determined in accordance with rail rates as published in regular freight tariffs, using the weight shown above, plus all stopover, switching, cartage and other extra delivery charges in connection with the shipment. In stopover cars, the minimum price of such patented gypsum board product in any portion of the car shall be the minimum price as herein defined to the point of delivery of that portion of the car.

Yours very truly,

UNITED STATES GYPSUM COMPANY,

Vice President.
